

Chapter 247 Did Poor People Deserve Starbucks Coffee

Keanu was confused, but he dared not disobey his sister's order, so he had to go to Starbucks.

When he went to table 16, he was taken aback.

Jeanne was not there. Instead, there was Trevor, the guy who injured him and got him expelled from school.

Keanu gnashed his teeth together, hoping it would help keep down the boiling anger inside of him.

It turned out that his sister wanted him to apologize to Trevor.

Was there a misunderstanding? Trevor was just a nobody.

This penniless reject wanted him to apologize? Keanu of course did not want to make an apology to Trevor.

Annoyed and almost blind with fury, Keanu decided to provoke Trevor, completely ignoring what his sister told him.

He walked up to him and started his barrage of insults.

"Hey, loser. What are you doing here? Are you lost? And is that somebody's leftover coffee you're drinking just to show everyone you can afford a cup of Starbucks coffee?"

Trevor was enjoying his coffee and the scenery outside when Keanu showed up.

His face instantly darkened the moment the Keanu started badmouthing him.

Jeanne had already apologized sincerely on behalf of her brother, and that was the only reason Trevor dropped the idea of getting back at Keanu.

Although he half-expected it, Trevor was still surprised that Keanu had come to mock him in public despite his sister's efforts to mend fences.

Trevor narrowed his eyes at Keanu and said, "It's funny that you're calling me a loser when you're the one who got expelled after day one of attending school. That must be some kind of world record."

With that, Keanu realized that he had become a laughing stock. His building rage threatened to control him.

The two started a heated argument in the middle of the coffee shop.

At the moment, Jeanne just came out of the bathroom.

She washed her hands after using the facilities, walked out, and returned to table 16.

On her way out, she was hopeful that Keanu would apologize to Trevor and everything would be all right.

But when she saw what was happening at their table, she was stunned.

She had almost begged her brother on her hands and knees to apologize to Trevor. She thought they were on the same page.

As it turned out, Keanu had no intention of telling Trevor he was sorry.

And now, he was here, insulting the person he offended in front of a bunch of strangers in a Starbucks.

Jeanne felt her heart sear with rage.

Keanu was being arrogant and impulsive again.

How could her brother be so stupid? He was really good for nothing!

Keanu saw his sister approaching, but he did not notice how pissed off she was. He even shouted, "I don't know what you've done to my sister to make her make me apologize to you. But I do know that you will be severely punished if you hurt her in any way."

With a wolf-like smile on Keanu's face, he continued assaulting Trevor verbally.

"My sister works for the Sanderson family. Your surname may be Sanderson, too, but there's no way you're connected to the wealthy and powerful Sandersons. None of them would touch you with a ten-foot pole." ③

Hearing this, Jeanne began to panic.

She cursed under her breath, unable to believe the amount of idiocy her brother was publicly showcasing. Until now, Keanu had not figured out that Trevor was a member of the wealthy and powerful Sanderson family. But Jeanne's hands were tied. Trevor ordered her not to reveal his true identity.

Jeanne found herself in a dilemma. She did not know how to bail her brother out without telling the truth about Trevor.

Feeling that she was out of options, Jeanne stepped forward and slapped her brother hard. ①

Slap!

Shocked, Keanu put his hand over his burning cheek and turned to look at his sister. "Jeanne, why did you hit me?"

Jeanne did not even look at him. Instead, she bowed to Trevor and started apologizing in a cracked voice.

"Trevor... I'm really, really sorry."

Trevor only nodded with a straight face.

He did not bother to say anything more. He just picked up his coffee and prepared to leave.

Trevor had roughly guessed what happened.

Jeanne asked Keanu to apologize to him to improve their relationship, but Keanu, being the cocky loose cannon that he was, just came to pick a fight.

Trevor could not help wondering how a capable person like Jeanne could have such a throwaway of a sibling.

Trevor shook his head as he exited the coffee shop.

Now left alone at the table, Jeanne and Keanu faced each other like rival gangs in a standoff. Keanu still had his hand over his face. "Why the hell are you trying to push me around for some nameless dud? Since when are you easily manipulated by guys? Our parents have never hit me since I was a child, but now you hit me for an outsider? I don't understand, Jeanne!"

Looking at the ridiculous accusatory look on her brother's face, Jeanne balled her hands into fists.

Then, she slapped Keanu hard across the face again. ⓘ

When she was about to slap him for the third time, Jeanne exhaled loudly and then let her hand fall.

She rubbed her temples and said tiredly, "Just go abroad and study there, Keanu, and don't you ever come back."