

My Vampire 711

My Vampire System Chapter 711: The tenth Vampire knights

Edward and Leo's relationship was a little complicated to say the least. The two of them respected each other, but Leo was not much of a speaker. Never initiating the conversation. The problem was that the two of them were in charge of not only the castle, but the whole of the tenth family as well.

Since Edward had more experiences and knew the duties of those in the castle, Edward was the one that had to try and force communication with Leo. It wasn't that Leo wasn't willing, but Edward knew that Leo was someone who was stronger than himself. In the vampire world, people respected power, and it felt strange to be ordering or commanding a vampire that had more power than him.

Wanting them to get a closer connection with the tenth family, he decided it was best if they did the same task that Quinn had been given. Delivering the supply of blood to those that lived in the inner castle area. There were only around fifty or so people so it wouldn't take too long.

'Twenty five members in the castle, fifty in the inner castle area. It certainly is a big improvement to when nobody wanted to join us.' Edward thought with a smile.

There were those in the castle that usually did this job, but this was the personal touch he wanted the new vampire knights to do.

Leaving from the castle, the two of them walked with the automatic storage crate, moving along behind them. Seeing the blood packs inside, a thought came into Edward's mind.

"According to Quinn, you haven't been a vampire for long." Edward said. "Yet, I have never seen you consume blood. At least not in front of everyone."

"I have done well in controlling the blood lust." Leo replied. "At first, I thought the hunger would make me weaker, however I soon found that it actually made my attacks stronger. Although the actions in the mind wilder for some."

It was true, the more hungry a vampire was, their abilities got weaker, but their strength, speed and general stats improved. The only other thing that was affected, was more of their regenerative abilities.

“You should be careful,” Said Edward. “Go too far and you can turn into one of those Crazy beasts. Although as long as you have turned into one through lack of blood, and not addiction, you should be fine.”

What Edward was mentioning was the vampire’s other form, the form of a bloodsucker.

“It is fine, I no longer have trouble with controlling my hunger. I can now go a month without requiring any need of blood.”

“What?” Edward replied stunned. He knew that vampires were able to ween off the blood addiction, but to be able to get it so one could last without blood took many years. “How?”

For a second Leo hesitated before giving his reply.

“It’s the Qi. The special technique I practice. I was able to utilise it, to control certain actions in the mind and body.”

Once again, Leo had mentioned the use of Qi, and it seemed to do a lot more than just stop vampires from healing when they were hurt.

“You are truly a great person. After learning all the great things Qi can do, I have to ask, Would you be willing to teach it to the vampires in the tenth? We could make it so only those in the castle are able to learn it.”

Before, Edward thought that it might be rude to ask Leo such a thing. If he wished to teach people then that was his choice, but after learning about all the wonders of Qi, he couldn’t pass this opportunity.

He even thought it could be something they taught those loyal to the family, similar to how the others used abilities, they could teach those with Qi.

When hearing this question, Leo was about to decline. He had always been taught by his master to not share something like this to the world. However, there were already those who knew how to use Qi, such as those that worked for Pure.

Maybe it wouldn't be such a bad thing to teach more people this skill. But there was one thing that was worrying for him if he did. When people got a new power, they did dangerous things and he would be the one responsible for having taught them it.

"I'll think about it," Leo said. "But my answer for now would be this. Can we really trust that everyone accepts the current tenth family the way it is. If we taught them this power, we have to be sure that it couldn't be used against us."

Leo was right, Edward had let his ambitions of bringing the tenth family up to its former glory get to him. There was a chance that this could do more harm than good, especially with those that would be watching him.

However the good news was it wasn't a no.

They had gone by a few houses and delivered the blood packs with quite ease, when they saw Leo at the door, they were quite starstruck. They would act nervous, smiling and some had even made some strange request.

For one, a middle aged man answered the door, and immediately his eyes started to glow seeing Leo.

"Leo, the tenth vampire knight. I can't believe you're at my door. Honey look who's here!" The man shouted.

When his wife came to the door, a little scream came out, as she went forward. This was not the type of reaction that Edward was expecting. It seemed his last demonstration had made him far more popular than he imagined.

"I have a huge favour to ask, and I understand if you say no. But you were the whole reason why I decided to stay in the tenth family. I'm also only one more item away from the set."

Leo smiled at the men, it was nice to see people energetic about things, and they appeared to be more welcoming than those at the military.

“If I can complete the request without any trouble to others and with little difficulty sure.” Leo replied.

“Can you please cut off one of my limbs. Don’t worry I’ve saved up some blood so I can regenerate. Even just a finger would do.”

Edward slapped his head in frustration. It was a two way street, not only did the people need to respect Leo, but they needed to convince Leo they were worth teaching and he was afraid these types of silly actions would dampen the mood.

However, Leo pulled out his sword.

“It should be simple enough to do.”

‘I’m surrounded by crazy people.’ Edward thought.

Going from house to house, they were about halfway done, and Edward was greatly pleased with the result. He should have thought sooner that those that were in the inner circle already had chosen to stay in the tenth family.

So they respected the knights more than most and already had loyalty. Next time they would need to go to the general tenth people to see if they had the same reaction.

Eventually they had knocked on one of the house’s doors and there was no reply.

“Perhaps they are out,” Edward said. “We will try to get them on the way back.”

It was a little strange as the delivery was at the same time every week. So the vampires would usually stay in to get their delivery.

Using his ability. Leo sensed something inside the house.

“Something wrong.” Leo said.

Immediately, he grabbed his blade, and sliced the door open, entering without saying anything else.

Edward seeing him act this serious knew something was up and followed Coley behind. When they finally entered the living room, they could see blood all over and on the floor. Four people died. Two older vampires and two middle-aged vampires.

“Four vampires dead, and on our own family grounds. Who would even be strong enough to do such a thing?” Edward said.

“Whatever it was, part of their aura has been left behind, there close.”

My Vampire System Chapter 712: An attack on the tenth castle

The two of them stood there for a while investigating the scene around them. It would take a lot to kill any vampire, even a single one, but these were ones that had already been introduced into the inner castle. They showed promise and were stronger than an average vampire.

From looking around, the two of them had even gathered they had collected four out of five of the full set of equipment.

“It looks like they have been killed by a strange beast.” Edward said, investigating the wounds. There were large slashes around their necks and parts of their bodies as if they were done by claws.

“It wasn’t a beast. I can tell by the aura that was left behind.” Leo replied. “This was the work of another vampire.”

Edward also thought this, but he was too afraid to say it aloud for fear it would make it true. If it was a beast, it would have had to have gotten past all the vampires in the city, the guards and barriers. The only explanation was it was a vampire.

'An internal dispute perhaps?' This was wishful thinking on Edwards behalf. If there were any suspects for an internal dispute they were looking at them on the floor now.

Following the trail of aura, Leo could see that it led outside through a broken window in the back. Judging by the fact he could still see some of it, it was clear that it happened not too long ago.

Following the aura, Leo jumped out of the window and Edward followed closely behind.

"Wait, what are you going to do?" Edward asked.

"To find the person who killed them, there is a killer on the loose and they could kill more." Leo replied.

"I'm afraid this may be a trap." Edward tried to explain. "Remember what Silver said, there are many against us, but I thought that they wouldn't outright attack us. At least not like this. If they did, the king wouldn't forgive them. They would also lose favour with others.

"Right now I can't understand the reason for their actions, which is why I think we should wait."

