

PRETENDING TO BE POOR

Chapter 19

Aprincess that no one could afford to offend her?

Steve smiled. He couldn't reveal it too much, or it would involve Shawn.

So he said, "No, she's just a married woman, and a bad-tempered one. I don't want to ask for trouble."

"Mr. Garner, if you."

"Well, stop talking about it." Steve interrupted.

That was enough.

Steve's reaction was a warning for them not to go too far.

Jason used to see Rachel as an ordinary employee, but Steve's attitude made him confused.

However, it was clear that Mr. Garner did not want to say anything more, so they did not dare to keep asking him.

Rachel was just an ordinary woman. There was reason for her to make Mr. Garner unhappy.

However, they were curious about Rachel now.

Every day when Rachel came back from work recently, she saw that Shawn didn't look like he had went out to work.

He just stayed at home to watch TV or use her computer.

One day, while they were having dinner, Rachel asked him.

"Did you not go out to work recently?"

Shawn looked up at her and said, "I don't want to do it anymore. I'm too tired."

Rachel remained silent and did not object.

"Well, it is very tiring. You can change your job. What do you want to do?"

"I don't know."

Rachel didn't say anything. She didn't know what his specialty was. He liked to watch financial news, but she didn't know if he had learned about finance or was interested in doing this kind of work.

After dinner, Shawn gave a meaningful look at Rachel.

After washing the dishes, Rachel sat on the sofa and said seriously to Shawn, "You seem to watch financial news often. If you are interested in this kind of work, you can study it first. You don't have to worry about money. If you want to study, I will support you."

She could pay for Shawn's education. In Rachel's opinion, he was unqualified for other jobs apart from being a builder.

If he wanted to get a job that was not too tiring, he had to have a degree or study more.

Shawn's deep black eyes were fixed on Rachel's face.

She was sincere.

"I don't know your educational level, but I don't think you like muddling along. You can tell me your plans, and I'll help you. We're husband and wife. I hope I will be involved in your future. Do you agree with me?"

Shawn raised his eyebrows, "What do you mean, the future?"

Rachel blinked, "Our life, work, and children..."

Speaking of children, Rachel was a little embarrassed. She blushed slightly and looked away, "Haven't you thought about it since we married?"

Rachel did not flinch on talking about this matter.

Seeing that Shawn kept silent, Rachel twitched her lips.

"I know we didn't have a real relationship before we got married, but since we're married, I'm taking this relationship seriously, and I hope you're the same. Let's try to like each other. I'm not that terrible, am I? I think you're a good man too, and we will be together for a long time. So you should have a long-term plan for your work. In the early stage, you can study first, and then you will get a better result."

Rachel didn't hide anything from Shawn. She had spoken all her thoughts out.

She treated this marriage with all of her sincerity.

Therefore, what she hoped to get was Shawn's sincerity, too,

However, Shawn looked away evasively.

He put a cigarette in his mouth and lit it. With the smoke, Rachel could barely see his expression.

Rachel waited, but she didn't get his answer.

Her heart sank. Was she too confident?

She thought that she was not a woman without charm. If Shawn put his heart into their relationship, he would like her, and she would also try to like him.

Rachel's face turned a little pale in embarrassment.

She didn't know what to say and forced a smile.

"If you want to study, I'll help you find out some courses that are suitable for you."

With that, she was about to get up.

Her wrist was suddenly held by Shawn.

Rachel turned around and met Shawn's dark eyes.

"Do you like me?"
