Before Hannah could finish her words, a familiar voice rang in surprise. Glancing past Lana and toward the direction of the voice, she saw Kevin walking with Melissa. Upon seeing that tall, slender figure with fair, rosy skin wrapped in a mauve laced dress, Kevin was not sure if it was Hannah. She styled her hair elegantly and held a shining silver sequined handbag. Only when she turned and revealed her face did he confirm his guess was correct. As soon as he confirmed that it was Hannah, he pulled out his arm from Melissa's hand and strode toward her.

"Kevin!" Immediately, Melissa came to her senses and became anxious when she saw Kevin leave her behind to approach Hannah. Without hesitating, she chased after him hurriedly. "Mr. Byrne, we meet again. Congratulations to—"you. Before she finished her sentence, Kevin had passed through the crowd and stopped in front of her. Then, he reached out and grabbed her wrist. While taking her out of the banquet hall, he said, "Hannah, come with me, I have something to tell—"you. Similarly, before Kevin could say the last word, Hannah used all her strength to get rid of Kevin's grip. While the crowd was still stunned, she looked at him in the eyes and criticized him with a wry grin, "Mr. Byrne, today is your engagement ceremony with Melissa. Take your hands off me!" "Hannah, I know it's my fault back then, but,"

"I'm sorry, I need to go to the bathroom. Please excuse me." Once again, Hannah cut him short and turned to leave. His brows furrowed. A second later, he ran after her. "Kevin!"

When Melissa tried to chase after them, she was stopped by Lana, who pulled her back and advised, "Mel, Kevin and your sister are good friends. Since they haven't seen each other for a long time, they must have a lot to say to each other. Today is your engagement ceremony, so you shouldn't misbehave. Be considerate to your sister, understand?" "But Mom..." "Alright come with me." With that, Lana brought Melissa out of the banquet hall and went to the lounge as everyone watched them. "Mr. Porter, what's going on?" Seeing that Hannah left without informing them, Davis was about to lose his temper, but when he saw Kevin's mother, Caroline Craft, coming over, the anger on his face immediately subsided. Then, he smiled and comforted, "Caroline, don't worry, the kids are just messing around. Everything will be fine soon." After glancing at the crowd and the few that left one after another, Caroline smiled lightly. In order not to make the Byrne family a fool in front of everyone, she didn't ask more questions and just nodded. Maintaining the graceful arc on her lips, she turned to entertain the guests. Walking out of the banquet hall, Hannah clearly knew that Kevin was following her, and she knew that if she did not make it clear to him today, he would pester her again when they met next time. Therefore, she suddenly stopped and turned back. Without beating around the bush, she asked, "Mr. Byrne, why do you keep following me?" "Hannah.." Gazing at her, Kevin wanted to say something, but he hesitated. After checking the surrounding, he suddenly stepped forward and grabbed her wrist. As he dragged her toward the VIP lounge, he urged, "Come with me!" Frowning, Hannah tried a few times to shake his hand off, but she failed.

After several attempts, she gave up. Since she hadn't got the chance to make it clear to him back then, she might as well take this opportunity to tell him everything at once. As Lana and Melissa chased after them and saw them disappear into the VIP lounge hand in hand, they almost blew a gasket. "Mom, look at that b*tch!"

"Don't worry. You're the one getting engaged with Kevin, and you're the daughter-in-law that Caroline wants." Lana's face was full of anger and disdain as she chided, "She'll never be with Kevin! The fact that she has given birth to a child for another man makes it impossible for the Byrne family to accept her." Gritting her teeth, Melissa cursed, "I must teach that bitch a good lesson, and I'll scratch her seductive face."

When Kevin brought Hannah into the VIP lounge, he slammed the door behind him. But even after locking the door, he did not let go of her wrist. Annoyed, Hannah used all her strength to fling his hand away. At first, Kevin stared at Hannah in shock, but he soon calmed down and asked her softly, "Ana, where have you been all these years?"

Amused by his reactions, Hannah couldn't help but chuckle and asked instead of answering, "Has no one ever told you where I went these years?"

"Your family told me." As Kevin went over and stretched out his hands, he tried to hold Hannah's shoulder. But as soon as Hannah noticed that, she stepped back. Unfortunately, her lower back hit the corner of the cabinet by accident, and the pain made her grimace. "Are you alright?" "I'm fine. Don't come over!" Before Kevin could finish expressing his concern, Hannah immediately stopped him from approaching. Enduring the pain in her lower back, she asked, "What did they say?" Afraid that Hannah would hurt herself again, Kevin dared not go any nearer. Standing two steps away from her, he gazed at her and replied, "They said that you took the child with you as soon as you gave birth and ran away with that man. They also said that you cut off all ties with them. In order to protect the Porter family's reputation, your father told the public that you were only going abroad to study." Hearing Kevin's words, Hannah thought it funny, so funny that she burst into tears while laughing. What kind of father he was?

For his and his other daughter's sake, he did not hesitate to ruin her life.

"Do you believe it?" Seeing that Hannah shed tears without a sign, Kevin felt a sudden quiver in his heart. At that moment, his heart sank into chaos, and he no longer cared about anything else. Stepping forward, he stretched out his hands to hold her shoulders and asked, "Ana, tell me that it's not true. You didn't willingly give birth to a child for another man, and you didn't run away with him. Tell me!" Resonating with the agony and affection in his eyes, Hannah closed her eyes and raised her head to force back the tears that had not flowed down. After a moment, she opened her eyes with a smirk at the corner of her mouth. Word by word, she clearly stated, "They are right. I gave birth to a child for another man and ran away with him."

As if she was a different person from before, Kevin stared at her and shook his head. "No, I don't believe it. If you ran away with that man, why did you come back now?" "Because I was abandoned. I was driven into a corner and was desperate, so I came back to destroy your relationship with Melissa, to seduce you!" Hannah chuckled casually, but that chuckle gave out an unprecedented charm. "You really still have feelings for me, don't you? As soon as I appear, you can't take your eyes off of me. In that case, why don't we get engaged today?" As Kevin laid his eyes on Hannah, he frowned and uttered, "Hannah, you..." "What's wrong? You don't want to?" Hannah continued to smile insincerely. "Since you're not willing, let go of me, and please don't pester me again." As soon as she finished speaking, she forcefully flung away Kevin's hands and strode past him. Standing still with his eyebrows tightly knitted, Kevin appeared indescribably complicated and serious. Only when the door behind him opened and then closed again with a "bang" did he finally turn around, but all he saw was the closed door. In the air, Hannah's scent seemed to be lingering.