Leo thought about it for a while. When looking after his own shelter he had founded, he was used to dealing with problems like these and his natural instincts kicked in. The problem was, this was not a city he was used to, nor were these normal people.

If he wanted to live and help out Quinn in the current vampire political mess, it would be best he did as Edward said. He was the one with the experience and patience.

Agreeing, they decided to call one of the vampires from the inner castle to guard the house, not allowing anyone else inside. They also called another one to continue delivering the rest of the blood.

They now had more important things to figure out. While heading back, Edward was trying to wrap his head around things.

'Is it really one of the vampire families acting out? There wouldn't be many who would go against the king's order. They might have disliked Quinn being the leader, but he isn't even here. What's the point of targeting his people?'

All of these questions had greatly confused Edward. On their journey back, he could see that Leo had his hand around the hilt of his blade. It was now gripped tighter than before as they got closer to the castle.

"It looks like we might not be able to avoid a confrontation after all." Leo said. "The aura from the house leads back to here."

Edward had called those in the castle just moments ago, and they had reported no such disturbances. Two vampires had even left the castle and had said nothing to them.

But Leo had no reason to lie, and his power was mysterious. Trusting him, and unsure whether or not those in the castle were in trouble, they decided to proceed cautiously.

"We have to be careful, the vampires are not fools. They know both mine and your strength. There won't be many to take us on. If anyone has been mobilised, it will need to be another knight like ourselves." Edward said. This was why he felt like it wasn't one of the families.

When they finally entered, nothing seemed to be out of the ordinary. However, Leo knew they were in the right place. They were in the reception area, where the torches and light crystals shined brightly.

The doors at the top of the side stairs opened, and a vampire was there to greet them.

"I welcome your ret-"

Before he could finish his sentence, the man stopped speaking, a tingling feeling was felt around his neck. He raised his hand, but soon a thud was heard as his head hit the floor. For a brief second, Edward had seen the culprit.

Its large fangs were sticking out, it had no hair, and only had clothes on from the waist down. Its muscular dehydrated body was on full display, with its dark black eyes piercing against the light room.

“A crazed blood sucker!” Edward said. “What’s it doing here?”

At that moment, the torches and light crystals were all smashed, and the room went into complete darkness. For both Leo and Edward it didn’t change much, but the small amount of light was an advantage for the bloodsucker.

“Be careful.” Leo said. “There’s more than one.”

Through his vision, he could see in the reception area there were six crazed bloodsuckers all around them and the one on top of the stairs.

‘These have to be addicted blood suckers, otherwise how could they have so much coordination?’ Edward thought.

Vampires who had gotten too addicted to blood forced their body to change forever while keeping most of their intelligence. In a way, these were far more dangerous than regular blood suckers.

Three on one side immediately went towards Edward and he used his ability to mist up. It was the only advantage he had. Then when they were busy trying to find him, he managed to get a hit in. Shoving his whole hand through one of the Blood sucker’s chest, killing it in the process.

He planned to change back into the mist as soon as possible, but before he even could, another blood sucker had hit him with his amazing speed and strength. When hit, the mist would disperse and soon they were quickly following him.

However, it was not for long. A blood slash was created, and it had cleanly cut both of them at their ankles. They fell to the ground and only had stubs to move.

Turning around, they could see Leo looking down at them. With a stab of his sword, he pierced each of them right through the heart, killing them both.

“Watch out, there’s more of those things!” Edward shouted. He knew based on the sound and the initial ones that had come after him there were more, but when the room was filled with silence, he realised something. There was only the sound of them two breathing in the room.

When he looked around he could see that all of the other Bloodsuckers had been defeated. Slashed in some way with the blade.

“It looks like someone was after our lives after all.” Leo said. “What exactly are these?”

The blood suckers were faster and stronger than regular vampires. Edward had his ability and experience he could use against them, but facing more than one of them would prove troublesome to him. Yet, somehow Leo had been able to deal with them all.

‘Is it because of their lower health?’

Another downside to the blood suckers was that they didn’t have much health. If one was to damage them, they would die quite easily. So as long as Leo could keep up with their moves, then they were no trouble for him.

“I’m worried.” Leo said. “If these monsters came after us, then it means they might send some more after them.”

Leo worried for Erin and the others.

My Vampire System Chapter 713: Protect or attack

The kids at the school slept on campus and were each given their own rooms. One thing that was different between the regular vampires and the decedents, was that they were both given separate areas.

This was actually due to Silver acting behind the scenes. It had only been a day, but it was enough for her to see the mistreatment that was going on. She was sure that there would only be bigger problems if they were allowed to mix at this moment.

It wasn't a bad idea, getting the two groups to work and act together, but going all in like this was risky.

A meeting had been called in the evening and the teachers were trying to come up with a way to solve this problem. Twelve of them were present at the table including Silver.

"The problem is we can't even punish them," Gina said. "They hold a higher position than us and threaten us."

"If they do that I can always report it to their leaders." Silver replied. "They will be punished for abusing their powers."

"Are you really that naive, Silver?" Garath said. He was a rough looking man who wore basic thin clothing and had spiky hair that made his head look twice as big. "Maybe because you spent most of your time in the castle you don't know what it's like. The descendants act this way because they know they will get away with it.

"What's worse is at some point, they probably will become our leaders, and then what? They hold a grudge against us because of something petty we have done in the past. Not all of the families are the same way and think like you."

'When did the vampires become like this?' Silver thought. When she grew up, there didn't seem to be this level of discrimination between groups. Sure there were disagreements but generally the vampires lived quiet, peaceful lives.

Back then it seemed like they didn't have any worries. Now it seemed like due to the recent attacks from Earth and other external threats, that the vampires that saw humans as the types to be enslaved, were starting to come out and convince others.

“The descendants need to learn more about responsibility and what it’s like to be a leader.” Silver said. “They are still kids and this is the perfect time to influence them to be better. Maybe we can’t change the current vampire mindsets but we can teach the future.

“We also need to split them apart. Otherwise they will just create an echo chamber of their current values, supporting their thoughts more and taking them down the wrong way. Here is what I suggest...”

Back in the rooms, Erin was sharing with another vampire. It was one she did not know, but it was one from the Tenth family, as recognised by a single piece of beast gear she wore on her chest.

Xander and Timmy were in a room together, while Amy was sent to the subclass campus.

The two girls didn’t talk, and the other girl was a little nervous, for Erin hadn’t said a word and was just silent sitting on her bed cross legged with her eyes closed. Both of her weapons were laid out on the bed in front of her.

It felt like if she made a noise she would break her concentration.

What Erin was doing right now was two things at once. She was trying to improve on Leo’s ability, for currently she could be compared to someone who was at level four, and the second thing, was focusing on improving her Qi control.

She now realised one of the things that made Leo so strong compared to other humans. With his ability, she was able to control the Qi to a greater level. She could fine tune and move it to certain areas. Before she could only harden or improve a certain part of her body.

But with the ability, she could also now just reinforce her skin, making it stronger and allowing her to move the Qi into different areas. She couldn’t imagine anyone being able to get to this level of control without Leo’s ability.

This was why he was special, but now, she had a chance to get to his level as well. Not only that, she wanted to surpass him. Even Leo wasn’t able to save his friends with his power.

While concentrating, she looked at the auras all around, and that's when she spotted something. Opening her eyes, she grabbed one of the blades in front of her.

"I'm sorry!" The other girl screamed. "I just wanted to watch some Poutube videos!" She shouted flinching and covering her face, worried that she would get hit.

