Chapter 1913

Chapter 1913 Seeing the look of Charlotte's voice, Jim furrowed his brows and curled his lips into a smile. Then, he gently removed Charlotte's hand from his and said, "Nothing, I was just asking.

"I received a note today which says that Charlotte belongs to him. The note was put into my coat pocket that I wore to the hospital this morning."

With that, he glanced at Charlotte and said, "Someone at the hospital must've pulled this prank on me. I'll ask someone to get to the bottom of this."

Then, he turned and strode away.

Behind him, Charlotte's face turned from red to white. She bit her lip and clenched her fists.

That Dr. Randy must have been the one who slipped the note into Jim's pocket!

What an ungrateful bastard!

She had already taken ten minutes out of her time to satisfy him in his office this morning, but he was still hungry for more!

Did he think she was going to choose an old man like him over someone as handsome and successful as Jim? Who did he think he was?

Did he think she owed him her life just because he helped both her and Roanne undergo their plastic surgeries?

She had already slept with him for six years; was it still not enough?

One day, she would let Roanne get rid of this wretched doctor once and for all!

"Charlotte?" Jim furrowed his brows and called after her, suddenly realizing that Charlotte had not followed him out.

"Coming!" Charlotte quickly regained her composure and followed him, smiling. "I was so frustrated by the note you found and so engrossed in trying to guess who could've committed such a stupid prank that I lost track of time..."

With that, she snaked her arm around Jim's and lifted her head to stare at him with an innocent look “You can’t possibly believe them, do you, Jim?”

“You’re the only person in my heart, and someone must’ve taken advantage of your amnesia and done this on purpose out of jealousy.”

Jim narrowed his eyes. “I hadn’t believed them at all.”

However...

The more Charlotte tried to deny it, the more suspicious he became.

Soon, the two of them arrived at the guest lounge, where Luna and Luke were sitting in their chairs, chatting

Behind them stood two women identical in height and build, but their looks were obscured with face masks and black caps.

There was no way of telling who these two people were.

Seeing that Jim and Charlotte had entered, arm-in-arm, Luna exchanged a glance with Luke, then stood up, smiling, “Hello, Master Landry, Ms. Charlotte.”

She was unwilling to refer to Jim as her brother anymore.

Ever since he lost his memories, his attitude and actions toward them made Luna think he was unfit to be her brother anymore.

Charlotte noticed this and immediately caught this small detail. “You’re becoming more and more preposterous, Ms. Luna. How can you refuse to call your brother by his name after having left for just a few days?”

With that, she could not help glancing at Jim, whose expression was dark, and added, “Look how rude she is, Jim.”

Even though he was not fond of this sister of his, Jim was still a little uneasy by the fact that Luna had chosen to address him as ‘Master Landry’ instead of his name. “Well, of course she’s behaving like this. She’s the one holding the majority of the Landry Group’s shares at this moment, and has no time for someone like me.” With that, he sat on a chair and stared coldly at Luna.

“Joshua Lynch has already contacted me.

“Luna, even if you’re trying desperately to prove how important you are, you don’t have to do it like this.”

There was not even a hint of emotion in Jim’s frosty voice as he continued, “Even though your method of getting Joshua to attack Landry Group will defeat me and make me think twice about hurting you, you have to remember that you own a part of Landry Group, too.

“Therefore, no matter how much financial loss has been incurred onto our company as a result of Joshua’s attacks, you’re suffering the same loss, too!”

Luna could not help curling her lips into a smirk when she heard this. “Unfortunately, Mr. Landry, if I hadn’t asked Joshua for help, the person stuck in this terrible situation would be me by now.

“I’m fine with losing a little bit of money right now. After all, if I don’t let this happen now, then I probably will be losing all of my shares and profits of the Landry Group instead.

“This little bit of financial loss is still acceptable in comparison.”

