

On The Run 100

Chapter 100

Alpha On The Hunt Chapter 25

I was gone for the weekend. Yet getting home, the place was in chaos, and anyone would think I had been gone for months. Women had complaints, and orders for supplies, and the account had left messages about the bakery and Marco had dropped off the appeal my father placed against the title. He is trying to say it was done while he was intoxicated.

Which is laughable because if you know my father, he isn't much of a drinker and when he does drink, it's never enough that he actually gets drunk. The man has control issues, and that extends to not being in control of his own body.

"Do that first! Get settled, then we'll chat." Sondra says, making yet another cup of tea. She watches me for a few seconds while she waits for the kettle to boil.

"Are you going over the documents Marco dropped off last night?" She asks me and I hold them up.

"Marco said he already rejected it, but he still had to drop them off."

"You and Marco are close?" I ask her and she shrugs.

"Yes, we are. We always will be. I met Marco first." She shrugs, pouring the hot water into the mug and jiggling the tea bag.

"How?"

"So curious." She laughs.

lived in the apartment next to me. We

0.00%

didn't go over well when chuckle.

not. I had no idea he had a brother, so it was quite a shock when Floyd came looking for him. He was caught up in some legal drama and needed his help, they hadn't spoken for a few months, and Marco wanted out of that lifestyle, so when he came barging into his just let you go?" I

to do. I was that didn't upset you?"

upset. I thought I was going to be a journalist and marry Marco, and run off into they got still. He just always made

you run off

the mate bond. That was the most confusing part. Humans aren't mated shakes her head.

was unheard of. But we got

"What do you mean?"

born to a beta and human woman. Only instead of getting the werewolf genes, I came out human. I have some genes, just not the right