

Ms. Doctor Divine

Chapter 26: Just Luck

Seeing Gu Zhenkang's expression, Madame Gu became worried instantly. She assumed that things had turned for the worse. Everyone knew that the Wang Family only had one son and if anything happened to him, the Gu Family would have to take full responsibility.

Thinking about this, she said with an annoyed expression on the face, "Your father should never have let you marry that businesswoman for the sake of her money. Our family has not experienced anything good since then. This girl should have died with that cheap mother of hers!"

5

Madame Gu looked rather furious, so she snapped harshly.

Hearing these words, Mrs. Gu would have burst into laughter but for the weird occasion. She was just about to add something when Gu Zhenkang shook his head. "Mom, that isn't the case."

"We did not offend the Wang Family. Instead, Officer Wang said that the hideous girl cured the little boy! He said that she was his child's savior!"

"They have kept her now at the mansion because Madame Wang likes her and wants her to stay with her for some time."

Gu Zhenkang continued with confusion in his voice. "I have no idea how that girl learned to cure people. She has always been stupid. How could she have developed such an ability?"

Mrs. Gu stiffened and her face turned pale in shock.

But Madame Gu saw the development in a different way. The fury on her face was gone in an instant. A bright smile lit her wrinkled face. "The Lin Family are merchants, but they have been involved in drugs and medicines. So, they are sure to have some medical knowledge. Her ancestors must have passed on some legacy to your late wife. I guess that she must have taught the girl something."

1

“ ”
... ”

“How lucky for us to be involved in something so wonderful.”

“ ”
... ”

“If the Wang Family thinks that she is their savior, we should treat her better in the future.”

3

Madame Gu announced with a smile.

She did not notice the weird expression on Gu Zhenkang's face.

Logically, he should have been happy about it, but he just felt that something was not right about the situation. Much to his frustration, he could not identify the problem. Had any of his other daughters done this, it would have made him feel very happy and honored. But not this one!

“She was just plain lucky!” Mrs. Gu mumbled, looking displeased.

“What did you say?” Gu Zhenkang stared at Mrs. Gu.

“Nothing...” Mrs. Gu mumbled. She did not dare to say it loudly.

“Repeat what you just said.” Gu Zhenkang looked intimidating.

Mrs. Gu spoke in a soft voice. “I mean, she was just, Old Master, what I mean is...”

Mrs. Gu was just about to explain herself when Gu Zhenkang smiled evilly.

He said with satisfaction in his eyes, “You are right, she was simply lucky this time around. Her mother knew almost nothing about medicine. Hence, she could not have given birth to a divine doctor!”

Mrs. Gu smiled in relief.

She still had some lingering fear about what just happened.

Gu Chaoyan had no idea what was going on in the Gu Mansion. She was wholly focussed on the unopened rock that she got from the store the other day.

The rock looked exactly the same as any other ordinary ones.

But Gu Chaoyan had a hunch that this one was somehow different.

Otherwise she would not have refused to open it at the store.

Gu Chaoyan was really curious to see what was inside.

Chapter 27: Magical Water

Gu Chaoyan exerted some force and the very next second, the rock cracked. She had been a hitman in her previous life, so she was definitely not weak. It was not too tough for her to crack open a stone.

9

She observed the broken rock carefully and noticed that there seemed to be a white light twinkling in it. This was indeed a different rock.

She was just about to study the pieces even more carefully, when she felt a sting arising in her finger. It seemed that she had ripped open her finger while exerting pressure and a drop of blood leaked onto the broken rock.

2

Suddenly, the white light disappeared in her hands, and the wound was cured. On close observation, she could see a tiny, faint light in the middle of her wounded finger. Gu Chaoyan's eyes widened. She was completely befuddled about what had taken place just now.

What was that?

2

She, who had been in precarious situations in the previous life and witnessed many peculiar things, was shell-shocked at this moment. This incident seemed to be nothing short of magic.

The cracked rock had fallen on the floor, looking like an ordinary stone now.

And her hands...

Gu Chaoyan paid attention to her palms and found that there was a drop of water on one of the fingertips.

That made Gu Chaoyan panic and exclaim loudly.

Qing, who had been outside the room, heard the noise and hurried in. "Miss, what is wrong?"

"Nothing! I just bumped into something. Go and rest." Gu Chaoyan answered with fake calmness.

After thinking over it for a while, she came up with an idea to test this water. Before going to bed, she took the water drop from her finger and put it into her tea. She drank it and fell asleep.

2

It was a peaceful night.

When she woke up, Gu Chaoyan felt completely refreshed.

