Not One, But Two Chapter 10 Are You Sure You Won't Come

"Alissa, this is against the law." Arianna was about to cry.

Her sister was so daring; didn't Alissa know it was dangerous to do so? Nonetheless, Arianna still compromised under Alissa's coercion and persuasion, but on the condition that Alissa needed to keep in touch with herself at all times.

Thus, Alissa naturally agreed.

The two of them did some hacking before Alissa dragged her trolley case to the airport. She quickly found the woman Arianna had tagged to her, and she quietly followed the woman through the security check.

When the plane landed at the airport in Zyrtonia, Alissa was overjoyed.

"I'm here, Daddy," said Alissa. As she cheered and clapped, her outstanding and sweet appearance immediately attracted the attention of many people.

"What a beautiful little princess."

"Yeah, why aren't her parents following along?"

The chatter of the people around made Alissa a little wary. She hurriedly called out to a woman who was about to walk out of the airport, "I was wrong, Mommy! Don't be angry! Wait for me."

As she said that, she ran over with her long legs. At this point, everyone thought that she had angered her mother because of her mischief.

Once Alissa ran out of the airport lobby, her sweet smile gradually subsided. What she didn't tell Arianna was that she didn't come here simply to find their father. She also wanted to see why this rich and powerful sc*mbag didn't want their family. She and her sister had been ridiculed for so many years, and their mother had suffered so much alone.

As she thought about this, she hailed a taxi.

"Take me to Global Inc."

Her soft voice surprised the cab driver.

“Are you alone, little girl?”

“My daddy is waiting for me at the company. Go quickly, and I will give you lots of money.”

Although Alissa was a little girl, her aura made the taxi driver a little startled, so he subconsciously drove her to Global Inc.

Global Inc was one of the four tallest buildings in the city. As Alissa looked at the building so high up in the clouds, her brows furrowed slightly while her little mind churned quickly.

“Little girl, we’ve arrived at Global Inc. Where is your family?” the taxi driver asked.

“Wait a minute.”

Alissa called Arianna and said, “Arianna, give me Daddy’s phone number. I want his private cell.”

Arianna sighed and typed on the computer resignedly. In a few seconds, Greg’s phone number appeared on the screen.

“Alissa, do you want to get straight to the point with him?”

“It’s the most effective way, isn’t it? Well, I’ll be carrying on with my business first. Bye.”

After Alissa hung up the phone, she immediately called Greg’s number.

Greg was still waiting at the door of the hospital’s surgery room. It had been more than two hours, and the lights in the surgery room were still on. Naturally, this made him a little impatient.

Abigail still looked too young to him, and there was no background information about her in the past five years. He wondered if it was really fine to hand his mother into her hands. The more he thought about it, the more he couldn’t sit still.

Greg frowned slightly the moment his phone rang. Not many people knew his private phone number, and he could count them with one hand. Who was calling him now?

He took out his phone and frowned at the unfamiliar number on the phone.

An unfamiliar number?

He hung up immediately since he was feeling irritable.

It was the first time Alissa's call had been rejected like that, so she became quite angry all of a sudden.

This man is so disrespectful.

She called Greg again, but he hung up on her at once.

Alissa's stubborn temper was also provoked at this point, so she persevered and called repeatedly.

Meanwhile, Greg was about to go mad.

Who is this person?

He was so annoyed by the phone calls that he wanted to kill the other person. Thus, he suddenly answered the call and said with a cold voice, "You'd better be someone important, or else you're dead."

"Daddy, I'm at the entrance of your company, waiting for you to give me the cab money. Come here quickly."

When the soft voice came from the phone, Greg was completely dumbfounded.

He glanced at his phone doubtfully, but the other party had already hung up. Just then, he received a photo message.

When Greg opened it, Alissa's sweet photo appeared on his phone.

She looked exactly like him!

'I'm four years old this year! My mommy is an internationally renowned doctor. Daddy, are you sure you won't come?' Alissa sent another text message.

Greg was stunned when he read this.

Four years old!

An internationally renowned doctor!

These two messages made his mind work quickly, and when he glanced at the direction of the operating room, his eyes became a little darker.

"Keep watch here on my behalf. Once this woman called Abigail Kain comes out, watch her closely no matter where she goes. I won't allow her to leave until I come back!"

Greg proceeded to leave, whereas Troy and the others were dazed.

The man had even delayed his meeting with the mayor today because of his mother's surgery, but he simply left because of a phone call.

Who called him?

Although everyone was puzzled, no one dared to step forward to ask. They could only watch Greg as he walked out of the hospital.

As soon as he walked out, Greg lit his cigarette because he needed some nicotine to settle his mood.

He and that woman had a child between them, yet she actually kept such an important matter from him.

Could this be a prank?

Even if it was just a prank, how could that kid look so much like him?

Greg's heart was disturbed.

If he simply met the woman who violated him five years ago, he had ways to get back at her for the humiliation he suffered back then, but if there was already a child between them, then...

Greg took a hard puff of his cigarette, and no one could see his face in the mist. Then, he stepped on the accelerator abruptly and drove toward Global Inc.

When his car arrived at the entrance, he saw a small figure standing there, holding a phone in her hand as if she was playing a game. With a lollipop in her mouth and a cap on her head, her face was full of impatience.

This child gave a cold and aloof impression, but for some reason, Greg's heart felt soft at the sight of her.

Is that my daughter?

When the real girl appeared in front of him, he suddenly became a little excited and agitated. He quickly got out of the car and walked straight toward Alissa. As a black shadow enveloped her, Alissa raised her head suddenly, and her impatient expression suddenly solidified.

This man is so handsome!

He is my own daddy!

My daddy is so handsome!

Alissa paused for three seconds before jumping up abruptly into Greg's arms. She shouted happily, "Daddy! I've found you!"

Her soft voice rang clear in the air, immediately washing away all the doubts and irritability in Greg's heart. He squatted down and hugged Alissa tightly in his arms, but he still felt like he was dreaming.

I've actually become a father!
