

Outcast: The Alpha King's Beloved

Chapter 231

Daniel's POV:

When my father was safe in his home, I immediately sent for a doctor to check on him.

"I must say, Alpha Marlon's condition is a bit strange. It seems as though he's being stimulated by some unknown drug, which is what's affecting his heart rate. But I can't be too sure..."

Frowning, the doctor looked at my father, who was laying weakly in bed.

"But we have been very careful with the medicine we prescribed. There shouldn't be a problem."

"Just please take good care of my father. If anything happens, inform us immediately," I told the doctor seriously.

"Of course. Rest assured we will keep a close watch on Alpha Marlon's condition. Don't worry."

The doctor bowed to me respectfully.

"Don't worry, my child," my father said softly.

"I think I'm getting better. I'm sure I'll be able to see you two get married. Actually, I'm really looking forward to your wedding with Helen. Every time you visit me is a joy."

"Then Helen and I will visit you often," I said with a smile.

"Rest well, Dad, and take good care of yourself."

"Alright, you two can go now. I'll take things from here."

"My mother pulled the quilt over my father and tucked him in gently."

"Visit us again tomorrow."

"Okay, we will. Call us if you need anything."

After bidding them goodbye, Helen and I left.

When we got home, I thought about how enthusiastic Devin was today and couldn't help but feel suspicious.

"Helen, what do you think Devin's up to? His attitude changed way too fast."

As Helen shrugged off and hung her coat, she sighed and looked at me seriously.

"I agree. Grace and Devin have been acting strange, but we can't just jump to conclusions. I don't know what to think of them."

I frowned hesitantly.

"Maybe... Maybe they really have thought it through and are now open-minded. People change, you know."

"Daniel, you'd better keep an eye on them. Don't forget how your brother threatened you. I'm afraid that he will hurt you."

Helen reached for my hand, unconvinced.

"Honey, don't worry. I won't let my guard down."

I patted her on the shoulder reassuringly.

"Oh, let's call Jennifer! They should've made it to the snow mountain by now."

Helen picked up her phone.

That reminded me.

Even though Jennifer and Anthony were able to overturn Austin's rule, they were still faced with the difficulty of the Love Curse.

"Honey, Visit to read the newest content, everyone! dejectedly after a while.

"What could've happened to them?"

"I doubt there's signal on the snow mountain," I said quickly, not wanting Helen to Visit to read the newest content, everyone! sure they're fine."

"Daniel, I really hope that Jennifer can make it to our wedding,"

Helen mumbled, wrapping her arms around my neck.

"Maybe they will, Helen." I kissed her forehead.

"They've been gone a while now, so they should be back soon."

"I hope you're right," Helen said with a laugh.

"Let's record the wedding on video! Even if Jennifer can't come, at least she'll still see me in my wedding dress!" Helen's optimism was so infectious, I couldn't help but smile.

Jennifer's POV:

It had been several days since I came to read the newest content, everyone! in Morgan's home.

One morning, I woke up to find Anthony next to me, as pale as a ghost.

It looked like the Love Curse was attacking him again, which made my heart ache alongside his.

"Anthony, we have rested enough. Let's go look for the divine flower today," I said to Anthony over breakfast.

"The Love Curse has been attacking you more frequently lately. We can't afford to lose any more time."

"But Jennifer, your wounds haven't healed yet," Anthony protested.

"I'm fine, Anthony. I can run and jump now." I shook my head stubbornly.

"Anthony, please. I don't want to wait any longer. I can't stand the thought that you may suffer from a heart attack at any time." Anthony studied me for a while in silence.

I held my breath, hoping he would agree.

"Okay!"

Anthony finally relented with a sigh.

"If you're sure you're okay, let's go. But we can't rush this. We need to be vigilant, in case another avalanche comes at us out of nowhere."

"Of course. I'll listen to you, Anthony!"

I nodded repeatedly, feeling a bit of the weight being lifted off my chest.

As Anthony rested, I hurriedly packed up all our belongings. When we were all set, we went to the study to see Morgan to announce our intention to leave.

"Morgan, now that we're almost completely healed, we're going to look for the Tear of Edith. Thanks for all of your help," I told Morgan gratefully.

"Yes, thank you for everything," Anthony echoed.

"I can write a letter for you. Just present it to the palace guard and they'll let you in to see Amelia."

"No need," Morgan replied with a smile, taking us aback.

