

Spoiled by Mr. Russell Chapter 767

"What happened to Benedict?" She frowned, but she was very concerned about this, "Didn't you say he disappeared? Has there been any news?"

Although she did not take Benedict seriously, he was still a direct descendant of her uncle. There was still recognition of him among upper management. Besides, he stayed in the company until he rebelled and left, and he also helped Derrick handle the company's affairs for some time.

Arianna probably would not have had any chance if it weren't for him insisting on working on wood carvings instead of running the business.

She, therefore, felt a little uneasy when she learned that there could be updates regarding him.

"Well," Eloise said, her face dignified, nodding slightly, "I heard Benedict passed away."

was so shocking that Arianna was speechless for a while before asking her mother, "Mom, is "Your father isn't very sure, so he hasn't said anything yet. However, your uncle's health has been awful for the past two days. I guess his time announce Benedict's death paced back and forth, unsure of what to do. If Benedict had and might not be able to take the pain. Once Derrick gave in, Joseph would officially take over the course, knew what was going on, "If your father takes over the company, then Damian's momentum will be even stronger.

By then...

Does Damian think he can succeed?" With a cold snort, she thought about it and then said, "Actually, you don't have to worry about Dad. He gave the sapphire prove that even if he can't let go of that wry smile, Eloise was clear about how Joseph felt, "Nevermind. I don't care about your father anymore. You and Nate are most important