Gu Chaoyan realized that her medical knowledge had grown overnight. Was it due to the water drop that her medical abilities had arisen by one level? She seemed to have stumbled onto something wonderful. This was fantastic!

2

Could this be the so-called Golden Finger?

Gu Chaoyan was smiling cheerfully when Qing said in a surprised voice, "Miss, you look a bit different today..."

"Different?" Gu Chaoyan raised her eyebrows.

Qing nodded seriously.

Since she did not like to see her current reflection, she hardly ever checked herself in the mirror. She hadn't done so this morning as well. But now that Qing mentioned a change in her appearance, Gu Chaoyan immediately thought of the water drop.

In the meanwhile, Qing was peering at her face seriously. "Miss, your skin has turned lighter and your face has a dewy freshness to it."

"Is that so?" Gu Chaoyan sounded cheerful.

She had planned to use a few herbs to lighten her skin. Combined with acupuncture and yoga to lose the weight, this was the future beauty regime that she had come up with.

But now that this waterdrop had unexpectedly landed in her hand, she was thrilled. It seemed to work better and faster than any medicine or herb. Didn't everyone like being pretty?

When Auntie Song, Madame Wang's servant, came there, she found the two of them to be in a good mood.

Auntie Song was an old employee of the Wang Family and had served as Madame Wang's servant for decades.

Since Gu Chaoyan was Tong's savior, she was extremely polite and respectful towards her. "Miss Chaoyan, Madame Wang has asked me to take you to breakfast."

It was these small gestures that made Gu Chaoyan feel good about Auntie Song.

Auntie Song had been with Madame Wang for years. She had met all kinds of people. But Miss Chaoyan was quite special. Despite being Tong's savior, she did not behave arrogantly and never tried to take advantage of this special identity.

Because of this attitude of hers, Auntie Song said involuntarily, "Miss Chaoyan."

"Yes?" Gu Chaoyan looked gentle and friendly, an expression she only showed to those who treated her well.

"I was quite surprised after I saw you. You are totally different from what the rumors claim. As someone who has eaten more salt than you, I would like to give you a suggestion. Miss Chaoyan, you will have to marry someone in the future. If you need help with it, Madame Wang can definitely help you. But, for that, you will have to clean up your public image, so that your future life can be smoother." Auntie Song took a pause at this point.

"Please don't be offended by what I said."

Gu Chaoyan looked at Auntie Song and smiled sincerely.

Her smile almost shocked Auntie Song. She suddenly found Miss Chaoyan to be extremely beautiful.

"I got it! Thank you for the suggestion."

Gu Chaoyan was aware of the rumors regarding her and she did not like her image being tarnished. But she was not worried about her marriage, because she never thought about getting hitched.

As for her being ugly, it was true for now, but she could turn pretty in the future. She could also stand being called a dumped woman because of the engagement being annulled. These comments didn't really bother her as much since none of this was her fault. But the shoplifting rumors were quite annoying, since that was something related to her morals!

The worst was that no one from Gu Mansion was bothered to rectify the rumor for her sake.

It wouldn't be a surprise if it was Gu Mansion who started the rumor in the first place.

Else, who would know what she did in the mansion. To make the matters worse, her cheap father kept complaining publicly about her being a shame to the family.

She was definitely going to find an opportunity to correct everything slowly.

"Here we are, Miss Chaoyan." Auntie Song said politely when she saw her lost in her thoughts.

Gu Chaoyan nodded and entered the room.

Since Officer Wang was a male, he left the place when Gu Chaoyan entered. Apart from Madame Wang, only Tong remained in there.

The child stood up at the sight of Gu Chaoyan.

He came up to Gu Chaoyan like a young adult. "Sister, are you the lady who saved me the other day?"

Gu Chaoyan nodded.

He smiled and took Gu Chaoyan's hands into his own. "Sister, thank you so much. Grandma told me that if you had not been there, I would still be suffering from great pain. I will repay this debt when I grow up."

Facing Tong who was so passionate, Gu Chaoyan felt a bit anxious. She had not been accustomed to interacting with many people in her previous life.

Now when she was facing Madame, Auntie Song and everyone else who was so kind to her, she had no idea how to react to the situation.

She flushed and her ears turned red.

Seeing her awkwardness, Qing came to her rescue. "Little Sir, if you want to thank my lady, I have a good suggestion for you."

Chapter 28: Suggestion

Translator: Henyee Translations Editor: Henyee Translations

It was these small gestures that made Gu Chaoyan feel good about Auntie Song.