With that, she stared at Jim’s face and added, “At the same time, everything that Joshua is doing right now, Mr. Landry, is a reminder to you not to steal anything from me.

“Because as soon as I leave Landry Group, this company isn’t going to last any longer.”

Luna’s tone was both cold and arrogant, so much so that Charlotte was infuriated by her words.

She, too, knew that they had no way of winning against Luna at this point.

“You’re right.” Jim was much calmed compared to Charlotte upon hearing this. He nodded and stared at Luna with an earnest expression. “With you here, Joshua is indeed showing us mercy, and because of this, I hadn’t intended to force you to give out the Landry Group’s shares at all.

“However...”

Jim narrowed his eyes and handed a folder to Luna. “These are the survey results that my assistant has collected from the shareholders and higher management, as well as more than eighty percent of the employees of Landry Group.

“All the people that have signed this petition are protesting against your continued employment as CEO of Landry Group, and more than half of these people are threatening to go on a strike if you don't resign from your position within a week."

With that, he shifted into a more comfortable position in his chair and stared intently at Luna. "You should know by now how bad your reputation is to the public. Almost all the employees i n the company do not wish to have such a corrupt CEO running their company.

"The people have spoken, and this is well outside of my power."

The color drained from Luna's face when she heard this.

She bit her lip and dug her nails into her palms.

Despite knowing a long time ago that she would have to resign as CEO eventually, it was still shocking to be hit with the reality.

She knew fully well that her reputation was at its all-time low, but it stung to see that 80% of hundreds of thousands of Landry Group employees hated her...

She found this hard to accept.

"Don't agree to his terms," Joshua's low voice rang out from the pendant around Luna's neck. "Even if you refuse to resign, Jim will never let these people quit their jobs. He's just trying to use this to provoke you."

Luna bit her lip and felt a twinge of sadness surge into her heart. She lifted her head to stare at Jim's face. "Alright. I'll do as you say."

Everyone was shocked to hear Luna's answer.

Even Joshua, who was on the other end of the line, was rendered utterly speechless.

A split second later, he let out a bitter chuckle and asked, "Is this really what you want?"

"Yes." Luna let out an exhale and lifted her head to meet Jim and Charlotte's delighted gazes. "This is what I want."

She was telling this to both Joshua and Jim.

“Since everyone is so against me running the company as CEO, I’ll choose to step down from this position. I’m sure everyone knows I’m not capable of running this company at all.

“It’s just that Father loved me so much that he was willing to hand over such a large-scale family business to me, but now, it’s time I return what was, rightfully Jim’s to him. Nonetheless...”

She lifted her head to stare coldly at Jim and Charlotte. “Mr. Landry has previously promised me that he’d let me manage a small jewelry design company under Landry Group, and I hope you’ll stick to your word, Mr. Landry.

“At the same time, I want you to give me five million dollars as a starting fund, and guarantee that no matter what happens in the future, you will not try to shut down my company or harm it in any way whatsoever.”

Jim could not help frowning when he heard this.

When he was tidying his documents a few days ago, he had found a stack of documents about a small jewelry design company in his study.

This was a minuscule company with hardly any development and was even at times on the verge of bankruptcy.

Fortunately, the world-renowned designer Joey Charles had been working as the lead designer of the company, and it was with his help that the company managed to sustain itself until the present.

When Jim first found these documents, he had even wondered why he had deliberately left these papers about a small, negligible company in the most prominent part of his study.

At this moment...

He realized that before he lost his memories, he must have been intending to hand this company over to Luna.

“Mr. Jim Landry,” Luna called out once more, seeing that Jim did not reply. “Do you agree to m y terms?”

“Of course we do!” Charlotte piped up immediately even before Jim could open his mouth. “We’ll fulfill any of your conditions, so long as you step down from the position of CEO of Landry Group!”

This was just a small, almost bankrupt company, so what harm was there to do as Luna wished?

Anyone could see that giving this up in exchange for the position of CEO was a fair trade!

