

My Villainous Wife

Chapter 151 - Kidnapped

When Yan Xiaoran went back to the car, she made sure to secure her safety belt and looked at the backseat where a small child was sitting with her eyes closed.

Since it was her and Alexander's decision to adopt her to their family, Yan Xiaoran wanted to keep her eyes on the child for as long as she could. The danger surrounding her would be bad for the child and she thought that there might be someone out there who will look for the child.

Of course, it was all her speculation. However, Yan Xiaoran lived her life as if her life was at stake wherever she was hence, the act of being too cautious and wary of everything was never a new thing to her.

She drove her car for a while but she didn't go back to where they currently lived in. Yan Xiaoran instead drove her car towards a restaurant in the city. It wasn't a well-known restaurant and there doesn't seem to be customers eating inside when she stepped in.

The bell rang when she opened the door and the woman behind the counter uninterestedly looked up at her before looking down.

Yan Xiaoran didn't care being ignored as she walked to the counter with the child in her arms. "Can I get a Candy Pop?"

The woman behind the counter paused and finally looked up. A smile bloomed on her lips and she stood up from her seat. If anyone else were to hear what Yan Xiaoran said to the lady, they would probably look at her as if she had lost her mind as there was no candy pop sold in the restaurant.

"Of course," said the cashier as she stepped put from the counter and led Yan Xiaoran to the kitchen.

Both of them didn't say anything to each other and only walked in silence. The 'Pa' sound coming from the knife hitting the chopping and other kitchen related noises became their background music. Then, the cashier stopped in front of a refrigerator.

"You can use your card to get in." The cashier said before reaching her hand out, "I'm Samantha Lin."

Yan Xiaoran took her hand and smiled, "Xiaoran."

Samantha didn't stay there and walked back to the front of the restaurant to look after it while no customers came.

Although she looked calm outside, Samantha released her breath when she came out of the kitchen. She was a cashier lady when normal customers came around but when some extraordinary people came to her, she was the guide to the back door where she will lead them to the refrigerator.

Of course, the refrigerator wasn't an ordinary one. It was a secret door to the elevator that will lead the exclusive people to wherever it leads them. Samantha didn't have the position to know more than that and only knew of the existence of the secret door. She didn't even know what kind of card these people used or how will this door lead the people to the place they wanted.

The only thing she knew was to never disclose this secret and betray her work or else, it wouldn't be an understatement if she suddenly disappeared from the surface of the earth.

But who was that lady? She even brought her child with her? Samantha found Yan Xiaoran mysterious. Such a beautiful lady could actually enter that door and knew of the secret pass code 'Candy Pop'. In any case, Samantha knew that she wasn't ordinary just as no one from the kitchen were your typical normal chefs and kitchen staff.

"If only the pay here wasn't so high, I wouldn't be here." Samantha sighed although she wasn't really complaining.

What was there to complain anyway?

She could both get a higher pay than a normal employee from a famous company, and at the same she could laze around and do just about anything when there's no customers.

Inside the kitchen, the hot steam from the boiling hot water made Yan Xiaoran sweat a little. Looking down at the little girl in her arms, she became worried that she would feel that it was too stuffy inside there so she didn't dally anymore and pressed her palms flat on the handle of the refrigerator.

What Samantha didn't know was that there was no card to be used to open the secret door. Everyone who was a member of the organization has to register their fingerprints, eyes, and face to open the door. The staff who hired Samantha only said that to her so that she wouldn't be able to know how to really open the door and to avoid any betrayal to happen.

A blue light came out from the handle and started to scan Yan Xiaoran's fingerprints. As Yan Xiaoran was the lady boss of the organization, she didn't need to let the system scan her eyes and face.

Before long, the door of the refrigerator produced a faint click sound and it opened. Yan Xiaoran stepped inside the elevator and pressed the button to the lowest floor.

Compared to how a surface building worked where the office of the person at the highest position would be at the top floor, the organization decided to do the opposite. Yan Xiaoran's office was at the bottom most of the underground basement that has 15 floors.

While waiting for the lift to take her to the first floor where her office was, Yan Xiaoran rubbed the head of the sleeping child in her arms and a doting light flashed in her eyes.

"Even though we're going somewhere dangerous, you're still sleeping so soundly." Yan Xiaoran laughed and wanted to pinch the child's cheeks. However, because she was afraid that little Koala would wake up, she fought the urge to do that.

'Ding!'

The last ring of the elevator bell sounded and the door parted to reveal a long hallway painted in white. Aside from that, a man in a suit stood before the elevator with a welcoming smile on his lips.

However, his smile paused awkwardly as he stared at the child in her arms.

"Boss... you kidnapped a child?"
