

Passive Skills 85

Chapter 85 Information on the Guild War

These big shots were still concerned about the axe dropped by the Dragon King of the East Sea. This was good. After his red name disappeared, he could return to the city and put it up for a high price in the auction house, hehe.

the axe is still here. Once it's no longer famous, put it up for auction.

the boss of the divine weapon is still living a carefree life. The people from traversing Four Seas are indeed bragging. It's confirmed.

I'm impressed by your Bullsh * t. Don't you know that you'll be slapped in the face at the speed of light?
”

“My face is already swollen.”

I had thought that traversing Four Seas would be a formidable force. It seems that I have overestimated them.

“with such strength, he still wants to challenge the wind and cloud guild. tomorrow's guild battle will probably be a crushing one.”

“that's for sure. if they can't even deal with six-barreled bodhisattva alone, how can they possibly defeat the entire wind and cloud guild?”

“I wonder how the Guild War in the New World will be carried out.”

“i don't know. there wasn't any announcement on the forum, so the two guilds should know. otherwise, how would they be prepared?”

“brother world, what is the form of the guild war? if you know, tell me.”

I haven't seen it yet. I'm in the middle of a dungeon. I'll go and take a look after I'm done. I'll get someone to post it on the forum if there's any news.

At this moment, Zhang Shan recalled that he had originally wanted to go to the Guild section to see if there was any information regarding the Guild War.

He had almost forgotten about it when he was distracted by the heaven and earth Dragon slaying saber and the Dragon King of the East Sea.

As he killed monsters, he opened the Guild section to check. Sure enough, there was information about the Guild War.

Guild challenge.

[challenger: traversing Four Seas]

[challenged party: wind and cloud Guild.]

The time for the challenge was set at eight o'clock tomorrow night. It would last for an hour, and it would end early if one side lost or admitted defeat.

the challenger had to pay a challenge fee of one million gold coins. after winning, half of the gold coins would be returned, and the challenger would receive ten percent of the opponent's total contribution points.

If the challenged party fails, 10% of the Guild's total contribution will be deducted. If the challenged party wins, they will win the entire challenge fee of 1000000 gold coins and 10% of the Challenger's Guild's total contribution.

This was a winner takes all.

However, there were risks to the challenge. If they lost, they would have to pay the 1000000 Gold Challenge fee for nothing. They would also lose 10% of their total Guild contribution points.

The challenged party was better off, as they would only lose their contribution points.

However, when the Guild's level increased, 10% of the total contribution points would be a huge amount.

For now, this loss was not considered big.

[ number of participants: no more than 200 people from both sides can participate in the battle. ]

A combat power ranking. Both sides will have a ranking to display the combat power of the members of both sides in the Guild War.

Challenge form:

Both sides had three war flags, and if all of them were cut down, the battle would be a failure.

If the challenge time ended and the challenged party still had the battle flag, the challenge would be considered a failure.

Both sides had a resurrection point. The first time a player died in battle, the resurrection time was one minute, the second resurrection time was three minutes, and so on.

All attributes will be increased when both parties are near the battle flag. a level 1 battle flag would increase it by 10%, while a level 2 battle flag would increase it by 20%.

And so on, the ninth-grade battle flag would increase all of his attributes by 90%.

Level 1 battle flag has 1000000 HP, Level 2 battle flag has 5000000 HP. For every level, the battle flag's HP will increase by five times.

The level of the war flag was the same as the level of the Guild.

F*ck, if the Guild were to level up to Level 5, wouldn't the battle flag's HP be over 600 million? Even if it was there, it wouldn't be able to cut it.

Not to mention, if the Guild reached level 9, the health value of the war flag would be so high that it was unimaginable.

This guild challenge mode had a huge advantage for the Guild with a higher level. When the Guild reached Level 5, who would dare to challenge it?

He was probably here to give money.

It took 100000 contribution points to level up a level 1 Guild to Level 2. The wind and cloud Guild now had more than 90000 contribution points and already had one guild building.

Traversing Four Seas was truly unlucky to have a level 1 Guild challenging a level 2 Guild.

The three war banners had a total of 15 million HP. Just by asking them to hack at them, it would take them a long time.

If the Dragon King of the East Sea knew this, he would probably regret it so much that his intestines would turn green.

this time, the guild war was in the bag. no matter what trump cards they had, even if they had instant-kill scrolls, it would be useless.

If he was killed, wouldn't the battle flag still be there? He still had to cut down the flag. The first death would resurrect in a minute, and that was not enough time to cut down a flag.

There couldn't possibly be more than one scroll.

Zhang Shan had always thought that the eastern sea Dragon King, who was so confident in challenging the wind cloud Guild, definitely had a trump card in his hand.

As for what kind of trump card it was, it wasn't hard to guess.

first of all, it was definitely not equipment, because there was no heaven-defying equipment on the equipment list.

It shouldn't be a skill, either. Just like the wrath of the stars, no one could use it even if they learned it. No one's magic limit could meet the casting requirements.

Even if they were really lucky and got a special item from the Cape that increased their maximum mana

...

...

It could only be used once. The cooldown time of such an ultimate skill was 24 hours.

Zhang Shan guessed that it should be a scroll, just like the scroll that he had used to destroy the priest. The silence scroll could silence a mage for five minutes, and it could completely cripple a mage for five minutes.

Perhaps the Dragon King of the East Sea had gotten his hands on some powerful scrolls, such as those with large area of effect damage, the kind that could kill a player in one hit.

Of course, there could be other types, but none of them were important. They couldn't rely on scrolls to cut down all of wind and cloud's war flags.

A boss with 10 million HP would take Zhang Shan and the rest half an hour to defeat. Those three war flags had a total of 15 million HP.

With two hundred people, it would take at least 20 minutes to hack non-stop. Not everyone's damage output was as strong as Zhang Shan's.

He didn't have to worry about the Guild War tomorrow. He just had to get rid of his red name first.

After closing the Guild section, Zhang Shan raised his head and looked ahead.

F * ck, Wolf King.

Not far away from Zhang Shan, the huge Wolf King stood there in an awe-inspiring manner.

zhang shan hurriedly backed away a little, keeping his distance from the wolf king.

...

What the f * ck, I was only looking at the information about the Guild War just now and almost ran into the Wolf King. That was close.

If he were to bump into them, he would be killed and sent back to the city. His crime value was now more than 700.

If he died and returned to the city, he would be locked up in a small black room for more than 70 hours. Just thinking about it was terrifying.

From the looks of it, he couldn't be too distracted when he was farming monsters in the future, especially when he was a red name.

It was too dangerous.

however, it was a good thing to find the wolf king. it was impossible to find a red boss that gave away equipment.

They had already fought once last time anyway, so another fight would be a piece of cake.

First, he would ask Windcloud blade to see how they were doing with the dungeon boss. After all, they had spent so much time clearing the dungeon.

Was he going to fail? was the hard mode of the dungeon that scary?