As soon as Charlotte finished her sentence, Luna furrowed her brows and turned to glance at Jim. "I'm asking you."

The color drained from Charlotte's face.

It was clear Luna did not care about Charlotte's opinion at all.

Luna was ignoring her as though she was made of thin air.

Charlotte bit her lip and clenched her fists.

Jim noticed her change in emotion and quickly lifted his arm to pull her closer to him." Charlotte's answer is my answer; you don't have to ask me a second time."

As soon as he said this, the woman standing behind Luke shuddered.

Bonnie bit her lip, and a twinge of sadness seeped into her heart as she stared at Jim, who had his arm around Charlotte, through her thick disguise.

She gazed at his arm as the words swirled in her head.

'Charlotte's answer is my answer. 'You don't have to ask me a second time.'

Chapter 1916

/ Pursuing My Ex-Wife Isn't Easy

Chapter 1916 Jim had never spoken about her, Bonnie so endearingly as he had addressed Charlotte.

There had even been a few times when Bonnie had wanted him to call her by a pet name like 'darling' or 'honey' in private, but he would always refuse, much less put his arm around her and address her so adoringly in public.

In the past, Jim would always insist that since Bonnie was the heiress to the Craig fortune and he was the heir to the Landry fortune, the public would go crazy if news of their relationship were leaked

If that happened, it would cause such unrest that they would not be able to enjoy their time together without being followed all the time anymore.

Therefore, to prevent this from happening, their relationship had been a secret one, hidden Bonnie used to think that Jim was naturally a cautious person like this, and thus, she had never doubted Jim's motives or gotten upset at him for such requests.

At this moment, alas, she finally understood that she had been wrong.

Jim loved showing off his relationship with Charlotte to the public.

The reason he had refused to take his and Bonnie's relationship public...was simply that he did not love her enough to do so.

"Luna, if you have no other request, I'll let my assistant prepare a contract now," said Jim curtly when he noticed that Luna was not saying anything else.

Luna furrowed her brows and was about to say something more when her gaze fell on the ring on Jim's finger.

If she remembered correctly..

One half of this ring pair was lying in a suitcase in Joshua's bedroom at that moment, whereas the other half was sitting on Jim's finger.

Malcolm's father, Samuel, had told her before that putting the two rings together would crack the code of Lucy Hamilton's death.

As soon as she thought of this, Luna let out an exhale and lifted her hand to point at Jim's arm, which was resting on Charlotte's shoulder. "There's something else I want to add."

Following Luna's finger, Charlotte lowered her head and suddenly realized that Luna was pointing at her necklace!

She immediately covered her necklace with her hand and bit her lip. "Don't you dare take my necklace from me, Luna. Jim had spent nine million dollars on this for me! I'm never giving this necklace to—"

Before she could even finish, Luna sneered and interrupted her, "What I want is the jade ring on Mr. Landry's right thumb."

With that, she glanced coldly at Charlotte and added, "However, now that you've mentioned your necklace... I want to add this to my list of demands as well, so as not to waste your effort."

She turned to glance at Jim. "I want to add two more items to my list: the nine-million-dollar necklace, and the jade ring on your hand.

"I want a bankrupt jewelry design company, a jade ring, and a nine-million-dollar necklace in exchange for the position of Landry Group CEO. Nothing less."

Jim narrowed his eyes and stared at Luna with a frosty look. "Don't you think you're biting off more than you can chew, Luna?"

"Apart from the jewelry design company, the two items you want are my engagement gift to Charlotte and the last piece of item my late mother left for me.

"These two items mean a lot to me, so I can't give them to you."

Luna curled her lips into a smirk and shifted into a more comfortable position on the sofa. "I've already said, I want three items and nothing less. Unless you don't want to become CEO of Landry Group, Mr. Landry, then I suggest you think this over carefully. Don't worry; I'm not in a rush."
