Chapter 9: What Are You Doing Here?

Hence, she was curious to know what Lord Huai's personality was like.

"Of course I do." Qing answered without hesitation. She barely went out and didn't have much knowledge about the other lords.

But she knew enough about Lord Huai.

"Lord Huai is the most beloved child of the King and the Queen. He gained his title at the age of eight. The King has many children, but he is the most cherished one. Everyone hopes to have some link with Lord Huai. All the girls in the Capital want to marry him. But..."

2

Qing glanced around cautiously, making sure no one was within sight.

She lowered her voice to a whisper. "Lord Huai doesn't have a good temperament. As per the rumours, he is irritable and ruthless. Miss Wang of the Wang Family got one of her arms chopped off just because she irritated him. The son of some officer was almost crippled by him, as well. I have heard that tons of dead bodies are often carried out of Lord Huai's Mansion, and those are just the servants beaten to death by him."

Speaking these words, Qing shivered in fear. "Miss, don't even think about Lord Huai, else you might die a terrible death!"

The man Qing talked about seemed to be like a frightening Shura.

But she had met many people in her life. As far as she could tell, Lord Huai did not seem like an irritable man but a calm and rational one.

Gu Chaoyan rolled her eyes at her. She did not buy the exaggerated story that Qing told her. Hearsay was always distorted to a large extent.

Didn't the original host suffer from it, as well. She had never stolen anything but as per the rumor, she was an established thief. It was said that she even stole from the servants. In her case, it was most probably malicious gossip made up by her stepmother and sisters.

3

Gu Chaoyan rolled her eyes. Rumour was easier created than clarified.

3

Thinking of clearing her name in the future, she found that she had quite a lot of stuff to do.

But first, she needed to become healthy again.

At this point, the key thing was that her stomach was caving in. She looked at Qing with a begging look on her face. "Qing, I am starving."

Qing jerked up in surprise. "Oh Miss, you haven't eaten anything yet, right? I will go and get the lunch box from the kitchen."

She hurried off as if she did not want to see Gu Chaoyan suffering from starvation for a single more second.

Seeing Qing leave, Gu Chaoyan closed her eyes and crashed on the bed. With her eyes shut, she thought about her little maid. She might be a watering pot, but was indeed a nice person.

She was feeling a bit too tired from today's events, and soon she dozed off.

The sunlight was quite warm. Gu Chaoyan smiled in her sleep.

It was not until she heard someone throwing stones at her windows, did she get up.

Who was that?

The move and air of that person did not seem like Qing.

She would never dare to throw stones at the window. It wasn't any of the sisters as well. If they intended to give her a hard time, they would always do it in public. Was it one of those annoying servants pulling a prank?

When she thought about this, Gu Chaoyan picked up one of the broken cups from the table.

The moment she opened the window, she threw the cup with full strength.

Unexpectedly...

She did not hear the sound of the cup hitting the floor. Nor did she hear anyone getting hit on the head. So, Gu Chaoyan craned her neck out.

A young man, dressed in white, greeted her with a smile.

Maniac!

That was what Gu Chaoyan thought when she saw the man.

1

Zhou Huaijin was holding the broken cup in his hand, and a sinister smile hovered over his handsome face. "Come out!"

Lord Huai was indeed a maniac. Gu Chaoyan was sure about that now!

Gu Chaoyan put the blanket over her body, looking alert. Although she knew that she was chubby and not pretty looking, if Lord Huai had a fetish for such girls, she might be in danger.

1

After all, he came looking for her at the Qiong Pavilion. Was he interested in her body? Gu Chaoyan put the blanket further over her head as she thought about this.

2

Seeing her staying in and having such a lovely reaction, Zhou Huaijin burst into laughter.

He came to this place only because he was curious to see whether this lady, who had recently been ditched, would commit suicide after the incident.

Unexpectedly, she still lived on.

3

She was even able to sleep at such a rotten place which even beggars would not like. Her mindset must be quite strong.

As Lord Huai thought about this, he walked straight in, forthrightly.

Seeing this man walking into her place without permission, Gu Chaoyan snapped at him. "Unexpectedly, the famously respectful Lord Huai is actually a 'girl snatcher' who invades people's privacy!"

Haha.

Zhou Huaijin sized up the house and said, "This is a girl's home? Honestly, even vagrants would not want to live here."

Then he put the cup on the table and had just withdrawn his hand when the table collapsed. But Zhou Huaijin was fast enough to catch the broken cup.

The smile disappeared from his face. "Is this how Gu Zhenkang is treating his eldest daughter?"

Gu Chaoyan snorted. "What a hypocritical man!"

Zhou Huaijin smiled. "What an ignorant woman!"

Zhou Huaijin suddenly fell into deep contemplation. A long while later, his eyes brightened as if he had just thought of something brilliant. "There is one thing that can change your life instantly, and make the Gu Family regret having treated you like this."

He looked supremely confident.

"What is it?" Gu Chaoyan asked nonchalantly. She did not think that a noble man like Zhou Huaijin would have any practical solutions to offer.

"You can marry me!" Zhou Huaijin said happily.

2

Haha...

Gu Chaoyan would have spat out water upon his face, if she was drinking it at this moment.

What kind of a suggestion was this?

Gu Chaoyan's face was full of disapproval.

Seeing her reaction, Zhou Huaijin tried to convince her. "Just think about it. If you marry me, you will become the Princess Consort of Lord Huai. You can enjoy a good life, and everyone from the Gu Family would need to bow to you!"

He patted Gu Chaoyan's shoulders. "How does that sound? Indeed a good idea, right? Let's shake on it, then!"

Gu Chaoyan rolled her eyes at him.

What a weirdo!

He said he wanted to marry a woman who was hideous, tanned, useless and freshly dumped?

4

Gu Chaoyan gave him a kick and moved away from him. "Not good at all!"