"I will wait here for you to come back. You rescued my Amelia, so I will do everything in my power to help you. Don't hesitate to come back here should you get injured so that I can heal you."

"Thank you so much, Morgan." I thanked him profusely.

"You're welcome. Before you go, let me show you the general direction of the divine flower."

Morgan stood up and strode over to the window.

Pointing his finger at the sun, he instructed, "Follow the direction of the sun. After half a day's journey, you will come across a lake of ice. The divine flower grows on the cliff beside the lake."

Anthony and I took note.

Thanking Morgan one last time, we finally set off to look for the divine flower.

Before we left, Morgan gave us pain-killing potion and potion to withstand the cold, which boosted our morale.

Hours passed.

Anthony and I treaded across the snow carefully.

Finally, right before sunset, we saw the ice lake Morgan mentioned in the distance.

The ice lake looked boundless, like an enchanted fairyland of snow.

And Morgan was right; there was a steep cliff right next to the lake.

"Ready? Let's go, Jennifer."

Anthony squeezed my hand tightly.

"I was born ready," I said jokingly, trying to cheer myself up.

"This is nothing compared to what we went through at the training camp."

“Then, let’s go!”

Anthony chuckled and pressed his lips on the back of my hand.

“I swear to Moon Goddess that I will love you forever.”

If I wasn’t mistaken, there was a hint of desperation in Anthony’s tone.

With tears in my eyes, I swore to myself that I would do everything in my power to pluck that divine flower for Anthony.

Then, we started climbing.

Not a word was exchanged, as Anthony and I were focused solely on climbing the steep cliff side.

We were both outstandingly athletic, but the real challenge to climbing the cliff was psychological.

Knowing that one false move could result in plunging to our death took a heavy toll on our mental strength.

Fortunately, we moved cautiously enough to not make any mistakes on the way up.

Half an hour later, Anthony’ and I were almost at the top of the cliff.

Despite only half an hour passing, it felt like an eternity had passed.

As we reached the peak, I immediately caught a glimpse of the glowing Tear of Edith on the top of the cliff.

It was breathtaking.

While it resembled lavender in form, it emitted a dazzling light.

Even at a glance, one could tell it was an extraordinary flower.

The Love Curse could finally be lifted from Anthony!

Outcast: The Alpha King’ s Beloved Chapter 232

Anthony’s POV:

When I finally made it to the cliff top, my eyes were immediately drawn to the legendary Tear of Edith. It was stunning.

When Jennifer saw the flower, she burst into tears and threw herself into my arms.

"Anthony, we made it!" Jennifer sobbed.

"We'll finally have our happy ending!"

"My love, you've been so brave and I'm so thankful I have you."

I smiled at her wistfully and held her in my arms tightly.

Just then, I noticed the countless scratches and bruises on her skin from climbing the cliff side. I couldn't help but feel guilty and sad.

"Jennifer, you're injured."

"Honey, as long as we can rid you of the Love Curse, this is nothing!"

Jennifer hugged me affectionately.

I cupped her pretty face with my hands and couldn't help but kiss her.

She was my mate. She encouraged me, accompanied me, and helped me reach where I was today.

"Anthony, let's go to pluck the Tear of Edith together,"

Jennifer suggested, to which I nodded.

Morgan had once mentioned that, in order to pluck the flower, we needed to work together.

Hand in hand, Jennifer and I started walking forward cautiously.

Holding our breath, we both focused on putting one foot in front of the other.

Fortunately, we arrived at the divine flower without any incident.

"Are you ready? Anthony, let's pick the flower in three...two..."

Jennifer held my hand tightly as we reached for the flower simultaneously.

Just then, the earth beneath us rumbled.

Before our fingertips even brushed the flower, the ground under our feet suddenly gave way.

Realizing something was wrong, I tried to pull Jennifer out of harm's way, but it was too late.

"Jennifer!"

I shouted, eyes wide with fear.

Countless cracks formed on the ground.

Jennifer lost her balance and was about to fall.

In that moment, I felt my soul leave my body.

Without thinking, I pounced towards Jennifer in an effort to catch her.

I succeeded in catching her, but that didn't stop us from falling.

With one hand in Jennifer's, I desperately reached out the other to grab onto something—anything—to stop us from falling.

Fortunately, I Visit to read the newest content, everyone! cliff.