Auntie Song had been with Madame Wang for years. She had met all kinds of people. But Miss Chaoyan was quite special. Despite being Tong's savior, she did not behave arrogantly and never tried to take advantage of this special identity.

Because of this attitude of hers, Auntie Song said involuntarily, "Miss Chaoyan."

"Yes?" Gu Chaoyan looked gentle and friendly, an expression she only showed to those who treated her well.

"I was quite surprised after I saw you. You are totally different from what the rumors claim. As someone who has eaten more salt than you, I would like to give you a suggestion. Miss Chaoyan, you will have to marry someone in the future. If you need help with it, Madame Wang can definitely help you. But, for that, you will have to clean up your public image, so that your future life can be smoother." Auntie Song took a pause at this point.

"Please don't be offended by what I said."

Gu Chaoyan looked at Auntie Song and smiled sincerely.

Her smile almost shocked Auntie Song. She suddenly found Miss Chaoyan to be extremely beautiful.

"I got it! Thank you for the suggestion."

Gu Chaoyan was aware of the rumors regarding her and she did not like her image being tarnished. But she was not worried about her marriage, because she never thought about getting hitched.

As for her being ugly, it was true for now, but she could turn pretty in the future. She could also stand being called a dumped woman because of the engagement being annulled. These comments didn't really bother her as much since none of this was her fault. But the shoplifting rumors were quite annoying, since that was something related to her morals!

The worst was that no one from Gu Mansion was bothered to rectify the rumor for her sake.

It wouldn't be a surprise if it was Gu Mansion who started the rumor in the first place.

Else, who would know what she did in the mansion. To make the matters worse, her cheap father kept complaining publicly about her being a shame to the family.

She was definitely going to find an opportunity to correct everything slowly.

"Here we are, Miss Chaoyan." Auntie Song said politely when she saw her lost in her thoughts.

Gu Chaoyan nodded and entered the room.

Since Officer Wang was a male, he left the place when Gu Chaoyan entered. Apart from Madame Wang, only Tong remained in there.

The child stood up at the sight of Gu Chaoyan.

He came up to Gu Chaoyan like a young adult. "Sister, are you the lady who saved me the other day?"

Gu Chaoyan nodded.

He smiled and took Gu Chaoyan's hands into his own. "Sister, thank you so much. Grandma told me that if you had not been there, I would still be suffering from great pain. I will repay this debt when I grow up."

Facing Tong who was so passionate, Gu Chaoyan felt a bit anxious. She had not been accustomed to interacting with many people in her previous life.

Now when she was facing Madame, Auntie Song and everyone else who was so kind to her, she had no idea how to react to the situation.

She flushed and her ears turned red.

Seeing her awkwardness, Qing came to her rescue. "Little Sir, if you want to thank my lady, I have a good suggestion for you."

Chapter 29: Back To The Mansion

"When you have the money, buy a salt-pickled chicken for my miss. Then she will be very happy." Qing replied in a serious tone.

Haha.

Everyone in the room burst into laughter.

Gu Chaoyan threw a helpless glare at Qing. It was a terrible idea! The worst ever! Since when she did like salt-pickled chicken?!

Gu Chaoyan went completely red with embarrassment.

Madame Wang was laughing but stopped when she saw Gu Chaoyan blushing with mortification. "Tong, will you remember that?"

"Yes, I will, Grandma!" Tong answered in a serious tone.

Gu Chaoyan wished that she could go under the ground at this moment.

Thankfully, the Wang Family members had good manners. They did not talk at the food table or chat when in slumber.

No one mentioned the salt-pickled chicken matter any more.

Madame Wang was still worried about Tong's physical condition, so she asked Gu Chaoyan to take another look at him post breakfast.

Gu Chaoyan felt his pulse and said with complete assurance, "He is fine. His complexion is looking healthier. The disease seems to have been flushed out completely. He has not regained his health due to the constant sickness during the past few years. I will prescribe one more portion of medicine for him to partake."

As she was talking, Gu Chaoyan started to scribble on the paper.

She had a great command on calligraphy. This was because in her previous life, she had practised writing with brush for a certain period of time.

Madame Wang nodded in satisfaction as she watched her write the prescription.

She sighed inwardly – rumor was, after all a rumor. The real person was quite different from what those stories had claimed.

Madame Wang did not actively seek gossip, but there had been too many rumors about Gu Chaoyan for her to not be aware of them. That was why she let out a sigh inside her heart at this point.

She took a look at the prescription.

Madame Wang felt that the prescription Gu Chaoyan offered was quite different from the ones given by the other doctors.

Some items inside the prescription startled Madame Wang. “Isn’t carrot a vegetable? Why is it included in the prescription?”

