

My Wife Is A Secret Assassin

Chapter 10: Really Surprised

"It's okay, falling sick was totally worth it."

She didn't understand what he meant, "Why was it worth it?"

Chance smiled at how she didn't understand that she coming over here for him and showing concern for him was made it worth it.

"I can rest more now." He lied and she bought it.

The two started having breakfast.

"Till when are you here?" Chance asked her while having a bite.

"I have an early morning flight tomorrow."

"So soon" Chance got sad to know he has less than twenty-four hours with her.

She smiled seeing him upset, "Till when are you here?"

"For two more days"

"Wow"

"Yeah, it was a long weekend and that was why we were able to make this plan."

"Right"

"Can you not stay longer?" Chance looked at her in hope.

"Sorry, I have work, can't keep up my florist shop closed for long."

"Oh yeah, you live in San Diego, right?"

"Hmm"

After they had breakfast, Samantha couldn't leave him alone so she accompanied him for some time and they discussed their life.

Samantha spent the rest of the day with him, she knew after that day she would be never meeting him again and for the first time she too enjoyed someone's company so much.

During midnight Samantha flew back to San Diego, on one hand she was upset for failing the mission she came here for but on the other hand she was happy to meet Chance and left with some good memories.

Next day she reached her florist shop as usual and she asked Andy to take a break as she worked during the weekend in her absence. The Bill again came to her shop to buy flowers and left another envelope for her.

They don't know when and who can bug them or the places they visit so as a precaution they never directly talk to each other and only communicate through letters, in case of emergencies they have an untraceable phone which they use.

After finding a safe place, Samantha read the contents of the letter and got surprised.

The hard disk they have been looking for was stolen by some other assassin who was hired by the other partner of Mario.

Apparently, Mario had some dirty secrets on two men and those two were trying to get a hold on that hard disk, one partner hired them and another partner hired some other assassin group and they got successful in getting hold of it.

Samantha burnt the letter and was annoyed as someone else was able to beat her at this mission.

She spent the next week taking care of her florist shop as there were no mission assigned to her, she did three missions back-to-back so she requested Bill for a small break.

During this time, she did think of Chance and wondered how he was doing.

Before she left Hawaii, Chance asked for her phone number but she gave him the wrong number as she had no intentions of meeting him again.

As an assassin she knows she can never lead a normal life and also Chance is suffering from Foniasophobia, fear of murderers so she knew there was no way of even having a casual relationship with him, she just wanted him to be a beautiful memory for her she would cherish forever.

The next day was a Saturday and as usual she went to her florist shop; she and Andy were going through the accounts when the door of their boutique opened implying a customer is here.

Samantha greeted the customer with a bright smile, but when she saw who it was, she got really surprised and her smile froze.