

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 1194

Chapter 1194

When Ninian heard that, she also smiled.

No wonder her best friend, Nerola, had said that Amber was an agent with very good judgment as she had a precise and sharp judgment on people , and she indeed was.

“Since you’ve made a long-term decision , then I’ll re plan your career,” Amber said, “You said The Everett will give you some resources , so I’ll just communicate with Mr. Barnes. We will cooperate to put you on top. I also hope you’d work harder in order to be good enough for glory in the future.”

“Please rest assured.” Ninian smiled and said.

She was willing to put in 100% hard work, even if it was to be a better match with Everett in her accomplishment.

Her communication with Amber went very well. After Amber hung up, she started arranging Ninian's work.

Ninian did not put down her phone. Instead, she logged into Twitter.

Since she started acting, Amber had registered an official account on Twitter for her, but she never once logged in to that account. If the fans had not reminded her, she had nearly forgotten about it.

Everett said that her name was banned on Twitter, and her popularity was very low, so she would not easily appear on the trending list. This had been done by Harold in order to protect her.

Ninian initially thought that she did not have many fans, but unexpectedly when she clicked into the account, she saw that she had three million fans.

There were even some specific topics about her, and fans checked in under the topics every day.

(Never forget Ninian, our wait will be rewarded. It's another morning. Good morning, Ninian.)

(Elliot White in the cloud, longing can never stop.)

(Ninian, the weather turns cold today. Wear more clothes and stay warm!)

Elliot White was her role in "In Full Bloom".

When she scrolled through the beautiful poems, encouraging messages, and caring messages, her heart was filled with warmth.

She never posted on Twitter, so there was still the initial message on her personal page, which was to welcome her to join Twitter.

But there were also about five thousand comments under that kind of official post.

Ninian was extremely surprised. She did not expect that in spite of her never managing the account nor showing up in public, she would still have this many fans.

After she logged out of the page, she sent an inquiry message to Amber. It was only after she confirmed she could post on Twitter that she started editing.

What should she write?

Ninian struggled for a while before she started typing. [It's Ninian: I wish you happiness and safety every day and night.] This was a blessing. It was appropriate , so there should not be a big problem if this was posted.

Besides, most importantly, she did not have too many fans now, so she felt rest assured. After she posted it, she just logged out of Twitter.

Although she was acting, she also did not neglect the homework given by her school. After she finished doing all the homework given by her teacher, it was already midnight.

Ninian slept soundly and did not know that a big storm had started on Twitter.

The next day, Ninian was woken up by Nerola and Lana who knocked on her door at the same time.

“Ninian! Why are you still sleeping? Something serious happened!”

“Boom! Twitter is in chaos now!”

Ninian opened her eyes dazedly, got off the bed, and looked at the two of them with sleepy eyes. She innocently asked, happened?” “Why is your phone off? Amber said she can’t contact you and asked us to check on you.” Lana chattered for a while before she immediately said, “Do you know you’re trending on Twitter? Twitter is in chaos now!”

“What

“What?” Ninian reacted with hindsight, and her expression instantly changed. “Huh? Trending? I’m doomed!”

She speedily went back and took out her phone. She cast a glance at it. It was out of battery and was shut down.

“You can check with mine.” Nerola passed her phone to Ninian before she said, “Don’t panic first. Precisely, it’s not you who is trending. It's The Everett who is on the trending list.”

Ninian took over the phone, clicked into it, and took a look. Then, she was stunned.