Chapter 92 Registration for the Guild War

Zhang Shan used the Panda baby to hook a team of army ants. There were more than 20 of them.

These demonized army ants didn't seem to be able to act alone. they were all in groups.

He tried his best to find the team with the least number, which was still more than 20.

The demonized army ant's attack power was 2400, and with the Panda baby's 100000 HP and thick defense, it was much stronger than the ants.

Twenty or so should be enough.

As long as he played faster, he should be fine.

He aimed at a random army ant and fired a bullet at it. The damage was 1507.

oh my god, zhang shan's 3800 attack power, plus the title of nemesis of the demon race, could only deal 1500 damage.

The damage had been suppressed by almost two-thirds.

a demonized army ant had 12000 hp. it would take at least eight hits to kill one.

Zhang Shan was a little depressed. However, it was fine as long as he could farm them. He would take it slow and wait until he reached level 26.

The level suppression effect should be reduced a little, and he should be able to farm faster.

Moreover, level 40 monsters gave more experience. A demonized army ant gave 420 experience points.

Their leveling speed would be slower than killing wild wolves, but it was still faster than other players.

Although the Army ant had the level advantage over Zhang Shan, reducing a large amount of his damage output, he had more critical hit special effects.

from time to time, he would deal a critical hit, especially a heavy strike and a holy strike. as long as he dealt one hit, he would instantly kill a monster.

On average, he didn't even need to hit them seven times to kill one army ant.

He looked at his experience bar and saw that he was only about five million experience points away from reaching level 26.

As he was farming level 40 army ants, his leveling speed was slower than before. He could only earn 200000 points per hour at most.

He probably wouldn't be able to reach level 26 by tomorrow. Unless he could find a few big bosses to fight, he could only work hard.

he would sleep later today and try to reach level 26 before the guild war by 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

The majority of traversing Four Seas 'members were still level 20, with only a small portion of them reaching level 21.

By then, Zhang Shan's level would be five to six levels higher than his, and there would be a certain level suppression effect.

His damage would be higher when he hit others, but the damage would be reduced when others hit him. Even if he could only suppress them by a little, it would be good.

Although Zhang Shan had always felt that the Guild War this time was a sure win, it was still better to improve a little.

Zhang Shan had been farming monsters in the ant Mountain Map. In order to gain more experience, he went to bed very late.

The next day, he woke up and continued. He had to follow the example of the liver Kings, although he could not be like others who did not sleep for a few days.

However, it was fine to sleep less.

After going online, Zhang Shan realized that Feng Yun realm had made an announcement in the Guild channel.

It was about tonight's Guild War, the selection of members, and the rewards for participation.

The content of the announcement was roughly like this.

Those who wanted to participate in the Guild War tonight, please register with Secretary Feng Yun. A total of 200 people will be selected to participate in the war.

That's right. The number of participants in the Guild War was between one to two hundred people. The wind and cloud Guild had already recruited a thousand people. They were about to be promoted to the second Guild, so they could recruit ten thousand people.

It was impossible for everyone to participate in the Guild War, so they could only use the method of registering first and then choosing the right people to participate.

sign up with secretary feng yun and send him the character attributes and skill panel. he would be considered a backup candidate for the battle.

At six O'clock in the afternoon, the final list of participants would be confirmed. If there was anything on the list that could not be online at night, please mention it as soon as possible.

Based on the character's attributes and skills, and then their class composition, they would choose the most suitable members to participate in the battle.

In addition, he also mentioned the reward for the participants. If they won the Guild War, they would win a challenge fee of one million gold.

All participating members will be assigned according to the Guild war's combat power ranking system.

In other words, as long as they won, each participant would more or less get some gold coins.

after all, there were a total of one million people. even the last person on the combat power list could get a lot of them.

In addition, the Guild contribution points of the winning team would also be automatically distributed according to their ranking on the combat power rankings.

It must be noted that individual contribution points were very useful in guilds. For example, using the Guild's facilities required a certain amount of contribution points.

In addition, personal contribution points could also be used to exchange for items in the Guild warehouse.

Only, the items in the Guild's warehouse were still relatively small. Basically, they were all common materials and trash equipment.

Once the Guild's level increased and it recruited more members, the Guild's warehouse would naturally be full.

At that time, the Guild warehouse would be like an alternative store, an internal store that used Guild contribution points.

in short, it was not wrong to get more individual guild contribution points. zhang shan would donate a gold coin to the guild every day.

He had also been donating materials and trash equipment, but after so many days, he had only managed to earn around 200 contribution points.

After all, good equipment could not be donated now. Equipment that was purple and above were still in high demand in the auction house. As long as the price was normal, they would be sold out very quickly.

When he became even more powerful in the future, he could donate some orange equipment to the Guild storage as a contribution to the Guild's leveling.

He contacted his Secretary and told her to register first.

after sending the character attributes and skills panel to the little secretary, he called her.

"Little Secretary, help me register."

boss artifact, are you mocking us? why the hell do you still want to sign up? during the Guild War, even if you're sleeping, we have to pull you up.

"Hehe, didn't I just see boss's announcement? I'm here to register with you."

"That's too much. Then why the hell are you showing me your character stats and skill panel? close to 4000 attack power, more than 10 skills, how are you going to let others live?"

brother, don't get too excited. Keep a low profile, keep a low profile.

why are you still trying to keep a low profile? believe it or not, during the Guild War tonight, the Dragon King of the East Sea will definitely arrange dozens of big men to keep an eye on you.

what are you afraid of? I'm not the only one here. You're all here, aren't you? " we can't be careless. I heard that the Dragon King of the East Sea got two scrolls. I just don't know what type they are, but we have to take them seriously.

"F * ck, two scrolls? was the information reliable? Where did they get it from?"

it's bought offline. They've always had people buying game items at high prices on the forum and other places, so it's not surprising that they received two scrolls.

"fortunately, our guild is about to reach level 2. a level 2 battle flag can increase our combat power by quite a bit. the flag also has more hp."

"Yes, soon. If you have any equipment that you don't need, quickly donate some and get your guild level to Level 2."

zhang shan was a little embarrassed. he had nothing now. he had already donated all his trash equipment or thrown them into the store. as for the materials, he had some in his warehouse.

now, other than donating a gold coin, he had nothing else to donate.

"I don't have it now, but I'll have it after a day of killing monsters. I'll be counting on you guys."

"Alright, it won't be a problem to get the Guild to Level 2 before 8 pm."
