

Passive Skills 78

Chapter 78 Traversing Four Seas

the instance had nothing to do with Zhang Shan for the time being. At his current level, he could only enter the second level of the demon subduing platform.

Currently, it was practically impossible to gather enough teams to clear the second floor of the dungeon. It was impossible even for normal difficulty.

The difficulty of clearing the demon-subduing platform instance dungeon was already well known.

It was a random group formed by solo players, even if it was the normal difficulty of the first floor. There was also no precedent of clearing it.

Currently, only the elite teams of the major guilds had been able to clear the normal difficulty. The random groups could only enter the dungeon to kill the mobs. If they were lucky, they could fight the Sentry Captain.

As for The Guardian boss, the priest, to the wild teams, it was still like a mountain that could not be crossed.

The second level of the demon-subduing platform was probably the same as the first level. It wouldn't be too simple. It might even be more difficult than the first level.

Zhang Shan planned to take some time in two days to enter the dungeon and kill some small monsters. If he were to encounter an orange BOSS, he would see if he could try to take it down.

As for clearing the second floor of the dungeon, he didn't have any thoughts about it.

Killing monsters makes me happy.

Zhang Shan was quietly farming monsters. From time to time, he would browse the forum. Playing games also required learning from each other.

It was easy to take a detour if he closed his door.

Looking at other people's thoughts and opinions might be helpful to him. In any case, he had a lot of free time when grinding monsters.

Zhang Shan saw one of the posts. It was probably about the auction of the broken ring. It was posted by the seller.

Zhang Shan had bid one million for the ring.

Haha, someone actually bid a million for a piece of junk.

The post owner even attached a picture of the attributes of a damaged ring.

Although Zhang Shan was very sure that this was a damaged artifact, as long as the corresponding NPC was found, it could be repaired.

But no one else knew.

It was because the item's description was too simple. If Zhang Shan had not repaired a divine weapon before, he would not have believed that this ring was actually a divine weapon.

[damaged ring: this is a severely damaged ring. It emits a faint mysterious aura. I wonder where it came from and what its use is?]

Such a description would at most make people think that the ring was a mission item.

however, he had no idea what kind of mission this ring would trigger, or who he should look for to trigger the mission.

It could only be said that this ring was also quite valuable, but without any clues, it was only worth collecting.

If the auction house didn't set the buyout price at one million, there would be someone else who would win.

After all, every mission item was a rare item. Who knew when a mission would be triggered.

However, if the price reached one million, it would not be worth it for many people.

This allowed Zhang Shan to pick up a bargain.

The auction house was still posting on the forum, as if they had picked up a big bargain.

There were many comments below the post.

"Could it be someone else's mistake and clicked on the wrong button?"

"How is that possible? Who would have a million gold coins on them when they made the wrong call?"

" maybe some big shot has taken a fancy to this ring. maybe he knows how to trigger this mission. " impossible. The item description doesn't have any hint. How can it know how to trigger the mission? " that's right, it's impossible. The only way is to run around with the ring and try our luck to see if we can meet the corresponding quest NPC.

I don't think it's that simple. I believe the original poster has already tried this trick, but he still couldn't find the quest NPC. That's why he put it up for auction. Otherwise, how could he have sold it? "

"Maybe some Big Shot just wants to collect it?"

"Who would spend a million gold coins to buy a game collection?"

"We don't understand the world of the big shots."

"Do you guys think that this ring could be a divine artifact? It's only damaged, but it can be used after a little repair?"

"Have you gone crazy thinking about divine artifacts? How was that possible?"

"Why is it impossible? where did the divine weapon of six-barreled Bodhisattva come from?"

"I heard that it was made by an NPC in the East Capital."

“Then where did he get the materials and blueprints for forging divine artifacts? The game has only just started. It’s possible for him to get one of them, but I don’t believe that he has all the materials and the blueprint.”

“Maybe it’s a reward for completing a mission.”

“That’s right. Six-barreled Bodhisattva is too selfish. He didn’t even announce the method to obtain the divine weapon.”

“If you knew how to get a divine artifact, would you have announced the method?”

“I won’t, hehe.”

“Bitch.”

He saw that there were people who guessed that this broken ring might have something to do with a divine artifact.

Zhang Shan couldn’t help but sigh. Since ancient times, great gods had always been mentioned.

how could he have guessed this?

...

However, it was useless to guess. A guess was a guess.

There were very few people who would directly bet a million gold coins on a guess, and on the surface, the probability was not high.

However, this time, the auction house had posted the matter on the forum.

after all, someone had bought it for a million yuan.

If they didn’t urgently need gold coins, they wouldn’t put it up for auction.

this damn seller had cut off zhang shan’s way of picking up scraps.

He probably wouldn’t have such an opportunity again in the future. In the future, he could only think of ways to sweep up some divine materials.

When he had collected enough divine materials, it would be equivalent to monopolizing half of the way to obtain divine artifacts.

It would be useless for others to have the quest items without divine materials, hehe.

Just as Zhang Shan was browsing the forums, a message in the world Channel pulled him back into the game.

[eastern sea dragon king: the traversing four seas guild has been officially established. we welcome all capable players to dreamcloud city to make a name for themselves in the new world.]

...

A world announcement attracted everyone’s attention.

No one would have thought that the second Guild to be established wouldn't be from one of the top ten guilds, but a new force they had never heard of.

Traversing Four Seas should be the nouveau riche who had bought the heroes' medallion this morning.

He acted very quickly. Now, the other nine guilds were in an awkward position.

Especially the war god Guild, which had been the number one Guild in the game for a long time. Now, even the first and second places had been taken by others.

That's not the style of a gaming big brother.

[God of War Li Jing: congratulations.]

King Xiaoyao,"Dragon King of the East Sea, we're in the same city. Don't cause trouble."

[domineering King: Xiaoyao King, you're finished. You're falling behind by one step, hehe.]

[fearless of Jianghu: congratulations.]

[world dragon slaying saber: congratulations on the establishment of traversing Four Seas. All members of the world Guild will join traversing Four Seas from this day forth. Tremble in fear, scum. Haha.]

"F * ck, what's going on? Had the heaven and earth Guild been incorporated?"

"The New World is going to be lively this time. Traversing Four Seas is like a dragon crossing the river."

Dragon King of the East Sea: " Feng Yun realm, I'll be taking care of the heaven and earth Guild from now on. Give me some face and don't cause them any trouble.

Wind and cloud blade: " who the hell are you? " Can you protect them?

Before Feng Yun realm could say anything, Feng Yun one blade from the Guild had already retorted the eastern sea Dragon King.

Dragon King of the East Sea: " very good. I was just thinking about how to make the first shot. I'll use your wind and cloud Guild as a sacrifice.

Eh? Are you looking for trouble with us? just what kind of a guild was traversing four seas? They couldn't possibly have come all the way from Yunmeng city to Dangyang city, right?