As soon as the other girl started making noises, the aura that she could sense felt like it was disappearing. Closing her eyes again, she tried to see if she could find it, however, it was no longer just outside the dorms.

Her ability also wasn't good enough to detect a trail left. There was one thing she was sure of though, the aura belonged to a vampire. Yet, if it had nothing to hide, it wouldn't have tried to run away the second she heard the girl scream.

The next day when school started, each of the classes were informed that they would be taking part in a group bonding session together. The descendants, the subclasses, everyone. All the classes were taken outside, while Silver explained the rules.

"So for today's session we will be playing a modified version of capture the flag. For this game we will be entering the forest." Silver explained. "Each team will consist of a group of five, and in that group of five, there can only be one decsendent. Every team must have a decsendent."

This caused murmuring amongst the other students and even complaints, which were mostly from the decedent's themselves.

"Why do we have to form a team with them, they will only slow us down." Nicu said.

"What would be the point of having the decedents go up against the regular vampires when there is an obvious power gap? Would it not be boring, and you would learn nothing." Silver replied.

"Every person on the team will have this." Silver pulled out a pole, which had a coloured flag on the top. "All apart from the decedent that is. The goal is to get the most points while also protecting your own. Getting another team's flag earns you one point, while losing your own flag will make you lose two points.

“The second a flag has been taken off the pole, it will be reflected in our school system. This is to avoid others from cheating. Now please form your teams of five, you have ten minutes to do so.”

There were multiple reasons why Silver had suggested this game. One of them being she wanted the descendants, who would possibly be future family leaders, to get used to protecting those on their side. Rather than getting other peoples flags, it was more important for them to protect their own.

Another reason was to develop teamwork. The descendants probably never cared for the other vampires’ abilities or strengths, and now they would need to work together, if they didn’t want to lose.

“For the decedents, I will be reporting your results to your family, so don’t disappoint.” Silver said, giving them the last bit of encouragement.

It didn’t take long for Erin to form a group with those she knew. Timmy, Xander and Amy. The four of them thought it wouldn’t have been so hard to find a fifth person due to Xander’s strength.

However, they weren’t expecting that the fifth person would have to be an decedent. Xander had approached a few but they all declined, the main reason being they knew that their group would be a target of a certain someone.

“I’m sorry.” Erin said. “I didn’t know my actions before would put us in this predicament.”

“Don’t worry about it!” Amy chuckled. “If we don’t find anyone they’ll just give us someone. I hope we just don’t get Nicu.”

At that moment, a small looking vampire had approached them.

“Hey, you guys are from the Tenth family, right?” The boy asked.

“If so, is it okay if I join your team? The name’s Rokene.” After everything Quinn did to help him in the past and what Quinn had shown him, how actions spoke more than words, he decided he wanted to help those in his family.

He couldn't get a transfer due to him being a direct descent, if he could he would have, but this was the least he could do.

"Huh, a loser of the decedent's joining the loser family. As expected." Nicu said. This little game was going to be a great way for him to hurt some people without having to suffer the consequences for it.

My Vampire System Chapter 714: Capture the flag

Looking at the little vampire that had approached them, Xander was wondering who he was. Most of the decedents were quite well known, especially since there were so few of them, but he had never seen this one before.

"What!" Rokene snapped back. "Are you not happy with me or something?"

Without realising it, Xander was giving Rokene a strange look and Amy quickly pushed him off to the side.

"No, of course we're happy." Said Amy. "As you know though, we're just a little cautious. After the scene yesterday, we're just a little worried that they might have sent someone to disrupt our plans. You understand, right?"

Amy said this as she approached Rokene and gently placed her finger on his chin and slowly started to run it down his chest.

'Oh, is she trying to charm him?' Xander thought.

However, when she reached the midsection of his chest, Rokene had grabbed her hand.

“If I was to allow a subclass to charm me, I wouldn’t really be allowed to call myself a decedent now, would I? You guys don’t have to be cautious of me, I’m from the Fifth family. I’m only second from the bottom of the barrel, just above you.”

The Fifth family, due to their weak ability, were mocked by the other families as well. If it wasn’t for the fact that their leader was kind hearted, then there wouldn’t be many who chose to be loyal to them either.

“Sorry about that, come on let’s go.” Xander said.

“I don’t need your pity.” Rokene said, as he saw the brief look Xander gave him. “I am my own person, and just like Quinn did, I’m going to do what I want.”

Punching him on the shoulder, Erin gave him a smile.

“Then let’s show the other teams who’s boss.”

Once all the groups had been assembled, they were led into the forest. This forest was explored by a lot of the vampire kids and there weren’t dangerous beasts inside it, from time to time, one or two might appear but that was all.

However, this area was a very well known area by the descendants, because it was where they had their lessons before. It seemed like the descendants would be relied upon more in this game than they first thought.

The groups were given an additional ten minutes to split up all over the forest. Then, just outside the forest, a computer system was set up, which had information with a tag on all the flag’s keeping track of points. The teachers had spread out in the forest themselves, dividing themselves into two groups.

One group stood around the outside perimeter, it was the area the students weren’t allowed to go past. While the other teachers were asked to look over the students in case anything serious happened.

It was explained to them that this wasn't a battle, although they could use their abilities, it wasn't a sparring match or a fight, just a game to try to capture the flags. Silver would be looking over the students making sure they complied with this rule.

A flair was shot up into the sky, signalling the game had begun.

"What do we do, should we attack or defend?" Amy asked.

"Why don't you fly up and check around to see if there is anyone coming our way?" Xander said.

"No, that will only make us a target." Erin replied. "And it looks like we won't need to do any scouting of our own."

Looking at Rokene, he had summoned a black rabbit with a horn sticking out of its head. It hopped off Rokene's shoulder and started to run off, soon it came back.

"There's a team not too far from here, He will lead the way." Rokene said.

"Not too bad after all." Xander said. Realising that it didn't matter if Rokene was strong or not, as this wasn't an event that relied on strength, but one that focused on using everyone's skills and teamwork.

When they eventually got close, Erin closed her eyes and she could see all of their positions. If anyone was hiding through the thick trees, she could see them.

After regrouping they came up with a plan and it was using Rokene's black rabbit. Judging by the auras, Erin could easily tell which was the strongest out of all of them. And the strongest would most likely be the decedent.

Although the decedent didn't have a flag of his own, that didn't matter. The black rabbit came out and the first thing it did was fire out an electric shock towards the decedent.

He blocked the attack easily, but it was never their goal in the first place. Soon after the black rabbit was off running at a great speed and was being chased, leaving the others behind.

Some of them were hidden, but Erin felt where they were quickly taking their flag, and the others positions were located with ease. They had captured all four of the flags and ran away with no trouble at all.

The four of them met up at a meeting point they had decided beforehand, but Rokene was nowhere to be seen. At that moment, ruffling through the leaves the black rabbit had appeared squealing to them all.

'I think it wants us to follow it.' Amy said.

Following the rabbit they eventually found Rokene, who was beaten up and left on the ground. Nothing appeared to be broken but he was badly hurt.

"Whoever done this has already gone."

Amy went over to try and comfort him and suddenly placed her lips onto his giving her a kiss. Xander looked away with his face blushing red. While Timmy was the opposite, he couldn't stop looking at the two.

"You're a little perv aren't you?" Erin couldn't help but comment.

But he ignored it as if he was caught in a daze.

After a lustful kiss, Amy felt weaker, but the small wounds around Rokene's body started to heal and he was soon woken up.

