

Spoiled by Mr. Russell by Luminous Night Chapter 606-608

Chapter 606

"That's indeed my wish too." Lawrence nodded and said, "However, it seems your wife has rejected me!"

The crowd was excited to watch how the situation would unfold. Lily could be ignorant about Lawrence's identity, but they believed Alexander would know how influential the man was. No matter how powerful and wealthy La Beauté Group was, they would not offend Lawrence so publicly.

However, something unexpected happened.

"That's right!" Alexander's determined voice shocked everyone. His voice was so loud that everyone's eardrums were still buzzing as an aftereffect.

His voice was not the only thing that frightened them but his attitude also. Everyone had the same thoughts at this moment.

'What did he say? That's right?'

"What was right? Did he mean to say that his fiancée was right for rejecting Lawrence in front of so many people, which showed that she had no respect for him? Was he in his right mind, or did he say those things by mistake?"

Lawrence's expression did not change much, but the corner of his eye twitched a little.

"Mr. Adler, you're reclusive, so you probably don't know much about my wife. She'd be happy to play around with fragrances or conduct research on them. However, she wouldn't like to join a society, partake in events, or abide by those rigid rules and regulations."

Then he emphasized again with a wave of his hand, "She really can't do it! Hence, she's not rejecting you, but those rules and all those events."

Ever since Alexander arrived, Lily had been silent. Upon hearing his words, he convinced her as well. 'He's more experienced and well-versed in socializing with these people.'

Earlier, she had wanted to admit that she rejected Lawrence. To her, there was no need for her to care about his pride and image if he forced her into doing something she did not like.

However, Alexander's words managed to resolve the conflict between them quickly. 'What did he say? The one I rejected is not him but the rules and events. Just listen to how reasonable that sounds!'

"You seem to have social anxiety," Noah said. "Most of us perfumers have a little of that, but we'll get used to it after joining the Perfumers' Society. After all, we're all in the same profession and speak a common language. As for the rules and regulations..."

"What? Mr. Richards, are you planning to abolish the rules and regulations passed down for decades in the society for my wife?" Alexander interjected. "Unless I didn't know that you've been promoted to the society's president. Congratulations to you."

Noah was rendered speechless by Alexander's words. His hands, hanging by his sides, were clenched into fists as he tried to suppress his anger.

"Since that's the case, forget it." Lawrence finally spoke. Sighing grimly, he looked at Lily and continued again, "You're talented. I just wanted you to have a better environment to unleash your talent. If you change your mind, contact me anytime."

12

Then Lawrence turned to look at his subordinate, who handed Lily a name card. "My phone number is on it."

After saying that, he turned around and got into his car. Since the other people came with him, they would also leave with him.

With his arm wrapped around Lily's waist, Alexander stood there as they watched Lawrence's car leave. When the car was out of sight, he finally looked at her. "Aren't I amazing?"

Lily was speechless.

“Don’t you think you should reward me for being so amazing?” He leaned his face closer to hers and asked for a reward shamelessly.

Chapter 607

The two were being lovey–dovey with each other, completely forgetting there were still people around them.

Noah could no longer tolerate it, so he stepped forward and stood before them. “Mr. Russell, I know you’re arbitrary, but I’d advise you to think twice about this matter. Do you think La Beauté Group is invincible?”

“As long as she’s still a perfumer working in this industry, there will always be rules and regulations restricting her every action.”

His words repelled Lily. Just as she was about to retort, Alexander stopped her, and she soon heard his voice, “She’s a perfumer because that’s her passion. If the day when she doesn’t want to be a perfumer anymore comes, I can take care of my woman without her needing to work.

“She can be a perfumer as long as she likes her job, and La Beauté Group will always support her.” He threw Noah a sideways glance and walked forward with Lily, who was still in his arm. Alexander continued when they were next to Noah, “La Beauté Group isn’t invincible, but the same goes for you.”

Then they left, not giving Noah a chance to refute. The latter was speechless. He was outraged, but Lily felt the opposite; she was satisfied by the encounter. She had finally released the anger she had been holding in over the past two days.

She felt that Alexander's last words to Noah were cool. Lily stared right at him, thinking this man was more charming the more she looked at him.

"Why are you staring at me?" Alexander asked, unable to hold the question in any longer. It was difficult for him to ignore her intense stare.

"You were so cool just now!" she praised him directly.

However, Alexander was dissatisfied with her words. He turned around to block her path and stared into her eyes. "Only just now?"

"O—of course..." Although they had a close relationship, Lily's heart would still skip a beat. whenever her husband stared at her this way. "Of course, not just earlier. You've always been cool!"

