Chapter 1801

Hearing Luna asking about the ring's origin, Bonnie laughed embarrassingly. "I picked it up during the press conference where Joshua exposed Adrian and Michael. That day was the first day I met Harvey. I found this ring after he left, so I picked it up. I planned to return it to him when the time comes, but..." Bonnie shook her head. "It's been a year. I never found the chance to return it to Jim. Sometimes, I just genuinely forgot. Other times..." Bonnie felt as if she was not meant to be with Jim, so she kept the ring as keepsake. She had been on-and-off with Jim for the past year, so she never returned the ring to him. Initially, Bonnie decided to return it to Jim when she followed Luna back to Merchant City. She did not expect that Luna would mention the ring, so she took it out. Luna looked at Bonnie in shock before looking at the ring in her hand once again. The touch and the design of the ring were the same as the one she had lost! Moreover, Bonnie said that she had not returned it to Jim since last year, after picking it up in Banyan City, yet not long ago, Luna saw Jim wearing the ring when he officially returned to the Landry Group to work!

At that time, Luna lamented to herself that if she did not lose the ring that Samuel gave her, she would be able to place the two rings together, letting them reunite. However, at that moment... Luna looked at the ring in Bonnie's hand excitedly. Being a professional jewelry designer for many years, Luna knew that the ring Jim had was genuine. The one Bonnie gave her was genuine, too. It was very likely that when Jim lost his ring, he went all around looking for it and stumbled upon the one that Luna lost. Feeling pure joy washing over her, Luna bit her lip as tears formed in her eyes. When she returned to her room, she took a good look at the ring Bonnie gave her. Under the light, she could vaguely see a microchip hidden in it. Luna felt that the ring on Jim's hand must be the same, too. When she extracted the date from the two rings, she would be able to clearly understand Lucy's death. Luna excitedly picked the phone up. She wanted to call Jim, but then she remembered how Jim had been distant toward her and Bonnie that day. In the end, she sighed and placed her phone down. Jim was not in a good mood, and she thought it would be best not to bother him. It was not too late even if she returned to Merchant City to tell him about those things. Placing the ring in her luggage, Luna took a deep breath before starting to work on the most important thing she came back to Banyan City for-recruitment. She searched through her contacts and contacted Samson, Zayne, and Arianna.

Initially, she wanted to take Shannon along with her, but from talking with Arianna, Luna found out that Shannon was already the Design Director of the Lynch Group. She was the core of the design department, so Luna decided to give up on her. Although she liked Shannon, she could not empty Joshua's design department by taking all his staff. After all, although Joshua might seem like he was going up against the Landrys, in reality, he had been helping to investigate her uncle's death back then. Also, everyone could see that Joshua had been showing mercy to the Landrys. If she were to be too vicious in stealing his staff, Joshua would be unhappy, and it would also be too intolerable. Moreover, Shannon was related to Granny Lynch. She was considered a relative to Joshua, and she might not be willing to give up her job in Banyan City. Because of all that, Luna merely exchanged pleasantries and caught up with Shannon over the phone, having no plans to recruit her. However, Luna did not expect Shannon to actually ask to meet her at a cafe. Looking at the message Shannon sent, Luna was a little stunned.

Chapter 1802

Luna furrowed her brows and replied to Shannon carefully, (Are you...really planning to just catch up with me?] Was Shannon, as the Design Director, planning to stop her because she knew that Luna was stealing Zayne, Samson, and Arianna? Shannon replied to her with a series of smiley emojis. (Don't worry, Luna, I'm asking you out only for personal reasons. You want to take your previous assistants away, and there is nothing I could do. After all, after you left, Lynch Group's jewelry design department is no longer the main priority of the company.

It'll be pointless letting such talent stay, and I think it'll be better for them to follow you to a better place so that they can grow and flourish.] Luna suddenly felt a little guilty for her preconceived notions of Shannon. She looked down to see the time. It was three-thirty in the afternoon, and she should still be able to make it in time for Bonnie's barbecue feast at night. After deciding the place to meet with Shannon, Luna got up to head out. When she went down, she saw Bonnie still on the sofa, staring at her phone in a daze, not knowing what she was thinking about. Luna could not help it. On the way to the cafe, she still picked her phone up and dialed the butler. Initially, she merely wanted to ask if Jim's mood had gotten better. However, when she picked her phone up, she heard sounds of smashing coming from the other end of the line. She furrowed her brows. "What's going on?" The butler sighed and said helplessly, "Mr. Landry is in a bad mood today. We've already tried our best not to have a head-on confrontation with him, but..." "When he woke up, he said he wanted to take something from Ma'am's warehouse, but Mickey stopped him.

Mr. Landry slapped Mickey a few times and got his men to lock him up. He's currently in Ma'am's warehouse smashing things." Luna was completely taken aback by what the butler said. Jim was actually smashing her mother's warehouse? In Luna's eyes, Jim respected Rosalyn the most. For the past year after Rosalyn's incident, Jim kept everything of hers properly. He said that he was worried she might not get used to it when she woke up. He would not even change the furniture at home. How could a person who treated Rosalyn's things with such care smash the items in her warehouse? However, the smashing sounds on the other end of the line were not fake either. In the Landry Mansion, who else other than Jim would dare to smash things? No one had the right to smash things in the Landry Mansion, let alone Rosalyn's warehouse. Not getting a response from Luna, the butler sighed and said, "Ms. Luna, you... Why don't you come back quickly? Only you could talk some sense to Mr. Landry now. I'm afraid..." Before the butler could finish his sentence, Jim's angry voice rang from the other end of the line. "Who the hell are you talking to? Are you being a tattletale to Luna? Is she more powerful than me now? Let me tell you: I'm also the master of the Landrys! I'll do what I like! Even Luna can't stop me!"