"Damn it!" Rokene shouted, still recovering from his wounds. "That guy used his ability. The second he found out I had no flag, he locked on to what happened and said he was punishing me for it."

However, his mood was soon lighted up when he saw that the rest of his team had gotten four flags while not losing one off their own. Using both Erin's ability and Rokene's, it was easy pickings for them.

While Amy was weak due to using her strange powers, the others decided to rest for a bit. After all, they could do so with Erin and Rokene keeping guard. Their resting spot was by a stoney area by a small water stream.

They chose an open area as they thought many students wouldn't choose to be out in the open like so, even then they had the advantage.

Or at least that's what they thought. Soon Erin had spotted someone coming fast at them. Grabbing her sword, she immediately struck out a blood swipe that was thrown towards their direction.

However, this was the first time, where she was pushed back a little bit by the force.

"An attack, and from another vampire." Amy said.

Soon they could see five vampires coming out from the forest, and leading the charge, was the young boy Nicu.

"What are you doing Nicu!" Xander shouted standing in front of them. In his head he was the strongest one on the team, even though Rokene was a descendant. "You're not meant to attack. This isn't a fight."

"Hahah, does it matter how we get a flag? As long as no one sees what we're doing, it's your word against ours." Nicu replied.

Sadly, he was right. "Where are the teachers?" Amy asked.

Erin was afraid, not afraid of them, but that she would go too far hurting them and they would get the blame. So she closed her eyes and tried to see if there were any teachers nearby.

Soon, she quickly opened her eyes, and grabbed the hilt of her sword. "Watch out!" She shouted at the top of her lungs, while pulling out the sword from her sheath, as soon as it left, a large line of blood aura came out with it.

Nicu was skilled enough to know that the attack was off and wouldn't hit him so he remained still. He also thought it was strange to shout out something before you would attack.

"I knew you wouldn't have the guts to actually hit me, even you, are scared of us." Nicu said. Then, the sound of a deep growl was heard. Looking to his right, he could see a large blood sucker up in the air, only inches away from his face.

However, the attack from Erin and hit the Bloodsucker, making it fall and roll on the ground.

"A bloodsucker." Nicu said, covered in sweat. "What's it doing here?"

Erin for a second didn't let go of her sword, for she knew it wasn't the only one with them.

My Vampire System Chapter 715: Activating true power

As Silver was making her way around the forest, she decided to move up high through the trees. She had a better view from up there, although she didn't want the students to know where she was, so she had to make sure her footsteps were as quiet as possible.

So far she thought everything was going well. There had hardly been any bad experiences happening from her end. Because of this, she decided to try to find one of the other teachers who was also going around the forest to see if there was anything going on.

Her search was cut short, however, as she had stumbled across something devastating. Leaving the disguise of the trees she dropped to the floor and her foot landed in a pool. A pool of blood. One of the teachers had been killed. Judging by how the blood was bright red and hadn't dried yet, it looked like the teacher was killed recently.

“Attention, there’s something wrong, we need to cancel the expedition. Gather the students and return to the school immediately.” Silver ordered on her wrist watch communicator, but there was no reply from the teachers around her.

Something was seriously wrong, and if she was to leave now then the students would be in trouble. Making another call, she decided to inform the castle of the situation, but she would be staying behind and it would take them a while to get there.

“I hope everyone is okay.”

The blood sucker slowly got up from the ground and Nicu and his group were frozen in fear. The others stood behind him, waiting for him to do something. They were young and had never seen a blood evolver before while Nicu was frozen for a different reason.

Nicu went through training, as a descendant he needed to learn about the blood suckers and possibly what to do if they met one, so he knew how much trouble they were in now.

When the blood sucker finally stood up from the ground, it looked at the large cut that was in its forearm.

“Arghh!” It screamed. Right now the blood sucker was experiencing something it hadn’t done for in a long time – pain. For some reason the attack coming from Erin was hurting the blood sucker greatly.

Rather than looking at the group of kids in front of it, it started to look towards Erin instead. Soon it went after her.

“Huh, aren’t they meant to be crazy wild beasts?” Nicu thought. Usually they would just attack anything they would see in front of them. If this had intelligence then that means it came from them.

There was a group that Bryce had warned him about before. Then a realisation hit him, this blood sucker was from that certain group.

“Argh!” More screams were heard from behind Nicu, it was too late. Turning around he could see two more blood suckers and they had stabbed two of the other students.

“Get off them!” Nicu shouted, and throwing two blood swipes of his own, he attempted to hit both of them, but using the bodies of his fellow students, they moved them to block the attacks.

What little life they had left, were taken by Nicu’s own hands.

“We have to help them.” Timmy said.

“No, we have to look after ourselves.” Erin replied. “There are more.”

Coming out from the other side of the lake, three more blood suckers were seen heading their way. Slashes were let out in succession from Erin’s blade, but this time they had avoided them all. Their speed was faster than anything they had dealt with before.

Amy spread her wings and flew up high.

“Go get help!” Erin said as they saw Amy looking down on them, worried. She knew there was nothing else she could do but try and get help.

Xander, coming to the scene when it counted, went to engage one of the blood suckers head on. He wasn’t the best when it came to using blood skills, so he decided to use his fist instead, he was skilled when it came to combat.

“No!” Erin shouted but it was too late for her to intervene, the other two blood suckers were headed in her direction, and there was one coming from behind.

A punch was thrown out from Xander, and a wild swing had come out from the blood sucker. Both of their fists collided head on. One of the attacks was far stronger than the other. One second Xander was there in front of them, the next he was gone and he was on the other side with the others, back in the forest of trees.

Now it was three against one, even with her increased skills, Erin didn't know how she was going to get out of this one. She was a little worried for Timmy, but he was no longer by his side.

He had ignored her warnings and had transformed into mist, covering both him and Nicu in a strange mist, making it hard for the blood suckers to find them.

Right now, Nicu was thankful for the help he could get and couldn't believe that the only reason why he was possibly alive right now was due to another regular vampire.

The first blood sucker approaching her was too close and she had no chance to use her blood skills. Other than the blood swipe with her blade, she didn't really know how to use anything else.

The blood sucker confidently swiped its large claw towards Erin but the attack was blocked. What the blood sucker wasn't expecting was for her blade to go through its tough skin and was slowly cutting through the muscle until it eventually reached the bone.

Once again, it screamed in pain. Her attack had done its job and her sword was now stuck in the blood sucker's arm.

She tried to pull it out but the other two were already upon her. They smashed hard into her stomach and she had no choice but to let go of her blade. She too was chucked over and slid across the floor.

'I won't fail!' She thought as she placed her hand on the ground and her knees skidded. Her head was facing towards the floor and she no longer had her Patna like blade. Still, she had one more weapon, the long sword on her back.

The pain running through her was strong, and a strange feeling started to rise in her. It wasn't the blood power, it wasn't Qi, but something else. It was the first time she had been greatly hurt and in a dire situation since she had turned into a vampire.

"You tried killing me, so that means I can do whatever I want to you bastards, right?"

When Erin raised her head, her eyes were glowing yellow. She felt stronger than she had ever before. Using Leo's ability, she could see that her blade was now covered in a yellow aura as well.

Without realising it, she had activated her true Dhampir abilities, and it was time for her to hunt some vampires.

My Vampire System Chapter 716: Yellow power

Without even moving her body, Erin could both feel and see the new found energy rising within her. Since joining the school, her aura and power levels had been the same, however, she noticed that there were instances where it would increase.