I tightened my grip firmly and tried my best to pull Jennifer up.

With my strength, it would've been an easy task any Visit to read the newest content, everyone! cliff and the branch were covered in slippery ice.

Despite my best efforts, I felt my grip loosening.

Damn it!

"Anthony, don't waste your energy. If you don't let go of me, you'll fall down too and we'll both be dead!"

Jennifer yelled with tears on her face, her feet dangling dangerously in the air.

"You know I can't do that!"

I gritted my teeth, trying desperately to find a firm grip.

"I can't watch you die!"

"But you will also die!"

Jennifer smiled bitterly.

"Let go of me, Honey. At least one of us has to read the newest content, everyone! to my heart. Silly girl, how could she do this to me?"

"No, Jennifer. I want to be with you until the end, even if I have to die."

Tears ran down my cheeks.

"I never want to be separated from you, Jennifer. Without you, my life has no meaning. How's that better than dying?"

I winced and broke out in cold sweat.

It felt as though my shoulder was about to dislocate.

"Let me go, Anthony!" Jennifer pleaded.

"Never! I'll never let go of you, Jennifer!"

I smiled at her, tears welling up in my eyes.

With all my strength, I tried one more time to pull her up.

"Anthony!"

Jennifer cried out desperately.

Suddenly, I felt a strong force surge within my body.

Gritting my teeth, I closed my eyes tightly as I pulled Jennifer. Po Jennifer's POV:
Seconds earlier, I thought I was doomed.

I saw my life flashing before my eyes.

Before I knew it, Anthony had managed to pull me onto the tree trunk, but I was still very much in a state of shock.

"Jennifer?"

Anthony's voice brought me back to reality.

When I saw his face, I burst into tears and threw myself into his arms.

"Anthony, Anthony!"

I kept calling his name, as though I knew nothing else.

And Anthony responded to me again and again.

He too was crying profusely, his tears landing on my hands.

The once noble, calm prince was now crying for me.

Moments earlier, he was placed in such a difficult position.

Instead of letting me go so he could live, he would rather die alongside me.

And all this was because he loved me.

I was so moved that I was at a loss for words.

“Anthony, you fool. You’re the future lycan king. How could you have abandoned thousands of citizens just to save me? They can’t afford to lose you! I’m just an ordinary she-wolf. You shouldn’t risk your life for me!” I struggled to sit up on the branch.

“Jennifer, I will risk my life for yours ten more times if I have to. Plus, if I can’t even protect my own mate, how can I protect my people? I just made up my mind. If you fell, I would jump too. At least that way, we’d be together.”

Anthony looked at me affectionately.

His voice was a little hoarse, but it moved me even more I started tearing up again.

“Come on, Honey. Let’s try again.”

As Anthony spoke, he held out his hand to help me up.

This time, he didn’t let go.

The whole climb back up to the top of the cliff, he held my hand firmly and guided me.

For some reason, it was a much easier climb this time than the last.

It didn’t take long before we made it back to the top.

“Anthony, the divine flower is shining even brighter now!” I shouted in surprise.

“Maybe Edith has granted us her blessing.”

Anthony smiled and wiped the tears off my cheeks.

“Let’s pick the flower together.”

I nodded with determination and took a deep breath.

Then, the two of us trudged forward.

I held my breath, but we made it to the Tear of Edith without a hitch this time.

Together, we reached out and touched the divine flower with trembling hands.

With a gentle pull, we plucked the flower easily.

I stared at the Tear of Edith in our hands with disbelief.

“Oh, my God, Anthony...”

I could hardly believe that we had really made it this far.

“Am I dreaming? Did we really just pluck the Tear of Edith?” I asked Anthony, still staring at the divine flower.

“Will we finally have our happy ending?”

“It was your deep love for me that moved Edith,” Anthony said with a smile.

He pulled me close and kissed my lips softly.

“Jennifer, words can’t describe how happy I am to have met you. It’s thanks to you that the Love Curse will be lifted.”

“If the roles were reversed, you would’ve done the same thing for me, right?” I smiled, kissing Anthony back.

After everything we had been through, we were exhausted physically, but we were in incredibly high spirits.

Instead of resting, we decided to head back to Morgan’s house with the Tear of Edith.

As we made the journey back, Anthony and I kept exchanging smiles.

We were unprecedentedly happy.

I knew that there was no obstacle in the world that could separate us again.