Chapter 1803

When Luna heard how Jim had already lost his mind, she furrowed her brows. She had reunited with Jim for almost a year, and all the while, Jim was always humble and mature.

He never truly fought or argued with anyone before. Even when facing Malcolm and Heather, who hurt Rosalyn, he never made this sort of commotion before. Luna could not match the tone and attitude she heard with Jim. She bit her lip and blurted, "Jim, ... Before she could say anything, she could hear Jim snatching over the phone from the butler. Then, with a loud crashing sound, the call disconnected. Luna held onto her phone, utterly baffled at the abrupt end. If she guessed correctly, the butler's phone must have been smashed, and no doubt was it dealt by Jim. After all, among the hundreds of servants and bodyguards, the butler was quite high up in the ranks. Besides Jim, no one would dare to smash any of his things. At that thought, Luna closed her eyes.

She was extremely anxious, but she was a thousand miles away, unable to do anything, so she thought about Theo. Joshua was in Banyan City at that moment. Only Luke and Theo were in Merchant City. Because Gwen, Luna, and Luke did not have a good relationship, only Theo would be able to help her. Luna took her phone out, but she hesitated. After all, Jim's matter was a matter of the Landry family. If she really got Theo to go over, not only would it not help, but it would even make Jim think that she was about to air their dirty laundry in public. In the end, she called Bonnie instead. "Bonnie, can you help me get the earliest ticket? I'm going back; the earlier, the better." Luna was worried about Jim's condition. After all, her father was already delirious, and she was afraid that Jim inherited his condition. What if he did something incredulous? She was not in Merchant City to stop him. Everything might be too late. Bonnie, on the other end of the line, furrowed her brows. "What is it? Did something happen?" Luna calmly responded, "Bonnie, something came up at home.

I'll head home immediately. You come over with my assistants a few days later, okay?" Hearing Luna's tone, Bonnie realized that it might be an emergency. "Okay, okay, okay! I'll book you a ticket now, don't worry! If something has happened, quickly contact Jim! Perhaps he has a solution!" Luna's heart skipped a beat upon hearing Bonnie's words. She did not dare to tell Bonnie that this sudden emergency was, in fact, about Jim. Thus, Luna smiled and replied, "I've already contacted him. I also hope that I'll return as soon as possible to help. Help me book a ticket, please." Then, Luna hung up. At that moment, the taxi had reached the cafe where Luna and Shannon agreed to meet. Initially, Luna was planning to properly catch up with Shannon, but the matters in Merchant City made her rather anxious. The moment she entered the cafe, Luna instantly told Shannon that something came up in Merchant City and she needed to rush back, that she could only chat for as long as a cup of coffee took. Shannon was not disappointed. She smiled and looked at Luna. "You don't have to apologize to me. It's best if I could catch up with you here or, if not, wait until I'm in Merchant City. We have more time to catch up then, so I'm not angry." Luna's eyes instantly widened upon hearing what Shannon said. She looked at Shannon closely.

Chapter 1804

"D-Did you just say that you're going to Merchant City?"
"Mmh." Shannon picked her cup of coffee up and took a sip. She smiled calmly. "Didn't you already arrange for Zayne, Samson, and Arianna to follow you to Merchant City a week later? I'll come with them to help you out."
Luna was stunned for a very long time, processing this piece of surprise. She excitedly grabbed Shannon's hand.

“A-Are you really willing to give up your position as the Design Director and work with me?” The Design Director position at Lynch Group’s jewelry design department held great power and honor, besides the high pay and bonuses. After all, Lynch Group was a famous name. Luna’s new company was only a small jewelry company that had been incurring losses ever since its opening. This was one of the reasons why she did not recruit Shannon into her ranks.

Theoretically speaking, no one would give up such a cushy job only to slave through together with Luna. “Of course, I’ll be happy to.” Shannon smiled. “I already handed in my resignation letter to Joshua. Guess what he told me?” Luna paused for a while. She picked her cup of coffee up and took a sip. “W-What...did he say?” “He said that he supports my decision in resigning to go over to help you. He said that your position and identity will make the job very challenging. The higher your position, the higher the responsibility.

If you can’t show results in your new company, it’ll be troublesome.” Luna’s hand that held her cup stopped moving.

She bit her lip and said, “Did he really say that?” Shannon sighed and said, “Luna, I might not understand Joshua, but don’t tell me that you don’t understand him too? Everyone in Banyan City knows about how he feels toward you. Have you been in Merchant City for too long that you have forgotten how intense you guys were? How many times have you rescued Joshua, and how many times has he rescued you? Do you still need to doubt your relationship with him?” Luna bit her lip upon hearing Shannon’s words. Memories of the things she had gone through with Joshua appeared in her mind. After a while, she lowered her head and smiled self-deprecatingly. “Yes. Why should I doubt his feelings about me...?” At that moment, Luna’s phone rang. It was from Bonnie. Shannon saw the caller ID on Luna’s phone and smiled, “She’s probably calling to ask you to go back to pack or telling you about your flight.” Then, Shannon smiled and waved at Luna. “Go, I still need to deal with my resignation.” Luna nodded and got up. She picked up Bonnie’s call while walking over to the cashier and paid for Shannon’s as well. “How’s it going?” “There are no flights to Merchant City tonight. The earliest is at ten in the morning tomorrow. By the time you reach Merchant City, it’ll be in the afternoon. “I have tried asking for an airway so that you can take my private plane, but tonight’s airway has been taken.” Luna furrowed her brows. “Have you found out who occupied the airway?” With Bonnie’s status in Banyan City, she should be able to request an extra seat in that person’s private plane. After all, Luna was only taking her luggage with her. “I did.” Bonnie took a deep breath and said, “It’s...Joshua.”
