

Spoiled by Mr. Russell Chapter 700

Rose, Alexander's secretary, was growing impatient as she waited. Her boss remained calm, but she could not help asking, "Mr. Russell, why don't I call Lily and ask about her current location?"

It should be easy for the company to look up the employee's phone number. She would happily be the villain if her boss were unwilling to urge Lily.

Alexander replied calmly, "No need. Go outside to deal with it first. She'll be here soon."

Alexander had already made his point, so there was no use in her rushing.

While her superior seemed calm under pressure, she was anxious despite only being a subordinate.

Rose bit her lip, turned, and left.

Alexander finally pulled out his phone and looked at it, his eyes darkening.

When they parted ways, she claimed she needed time to gather "evidence." She added that it could take some time and she could be late, but she would be there eventually.

company with a satisfactory explanation. He trusted her and knew that if he

it was pointless to urge and when the clock's hand pointed to 6.55 p.m., indicating it would start in

He answered

you ask one of the company's employees to stall for some time? I-I'm but she approaching 7 p.m., and the situation here. Don't rush, and take your time. Where's the traffic jam? Do you want me to pick you asked in

if you came, we'd be stuck at both heard her say someone else was with her. He unclenched his fingers and said, "Okay. The company's staff will deal with the matters here. Take your time and more at ease after the call. She still needed to explain

there would be