She noticed it when sparring against Leo as well as Edward, and when she was about to hit Nicu outside of the school. The difference in power was noticeable but right now, it was on a different level altogether. She didn't know if it was because of anger, or possibly just because there were more vampires she classified as enemies in front of her.

Looking at the field she was trying her best to assess the situation. Two students were still on the floor, they looked to be dead, and one student had run off into the woods somewhere. Amy had gone to try and find help, and Xander was probably too hurt to get back up. Otherwise he would have returned by now.

There were five blood suckers in total. Two of them were being distracted thanks to Timmy's mist skill. However, his ability level was still quite low, so he was unable to cover the entire area in mist.

That meant she had to deal with the remaining three. One of them was charging at her before she even had time to recover while the other two moved forward as well, but decided to hold back and move slower intentionally.

It was as if they were waiting to see the outcome of what was about to happen.

'My ribs, I think they've healed enough now.'

When the beasts leapt up through the air, dragging her sword across the ground, she swiped upward using all her strength and also activating the blood aura around her blade. This time, she was trying something different. Controlling her Qi better than before, she wrapped the blood aura around her large sword and using the Qi held it in place. Rather than a blood swipe, she increased the strength of her blade, leaving a glow around it.

The blood sucker hadn't expected Erin to recover that fast, nor her strike to be that quick either. He was sure he had gauged her speed before, but now it was even faster. He could do nothing but brace while the blade passed through his body, which it did like butter. The sword sliced the blood sucker in half.

"One down, and I'm ready to take on even more of you ugly men." Erin said, flicking her sword to the side, allowing for the beast's blood to splatter on the floor. "I'm sorry, but I don't like bald guys."

With the blood off her blade the other blood suckers and herself could see it. The blood aura compared to before was a different colour. Blood swipes always came out red, just like every other vampire hers did as well, but right now, the aura was yellow in colour.

The two blood suckers that were advancing had stopped, and the one furthest away jumped across back on to the other side of the water stream.

"Fall back!" The blood sucker said, in a deep demonic voice. The voice was a little mumbled as if it had its mouth full, but it appeared to sound like so due to the large fangs in its mouth.

'It can speak?' Erin thought, surprised. It certainly didn't look like something that could speak. They just looked like crazy wild beasts in a humanoid form.

When the blood sucker that seemed to be their leader gave the orders, the beasts that were in the mist and the other one fell back. They left running back through the forest while the leader turned to look at Erin.

'I will have to report this to the leader, he will definitely be pleased.'

At first Erin thought maybe they were just hiding, it was a trick. They were outnumbered and outmatched. She was lucky with her first strike just because the blood sucker underestimated her, but their strength and speed were similar to hers. They surely would have come up with something to take her on, she thought.

After activating her ability she knew they really had gone. Then, placing her sword back on her back she went to pick her katana blade off the ground.

She turned to look at Timmy and Nicu. Nicu was on his knees looking at the two bodies in front of him.

At this moment, she was very thankful for Timmy's ability. Because of the mist none of them saw what Erin had done. The secret Quinn had told her to keep was still a secret.

However, it was clear that Nicu wasn't in the right mind in the first place. He was down on his knees and surprisingly he had tears in his eyes.

"Come on guys, you're alive right, tell me you're alive!" Nicu said, looking at their bodies but there was no response.

Nicu was younger than them all by a couple of years, he had always been pampered at the First castle. It wasn't even normal for vampires to experience such things in the first place. Even if he was a bully and someone who threw his weight around, he never wanted death upon other vampires.

He would have never gone that far, more so, he had delivered the killing blow. He didn't know Timmy had an ability like that, and noticing how effective it was against the blood sucker, if he hadn't acted so rashly, then maybe Timmy's mist could have given them all a chance to escape.

Finally, it looked like Xander had come out from the forest, he held one of his arms, which still hadn't healed and he had a slight limp as he walked out.

"How come no one came to check up if I was okay?" Xander said. "Come on, let's get out of here and try find a teacher, we'll head back towards the school and report back to them about what happened."

Silver had been running around for a while now, she had bumped into a few students and informed them that the whole test was over. She escorted a few of them back, leaving them with the teacher who was just outside the forest in charge of the system.

The call had been made to the castle, and people were on their way, but Silver couldn't sit there doing nothing knowing there was trouble inside the forest still. After searching some more, she had come across another dead teacher, only this time, on the ground not too far away from her was a blood sucker.

'A blood sucker here? Did one of the students turn into one by accident?' She thought, on inspection it looked like he two of them killed each other in quite the difficult battle.

She was now by the blood sucker's body, seeing if she could find any clues, but the pieces of clothing it did have on that weren't torn off, did not resemble the school uniform or what vampires would usually wear.

All the clothing was a dark blue color.

'Is it them, if it is, have they finally decided to attack the settlement, but why? They know they would stand no chance against the whole family.'

Attaching her strings to the blood sucker, controlling it like a puppet, she lifted it up and threw the body behind her. The body was ripped completely in half in a second and behind the body Silver was looking at a blood sucker that was twice the size of the one that she had just used as a meat shield.

"Silver?" The blood sucker said in a deep booming voice. "I'm surprised to see you have become a teacher, I never thought you would fall this low. Even if the Thirtieth family has always had a man as their leader I thought you would be the one to change it.

"But, I'm afraid it's impossible now, because you won't be living to see another day."

Silver didn't have a clue who this blood sucker was, any resemblance they once had as a vampire was now gone with the way they looked now, but it was clear that this man had known her at one point in his life.

It was also clear that he wanted to kill her. Using her blood she threw out her red strings and successfully wrapped them around his ankles, but he carried on walking slowly and the strings just broke apart as if they did nothing.

'Who is this guy, he must have been an incredibly strong vampire before turning into a blood sucker.'

The fear could be seen in Silver's eyes as she stepped back continually until her back had gone up against a tree.

"I will not die here."

"I don't think you have a choice."

My Vampire System Chapter 717: A Reunion

Silver was a skilled knight, the best of the best when it came to vampires. There were only two positions that could be considered higher than hers. The vampire leaders and the vampire king's loyal knights. Of course there was also the vampire king or queen position, but without being a leader in the first place, she could never be considered for such a role.

It was well known throughout the other castles that if Silver hadn't been born a girl, that she would have been made the next leader. However, tradition of the thirteenth family, would not allow it.

Still, none of those facts changed her current situation. That there was a blood sucker staring her down that was making her feel completely powerless. Usually she could gauge one's power by the use of her red blood stings, yet in front of this blood sucker, they were as useless as a gentle wind breeze.

He had snapped them by just moving his large muscular legs.

“At least tell me who you are?” Silver asked.

The blood sucker started to laugh, it was so deep and loud that the ground around them seemed to slightly vibrate.

“As expected, whenever there is a history the vampires are not proud of, they just completely disregard it, pretend it doesn’t exist or that it never happened.” The giant blood sucker said. “Do you even know what type of people you work for? The vampires appear strong on the outside and are arrogant as they see themselves above others, but the truth is they are scared.

“They are scared that one day something will come along and top them, so they get rid of anything that they see as a threat, not even giving them a chance to rise. Werewolves, Blood fairies, dhampir and us, the true form vamps.”

Silver’s hunch was right, this man and the other blood suckers were from that group. A group of Vampires who had given in to the blood addiction. They had consumed so much blood and became addicted, that their bodies changed into a permanent form of the blood sucker. Although unlike a starved Bloodsucker, they kept some of their intelligence, and this one in front of her, had kept a lot of his intelligence.

