The next week went by quite fast, Ethan did it well the duties Lina although I know the already Chwilindent work in woon' suck was vayustul She was a remarkable Lunawalithe shocked to find that Emily didn't attend any training. I think every Luminor INT won should know how to last protect hire That was definitely the first goal I wanted to achieve

With almost every pack member. They were nice and friendly. We talked and got to know each other better. It was still a little weird being called Lumia, but I guessed it would get easier with time

It was still not marked. We had decided to wait until after Blake's birthday party. I still needed to talk with Ryan about the changes in my life.

I heard the unisatisfied pack members were actually thinking that I was unqualified for the position of Luna because of my human status. Weird, because I had at least three magnificent Lunas who were human. So I had a lot of work to do to convince them. Once, I approached Brian trying to clear the air but it was futile. He was still angry, and I didn't know the reason,

The most disturbing thing was the strange messages I started receiving on my phone, things like, 'You'll pay for this daggers his way while he took a seat at the dining table, still laughing

"Do you suspect someone?" Han asked nervously.

We were in Ethan's office. Ethan sat in his chair. Ben and Peter on the couch, and I was sitting on the desk. Ethan shook his head. We all sighed and started to think, nobody

"Ok" I jumped off the desk and stood beside it to face them all. "We need to analyze this calmly and thoroughly." I looked at everyone, getting their attention. "The note is addressed to Ethan saying he took something." I paused and they all nodded. "Have you received any notes before?" I asked Ethan.

"No, this is the first one." he answered leaning back in

We rowed to the shore and after settling the boat on the sand we went back to the pack house, laughing and joking.

While Blake was napping. I decided to see Ethan.

"What's going on?" I asked confused after entering Ethan's office. Ben and Peter were with him talking agitated. They looked shocked seeing me and tried to distract me from the topic

"Here's the Luna, what great job did you do today baby girl?" Peter stood up and asked bringing me to the couch.

dumbfounded. Sighing I told them about the messages.

They were pissed I didn't tell them.

"I thought it was related to my boss's situation I'm helping him with, but after the word 'damaged' I started to think and I'm pretty sure it's her." I explained. Ethan was shaking his head.

"It can't be her. She's staying at her ex-boyfriend's pack right now in another state. It's impossible." Ethan answered.

"Then who would want to take Amanda? She was nagging you to accept her as your Luna, maybe someone told her about Mandy being your mate?" Peter asked, believing my theory. Ethan was still shaking his head in denial

"Who's her ex-boyfriend, maybe we could ask him about it?" Ben offered a solution and we all waited for Ethan's answer. But his what he said was something I didn't expect to hear in million years.

"Andrew Miller."

"Shit!!!"