The quick change in Lily's words made Alexander smirk. He loved how she looked when she was shy, so he lowered his head and moved closer to her lips. Just as their lips were about to touch, she pushed him away. "Get in the car!"

Edward was already waiting for them in the car parked not far ahead. As Alexander's plan came to a screeching halt, he felt unhappy and refused to let go of Lily. A hint of resentment flashed in his gaze as well. "You're trying to escape again, huh?"

"I..." Lily could not defend herself. "When did I ever tease you?" She was sure she had not done anything to provoke him.

"You're not going to admit it?" Alexander closed the distance between their heads and pulled her body closer to him. They had only been apart for a few days, but he had missed her very much.

Lily could feel his excitement which made her cheeks turn red instantly. She tried to remind him in a low voice, "We're in public!"

Since Edward had already gotten out of the car, Lily became even more uncomfortable and pushed Alexander hard on his chest.

"So what? Are there any laws that forbid a married couple from kissing on the streets? Are there?"

"Stop messing around!" Lily said through gritted teeth. At this moment, she suddenly wanted to step on his foot so he would keep his mouth shut.

"Mr. Russell!" Edward called out and rushed over. He knew it was an inappropriate time to interrupt, but there was something urgent he needed to report to Alexander.

As expected, Alexander's expression instantly turned dark because he got repeatedly interrupted. He did not turn around, his back facing Edward, as he said, "What is it?"

It was a simple question, but one could tell he was pissed off. Edward was used to it after working for Alexander for many years, but he seemed to be in a tough spot and threw Lily a hesitant glance.

Lily did not know what that was for. Seeing that her gaze was unusual, Alexander finally turned around. When he saw Edward's expression, he knew it was probably about something difficult to bring up.

Chapter 608

After some thought, Alexander turned to look at Lily and said, "Get in the car first."

Lily could tell they had something important to discuss. Considering Edward's expression, it should be something serious. She was not someone who would think in a way that Alexander and Edward could only privately talk because they treated her as an outsider.

Her gut feeling told her that what they were about to discuss was related to her, but since Alexander said nothing about it, he probably had his reasons for doing so. Hence, she did not refute and just nodded. "Okay."

She walked to the car, opened the door, and got inside. Then she watched them through the window. Edward was saying something, and Alexander was stunned by what he had heard. Then his expression turned solemn, but the most crucial thing was that he had glanced in Lily's direction.

Although Lily knew the car windows were tinted, and Alexander could not see her from the outside, she still avoided his gaze subconsciously, as if she had gotten caught peeking at them. Slowly, she looked up in their direction again. Alexander was still standing there, not moving or speaking. He appeared to be deep in thought.

The breeze rolled up the hem of his shirt. No matter where Alexander was, he would always be the best view to look at among all other things. It was just that Lily could feel the tension in the atmosphere, which made her feel slightly suffocated.

After a moment, they had probably finished talking or even concluded something. Alexander strode over to the car, with Edward following closely behind him.

Seeing that he was close, Lily moved to the side to give him space while he opened the door and got into the car immediately.

The cold wind outside blew into the car, making Lily shiver slightly. It was pretty cold. There was a throw in the car, and Alexander took it to cover Lily up before taking advantage of the situation to hold her hand.

Her hands were warm, and Alexander wrapped his palms around Lily's. His hands were much colder than hers, but he could still feel Lily's warmth on his palms.

Initially, he wanted to warm Lily's hands for her, but his hands were much colder than hers. He wanted to let go right away, but Lily held him back and asked him directly, "Do you have something to tell me?"

The two had been together for quite some time, so Lily knew Alexander well enough to understand his feelings.

Alexander stared deeply into her eyes, hesitant to speak. Lily had never seen such a look on him before this. He had always been straightforward in doing things. Seeing him like this only made her even more anxious. After a moment of silence, he finally told her. "Your grandfather passed away."

Lily could not believe what she had heard. "That's impossible! He was still fine the last time I went to visit him. Although he was not feeling, his immune system had always been strong. How could this..."

Alexander had expected Lily to be emotional. Holding her hands in his, he comforted her, "Calm down. I just got the news too. We'll go back right now, all right?"

Understanding what Lily wanted the most, he got Edward to drive them to the airport without hesitation.

Lily's mind was a mess. She could not accept the fact that her grandfather was gone. Many fragments of memories flashed in her mind; her grandfather had been stern to her ever since she was young, and she disliked him very much at one point.

When she saw him again after many years, she realized all those feelings had disappeared without her noticing it.

'I've lost my parents, and now I lost my grandfather too?'

Alexander said nothing and just hugged Lily tightly.