Even the vampires that thought they should be on top of the food chain ruling the humans, didn’t agree with the blood suckers. Losing control at the sight of human blood, having an addiction like that, it was giving in to one’s weakness. Something they didn’t want to admit happening. The sun could build up a resistance, but blood was something they would always need sooner or later.

While the blood suckers like the one in front of her, saw it as accepting themselves and embracing who they really were.

She was lucky that the blood sucker liked to talk a lot, as during that time she tried to figure out a way to escape, but she could see none. The only choice left, was to fight.

“I can see it in your eyes, you have chosen to fight. You are certainly a special strong one. If I could, I would have had you over to my side, but I know that’s not possible.”

“Silver!” A voice shouted from a distance.

With her advanced hearing, she could tell that the voice was coming from above, and in the distance she could see Amy flying up high in the sky. The problem was, the blood sucker could hear it as well.

The second the blood sucker looked up, Silver had made her move, she ran forward as fast as she could and slid underneath, inbetween the blood sucker’s legs. While doing so she held both hand’s out and used as much red string as she could to tie up the blood sucker’s legs.

She knew it would mostly be useless but she just needed to buy enough time. Jumping up high, she then threw out her string and wrapped it around Amy’s leg. Using her blood skills and string together, she could control the string with finer detail thanks to the blood control ability she had as well.

Once it was wrapped around Amy’s leg, she started to pull herself up, and Amy was off as fast as possible.

“Thank you Amy, you’re a lifesaver,” said Silver. “We need to get out of this forest as soon as possible. I’m afraid I am no match for that thing.”

Silver had a saddened look on her face, she hoped that most of the students were already out of the forest, but with the giant blood sucker in the forest, there was nothing she could do.

“What was that?” Amy asked, when she looked down at Silver. Her face immediately was covered in fear, for the giant blood sucker that was down on the ground, was suddenly not too far behind them.

She had seen it all happen so fast, the only thing the blood sucker did was jump and now he was around thirty meters in the air, taller than any of the trees and level with Amy.

“Don’t worry!” Silver shouted. “Blood suckers can’t use blood attacks.”

Although he was the same height as them, the distance was out of the blood sucker's reach, yet the bloodsucker had a smile on its face showing its sharp fangs. It wound up its fist and as hard as it could, threw out a punch.

A bang was heard and moments later a strong force had hit both Amy and Silver out of the air. The punch hadn't even reached them but it had hurt like hell. Amy could no longer fly and Silver taking most of the blow was struggling to keep consciousness.

Even if the fall from this height didn't kill them, then the blood sucker surely would.

Seeing the trees coming towards them, they both braced for impact. But their harsh descent was no longer, as both of the girls felt someone catch them and was holding them in both arms.

Amy opened her eyes, couldn't believe who had caught her.

"Leo, what are you doing here?" Amy asked.

"An emergency was summoned, and I insisted on coming." Leo replied.

Landing on a thick tree branch with the softest of touches, Leo quickly went to the ground, where soon Silver followed and holding her was Dwight, the king's vampire knight.

Placing her wings back in her body, Amy was able to stand as she wasn't as badly hurt as Silver. Then when she looked around she noticed that they weren't the only two that had arrived. Jin, another vampire leader had as well.

'Something serious had to have happened if they called over these two as well as Leo.' She thought.

"Wait, Xander, Erin and the others, Leo we have to save them!" Amy shouted.

“Don’t worry.” Dwight replied, placing Silver up against a tree and giving her his flask that was full of blood. “The other leaders and their knights are making sure all the students return to safety. They will be fine, but I’m a little worried about us.”

The heavy footsteps were heard through the forest, and even the sound of some trees being pushed and branches falling were heard until finally they could see it. A giant blood sucker.

Seeing the vampire in front of him, the blood sucker started to slow down his pace and came to a halt. Once again he had a creepy smile on his face.

“What a great reunion, I didn’t think they would send out you two just for these kids, oh and who’s this.” He said looking at Leo, who had his hand on his hilt. “Someone looks ready to fight before hearing what I have to say.

“Come on speak up, how long has it been since you guys have seen me, surely you haven’t forgotten who I am?”

“Of course not, Rowa, ex vampire leader of the Second family, and also ex royal vampire knight!” Dwight said, with anger in his voice.

My Vampire System Chapter 718: An ex leader

Hearing Dwight say his true name, Silver finally understood who he was. At the time, she still wasn’t a vampire knight, but she had heard of an upcoming vampire who was rising through the ranks at an incredible rate.

A great talent that everyone knew, and that said person, was Rowa in front of her.

Even when he became leader, he had relinquished that position fast moving on and deciding to become a Royal knight. The thing was about Royal knights, once someone accepted this position, they were expected to stay loyal to the current king and most of the time they would pass on with him.

Those that joined the Royal army would no longer have the opportunity to become king and they knew that. It was a way for them to prove their loyalty to that of the current king. But Rowa had changed all that.

The others were unaware of how Rowa was growing his powers so fast, and eventually without warning, he had one day turned into one of them. Of course, when Rowa had turned into a permanent Bloodsucker, the king had ordered to get rid of him.

There was no reversing back once one had reached this point, so Rowa felt like he had no choice but to run away, holding a grudge against those that he had dedicated his life to.

So what if he enjoyed a sip of blood now and then, the second he turned into a blood sucker, they had forgotten all the sacrifices he had made, they could have at least tried to figure something out, yet they hadn't.

From that day onward, Rowa would take on future Bloodsuckers looking after them. Where they were based or where they were getting their blood from no one knew. But it was a threat that the current king was always worried about.

"Have you finally decided to betray the whole settlement. Are you here to destroy us all?" Dwight asked. "Let me tell you, it won't be easy."

Silver was a little concerned even with Dwight, Jin and Leo. She felt like it wouldn't be enough. When one turned into a bloodsucker their basic stats nearly doubled, and Rowa being a past leader, and being a blood sucker for so long would be far stronger than a regular leader.

"Not today," Rowa said. "I want you guys to crumble in fear, wondering when the next attack will happen. You know nothing about us, how many people we have, how strong our forces are, yet I know everything about the settlement, even this little training session going on today.

"I want you all to worry each day that soon it could be your last. Because that was the same experience I feared when I was turned into this, and locked up, knowing that I would be executed. Death for you all is too light of a punishment." Rowa said, and the next second the large body was gone.

Silver hadn't even seen him leave, but there was nothing in front of her. Even with such a large body he had speed beyond what she could see.

"That person was a strong one, I would have liked to see how I would have fared against him." Leo commented.

Jin chuckled a little bit. "I'm more thankful that we didn't actually get in a fight, for a new knight you sure are brave."

"Not brave," Leo said, shaking his head. "I just wish to test my limits, so far I haven't had the opportunity to test how far my current strength can take me. He looked like someone who would have been able to do that."

"Let's look for the students and head back to the castle. I must inform the king about what is happening." Edward said, looking into the distance of where Rowa had left.

The other vampire knights and leaders had safely rescued most of the students, there were very few that had actually died. In total two teachers were found dead along with five other students. Some of the vampire knights had confronted the bloodsuckers, but soon left after seeing them.

Sadly, there seemed to be more deaths on one side rather than the other. It was impossible to keep a secret of what had happened as the students were already talking to each other about it as they made their way back to school.