Gu Chaoyan replied with a smile. “My prescription is more than for just medical purposes. Medicines, after all, can be quite harmful. What Tong needs right now are some supplementary things to strengthen his body. Items like ginseng might be too strong for a young boy like him. That is why I have used carrots instead. Carrots might look like an ordinary food item, yet they work well for the intestines.”

Madame Wang nodded in understanding.

Her words sounded strange, but she trusted her. After all, only Gu Chaoyan had managed to save her grandson.

Hence, she had faith in the prescription she had given.

After following the prescription for a while, Tong started to improve.

Gu Chaoyan finally left the Wang Mansion and returned to Gu Mansion.

Madame Wang had hoped that she could stay for some more days but Gu Chaoyan insisted on leaving.

Madame Wang had no other choice but to let Auntie Song accompany her back. She also stressed repeatedly that Gu Chaoyan should visit her soon in the future.

Gu Chaoyan left from there before lunch.

On the way home, she bought some medicinal items.

As they reached Gu Mansion, Chen Fu was waiting at the doorstep. Seeing the wagon approach, he came up to them and spoke in a flattering tone. "Eldest Miss is here! Madame Gu didn't know when you were coming home, so she asked me to wait for you here. She has asked you to come to the front yard."

Madame Gu? She had never cared about her, but now she wanted to see her?

1

She took a look at Auntie Song standing next to her.

Gu Chaoyan had no intention of getting the Wang Family involved in her family affairs.

"Auntie Song, just leave my luggage here to be sent to the Qiong Pavilion. Since Madame Gu is expecting me, I can't take you to my yard right now." Gu Chaoyan said with courtesy.

Chen Fu got a bit anxious. He was waiting here because the Gu Family wanted to be introduced to the Wang Family's representative.

Chapter 30: Change

Chen Fu was just about to speak up when Auntie Song started instructing the servants to bring out the gifts from the wagon. She said to Gu Chaoyan, "Miss, Tong and Madame Wang adore you deeply. Please come and visit us whenever you have time."

Gu Chaoyan replied politely and then entered the mansion.

Seeing Gu Chaoyan's figure move further away, Auntie Song found herself liking the girl more. She had not shown any arrogance because of her status as Tong's savior. Even at her own home, she did not intend to show off the Wang's gratitude towards her.

But Chen Fu did not like how the matters were unfolding.

He thought that the Miss was so stupid that she did not even understand that the Wang family's representative should be invited to speak with Madame Gu.

Instead, she drove the guest away!

1

He would like to see how an idiot like her would face the Gu Family now.

As they came to the front yard, she noticed that everything looked the same. The begonias were still blooming. Many servants were busy taking great care of the flowers because Gu Ruxue loved them. But there were a few subtle differences. Those servants, who used to display arrogance and curse at her or kick her, were completely silent in front of Gu Chaoyan now.

Gu Chaoyan smiled briefly. She was quite satisfied with these miniscule changes.

Her life's direction was slowly but surely beginning to shift.

"Here is our Chaoyan." Madame Gu was seated in the middle seat. Her aged face was stretched into an affable smile.

But for the memory in Chaoyan's mind, she would have assumed that Madame Gu was a friendly person...

"Greetings, Madame Gu and Father." Chaoyan said politely. She stood there calmly, sounding distant.

Madame Gu frowned, feeling a bit displeased.

All children of the Gu Family would try and flatter her everytime they saw her.

But Gu Chaoyan was clearly not one of them.

Due to her relationship with the Wang Family, Madame Gu did not show her dissatisfaction. Instead of frowning, she maintained her friendly expression and beckoned Chaoyan closer. "Come to me, Chaoyan."

Gu Chaoyan did not feel like complying with her command but after a moment of hesitation, she still did as Madame Gu said.

In this era, as a woman, she was on a backfoot. Although she was under the protection of the Wang Family, she still didn't have a strong background to go up against the whole Gu Family. So, she had to seek protection from Madame Gu at this moment.

Madame Gu was a woman who only cared about profits and her own interests.

Anyone who could bring benefits to Madame Gu, would get protection and preference from her.

"Grandma." Chaoyan said softly. Although she looked a bit indifferent, she still called her by her title. Madame Gu smiled brightly and patted Gu Chaoyan's hands. "Good, good, you have worked hard at the Wang Family. I have asked the servant to clear up a new yard for you. You can move in today itself."

That surprised Chaoyan.

She had not expected that the Wang Family was so important in the Gu Family's eyes. Just because she had some connection with the Wang Family, she was being given a new residence?

But...