

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 1196

Chapter 1196 Nerola was not the only one worried. Lana thought about it too.

She frowned slightly and asked, "What does Everett want? How should we wrap this up?"

Ninian cast a glance at them to comfort them.

She believed that Everett would not be reckless.

When she answered the call, she said, "Hello."

"Baby, are you awake?"

Everett's deep and melodious voice came from the other end of the call, which was extremely pleasing to the ears.

Nerola and Lana had been speaking righteously, but they instantly looked like fangirls at that moment. Their eyes shone brightly as they stared at the phone and flashed Ninian a motherly smile.

Ninian was speechless. These women were immoral! She turned around, hummed obediently, and said, “How did you know I was sleeping? Did you call me?”

“Yeah, I did, but your phone was off, so I did some checking,” Everett said in a relaxed manner, but Ninian could guess that he must have been very nervous at that time. He must have only calmed down after he discovered why her phone was off.

He must have also been paying attention to her movements constantly. Hence, he only called over the moment her phone was turned on.

“Good morning, Everett,” Ninian said sweetly. Her voice was as soft as a marshmallow.

Everett chuckled. “Good morning, Baby.” After he said that, he asked, “Do you know about the incident on Twitter?”

Ninian pretended to be confused. “What is that? I have no idea. Did you do something wrong to me behind my back?”

“Naughty girl.” Everett felt a little helpless and just said, “I followed you there. I only realized that this has stirred up some public opinion after Zayn came to me.”

Nerola and Lana silently rolled their eyes at the side.

Come on, Everett , was that some public opinion? It was equivalent to an investigation on Ninian’s family background!

If she had just been an ordinary actress, she would have been torn apart.

“Oh,” Ninian answered. “Do you have a solution? Do George and Alden know about this?”

Everett said, “Don’t worry, they don’t know. About Twitter, I’ve already gotten Zayn to handle it.”

Ninian raised her eyebrows and curiously said, “I’ll go and check it out. Hang on.”

She logged in to Twitter using Nerola's phone and surprisingly found that the trend of [Everett's latest attention) had dropped to second place. The top trend was now (Full cast of "In Full Bloom" is revealed).

When she clicked the link, it brought her to an official announcement about the cast, including the important supporting actors, on Twitter. At the same time, a few important supporting actors also followed each other. Ninian, whom Everett followed, was just one of them. He also followed another female lead and the important second male lead.

Below that, the marketing accounts and ghostwriters tried to change public opinion. They pushed their personal gossip into the crew's official announcement as all kinds of publicity.

The fans who had initially gone after Ninian were led in another direction.

(The bee from the Craig family: I knew it! It has to be a publicity stunt! How can Everett be in a relationship?)

[Miss Craig: Is this Ninian Winters from the royal family?

Not only did the crew change the script massively and add more scenes for her, but they even pushed her out to extort us!)

[Ninian is lovely: What royal family? Poor Ninian! She's just a junior actress without a strong background. She was even attacked by the netizens ten minutes ago!)

(There will be rewards if you don't forget Ninian: Come on. Since we're already at this stage, let's give her a little promotion.

[Check out Ninian's beautiful pictures!)