However, there was one rumour going around. Students had overheard the knights and the other teachers talking. Saying that a couple of bloodsuckers had been killed before they had arrived at one of the locations.

Soon, they had figured out that it was the bloodsucker who had attacked both Nicu's and Rokene's group.

While walking back, Nicu was doing so with the rest of the descendants. He had his head held down and he hadn't said much. He was still in shock of what had happened.

“Hey Nicu, you were in the group that killed one of the bloodsuckers, right? Those things are so powerful and scary. I can’t believe you managed to kill one, how did you do it?” One of his friends asked.

“I killed one?” Nicu replied.

“Yeah all the other kids are talking about it. Some of the teachers even died, there’s no way that anyone else could have killed one.”

“Well, I’m sorry to burst your bubble, but it wasn’t me.” Nicu replied.

“It wasn’t you? Stop joking around, if it wasn’t you, then who was it?”

Nicu said nothing, but just looked in the direction of Erin.

‘Who are you, how could you be so strong coming from the tenth family? I need to look into some things.’

Some time had passed, and somewhere on the Vampire planet, was a certain special place. Somewhere on the planet in the middle of a forest, there was a large waterfall, gushing water down into the bottom of the lake.

If one was to go through the waterfall, they would notice that there was a large cave, one large enough that housed Rowa and his army. Another society of bloodsuckers lived here calling this place there home.

Inside there were building structures, homes and empty blood packs scattered round the place. Most of the houses were just basic. Although these bloodsuckers did have intelligence, it varied from bloodsucker to bloodsucker. Only a few had the full mental capacity they once had in the past.

Entering the cavern was a hooded man, but he was not one of the blood suckers. He walked passed and a few of the creatures snarled at him, but he continued walking confidently deeper and deeper into the cavern.

Until he had reached the end, where a large mansion could be seen. Two bloodsuckers stood guard, larger than the others.

“He has been expecting you,” One of the guards said and the hooded man was let in.

Eventually, he was escorted to a throne room, where sitting in a large giant chair to fit his giant body, was the leader of them all, Rowa.

“Did you bring the goods with you?’ Rowa asked.

“Of course, I have left the blood packs at the usual place, but I’m starting to wonder why I even helped you in the first place, when you couldn’t even do such a simple task. Why did you attack the children! That was not what I asked!” The hooded man shouted in anger.

“Calm down.” Rowa replied calmly. “I need to remind you, that you are on your own here and not in your own establishment. You asked me to get rid of the tenth, and you said it would be an easy task. However, all of my people that attacked are dead, so I decided to improvise.

“I thought maybe we could start right from the bottom, getting rid of the tenth children.”

“Well, it looks like you failed at that as well, and instead now the whole vampire council know about you.” The hooded man replied.

“It was only a matter of time before they found out about us. Besides it looks like you were keeping something from us, no wonder you want to get rid of the tenth family.”

The hooded man didn’t reply as he was confused by what Rowa was saying.

“Oh, so you don’t know?”

Rowa didn’t say anything past that, but before meeting with the hooded man he had found out about the girl. The girl who wielded the strange yellow aura, confirming that she was most likely a dhampir.

She was surely hiding herself, and maybe this was something they could use.

“Don’t worry.” Rowan said with the biggest grin on his face so far. We will get rid of the tenth family for you. I am more than happy and this time, we will do it right. It will also be a message to the king. That there is a force out there that will soon even topple them.”

My Vampire System Chapter 719: Irrational thoughts

The leaders that had come out to help with the incident, had returned to their castle for more reasons than one, as once again, another council meeting had been called. However, the vampire knights that had been called out, had traveled back with the students.

Now inside the large school assembly hall, all of the students had been gathered. Everyone’s condition was being checked to see if they were okay, and at the same time, they were busy trying to gather as much information as possible.

The students had minimal wounds, but some were affected more mentally than others, particularly those that were either running for their lives or had seen a student die in front of them.

The main reason for the questioning was to find out the scale of the attack that took place. Hopefully it would give them an idea of how strong of a force and large of a force they were dealing with. Although there would be no way to know the true extent of the force, but would at least have an idea of the minimum.

As students were being checked upon, one of the vampire knights went up on stage. A female knight with dark purple overflowing hair that nearly brushed against the floor.

“First, to all the students, I would like to let you know that while you are here, you are safe from the threat that unexpectedly came at you today. I know it is a shock for many of you young students, but the most important thing is that you came out still alive to experience, and live another day.” She said.

“Perhaps we were a bit behind on teaching you about the Bloodsuckers, which is a mistake on our part, but now I will give you information about them that should help you in the future, if you are ever to encounter one again.”

The knight started to explain to the students what a bloodsucker was and the difference between the two types of bloodsuckers. Most students knew what happened to a vampire when they ran out of blood, but were unaware of the type that would get addicted to blood. They knew of blood addiction but not what it could lead to.

When Silver was listening to this, she started to think back to the words that Rowa spoke. About how the vampires tried to bury and hide any bad thing about them in the past. On top of this, got rid of anything they saw as a threat.

Before the incident with her brother, she was a law abiding vampire, but lately she was allowing thoughts, and other people’s ideals to affect her.

“Lastly, when someone turns into the form of the bloodsucker, they no longer have that family bond attaching them. Perhaps some of you might think you’re safe if one of your family members were turned, but you are not.

“They are free to hurt anyone regardless, which is why they are considered so dangerous.” The knight finished explaining.

Leo went ahead to check up on Erin and everything seemed fine, however he did notice she was acting a little strange as if she wanted to ask something.

What was on her mind was about her being a dhampir. She wanted to know more about that strange aura she used in the middle of her fight. How she was able to activate it? But she knew that this was not the right place with so any people around. Also, Leo was an ordinary vampire, she could see that, so it was unlikely he would know anything.

“I heard you did a good job Timmy,” Leo complimented him. “I will tell Edward about his favourite student.”

Timmy started to blush, as he was shy. He wasn't really good with getting compliments like so. "Thank you, I will continue to work harder for the tenth family in the future."

Xander, who was being treated, with his good hand also gave Timmy a thumbs up. This experience made him realise he couldn't just rely on his fists, and maybe getting Edward to teach him the mist ability was a good idea.

The group of decedents were gathered together and they couldn't stop talking about the incident that had just happened. While the others were afraid many of them felt excited.

"I swear, if that bloodsucker didn't run away, I would have taken it down."

"I don't know man, did you hear what Kathey just said, they're dangerous."

"What do you mean, Nicu took one down, so of course we can as well."

However, there was one person that wasn't excited about the whole thing, and that was Nicu himself. He had branched himself a little away from the descendants. He just couldn't share the same feelings as they did.

From the sounds of things, the others got attacked by a single blood sucker, two at most. While their group had far more. It also seemed like the bloodsuckers varied in strength. Which would make sense since it was dependent on the vampire they were turned from.

Most of those that would turn into a Bloodsucker would be weak regular vampires anyway, there were only a few that were at the higher level.

Still, that didn't stop Nicu feeling two things. Fear from almost dying and the second one, regret. He still couldn't get over the fact that with his own hands, he had killed two fellow students.

While sitting down up against the wall, he started to hear certain conversations between the other teachers and knights.

“Did you check the report?”

“Yes, two of the students had different wounds on their body compared to the others. There are signs that show the attack seemed to be made using blood aura.”

“So you think there’s a chance the other side has vampires working for them?”

“Maybe, but there is also the possibility that these two students were killed before the bloodsuckers arrived. Maybe a dispute over the flags, someone went too far and killed them both. Or, maybe one of the students or teachers were working for the Bloodsuckers. It would make sense as to how they were aware of the training taking place in the first place.”

“I’ll start conducting a search and see if we can find out any more information about these two boys. I’ll check who were the last people to see them alive.”

Hearing them talking, was giving Nicu the shakes. He held out his hand in front of him trying to keep it straight, but it wouldn’t stop shaking. His heartbeat was out of control and beating like a regular human.

‘Will they think I’m working with the blood suckers?’ Nicu started to think.

They hadn’t found out yet, but Nicu being a young boy was having irrational thoughts. He started to go down a deep dark hole of negativity. If they were to find out he killed them what would happen to him? Would he be stripped of his title, his chances of becoming the next leader disappearing?

‘Maybe if I just explain the situation to them?’ He thought. That would have just given him a small slap on the wrist. Surely they would believe him.

Soon, the negative thoughts took over, and he was no longer thinking of the small outcomes, but just overly worrying about the big ones. He was eating away at his thumb nail.

‘They’re going to banish me from the first family, put me in a cell. I’m going to rot and be executed, all because of a misunderstanding. I can’t let that happen, I can’t let them think I was the one that killed those students. I Have to do something.’ Nicu thought, looking in the direction of Eirn.

My Vampire System Chapter 720: Taking the blame

The longer Nicu was leaving things, the more his mind was going to strange thoughts. The disappointment, the shame he would bring to his family. If he didn't do something then his whole life would be ruined.

When one got to this point, they needed to speak to someone to rationalise their thoughts, a friend to tell them what they were thinking was crazy, but Nicu had no one but himself. He felt like he had to do something, before everything got out of hand.

From the two of the vampire knights that were talking with the inspector earlier on, he spotted one of them speaking to students and decided to approach him. The knight he was approaching worked for the twelfth family, the Killton family. These guys always seemed a bit snobbish when someone would speak to them.

As if they had a different upbringing even compared to the descendants. When drinking blood, they would do so by placing it in the perfect glass, and the blood would have to be at the perfect temperature. Small sips would be made from here and there.

The twelfth family was a major family that was against the idea of the vampires making their own blood. Although they weren't blood addicts, they were certainly blood connoisseurs, and there had been rumours that he had requested to see some of the humans they had caught multiple times, however they were always refused.

The king had made a deal, and he would keep to the deal.

The knight he approached was quite the young looking person named Jax. He had high spikes back hair and his uniform didn't have a single crease on it. Although it was always hard to tell how old vampires were especially the higher up in rank they went.

"Master Nicu, I was just about to come and see you." Jax said.

The relationship between the first and twelfth family wasn't a bad one, but it wasn't as if they were best of friends. This was the case for a lot of the families

On his way over, Nicu had ironed his will repeating in his head, what he was going to say a number of times. He didn't want to appear nervous in front of the knight. It was strange how before he was panicking, but now, he had already decided to dump a certain person, he was back to his usual self.

"I overheard you talking with the other knight before," said Nicu. "As you know, those two were in my team. The truth is, I didn't want to say anything before because I didn't want the vampire in question to get in trouble, but now that you are running an investigation, I don't think the vampire knights time should be wasted.

"Before we encountered the blood suckers, we came across Rokene's team. They were trying to take our flags, and she, used her blood swipe against us. At the same time, I sensed the bloodsuckers appearing and went to deal with them, and that's when it happened. The two students fell due to her attacks." Nicu said without faltering and looking towards Erin.

"That's the new turned from the tenth family." Jax said after inspecting her for a while. "Prima was right, he said the tenth family would bring us trouble, I guess since they were a former human, she feels nothing attacking us."

This was excellent news for Nicu, he had no clue that Erin was someone who had been turned, and was a past human at that. The only ones that did know of this information, were the vampire knights and the leaders. As Quinn had gotten permission from the king to do so.

It looked like all the blame would easily be falling on her now.

"Thanks for the information," Jax said. "You did an excellent job in protecting them all, and defeating that bloodsucker. I will be sure to mention this to my leader and hope they pass it on to the king's castle. We need more vampires like you."

The praise made him happier than ever, and it looked like he was going to get some unexpected rewards out of all of this. He never wanted to take claim for something he hadn't done, but what was the harm in it.

Soon, Erin would be out of the picture and he would be the only one. No one would believe the tenth family over a direct decendent.

Jax had immediately gone over to where Erin was, she was currently listening away to the three boys and Amy talk about what just happened. They were making up thier own theories as to why they were suddenly attacked by bloodsuckers. But the one who had the most interesting story to tell, was Amy. Who was describing the odd giant bloodsucker.

Before Jax had even arrived, Erin started to walk towards him as well. Just from his aura alone, she could tell who he was looking for.

“Oh, it seems you know you have done wrong and have come to turn yourself in,” Jax said.

“Not at all,” Erin replied. “I just didn’t want to waste my time waiting for you to come over to me.”

*WHACK

A sharp slapping sound was heard and Eirn’s cheek had gone bright red. For once, she hadn’t seen the aura move before the hand did. Also, she wasn’t expecting to be hit out of the blue like that.

“You don’t talk to a vampire knight like so, even if you were human, where are your manners? You should show respect to those that are higher than you. I am a vampire knight and I should be treated like one.” Jax said.

Eirn’s breathing was out of control as the same energy as before was rising in her, but she needed to calm down. She was doing everything she could to hold herself back. Everyone near by who was talking and yapping away, had turned to look at the incident.

“Now onto the matter of business,” Jax continued. “There have been reports that the two students’ deaths were not done by the bloodsucker but by a student, and an eyewitness has said that student was you. You are to be restrained until further notice.”

“What!” Erin shouted, having now managed to restrain most of the strange energy, her Qi control helped with that greatly. “I didn’t kill anyone.”

“Now you are lying in front of a vampire knight, your punishments will only add up. Dear Nicu said he saw you kill them with your own blood aura.”

“That’s not true.” Xander interfered.. “When the bloodsuckers came, he was the one who had hit them and killed them.”

“Xander huh, you have always had the soft spot for women, on top of this I believe you would have a grudge against Nicu, in fact, the whole tenth family would have. I can’t believe you all are accusing the one that saved you from the bloodsuckers, do none of you have any pride?”

“He saved us!?” Erin shouted, her blood boiling. “He was shivering there like a log when he killed his fellow students, he didn’t even lift a finger against the bloodsuckers. I was the one who killed them!”

Many in the room started to laugh at what they had just heard.

“Does she think just because she got the best score on one silly test, that she would be strong enough to kill a bloodsucker?”

“Enough of your lies,” Jax said. “I will now tie you until we reach the castle.”

Jax took one step forward, and Erin looked up at him, she had given him a daring look, saying if he was to take one step closer, she would attack him and he could feel this.

Not holding back like he did last time, he reacted to this himself. Lifting his hand by his side, he was preparing to slap Erin on the face again. Swinging out his hand, it was too fast for Erin to do anything.

She thought she had gotten stronger, better, but a vampire knight was still beyond what she could deal with. Then, bits of blood had splattered across Erin’s face, and the sound of something hitting the floor was heard.

She felt no pain, and her face was perfectly fine.

“Arghhh!!!” An almighty scream came from Jax. “My arm, my arm!”

When she wiped her face, she could see that Jax’s arm was on the floor.

“If you try hurting my family member one more time, the next thing that will be rolling is your head.”
Leo said.