

Chapter 14

"What are you doing here?" I glare at him.

"Coming to get you." He smirks.

"What?" I sit up.

"You heard me, let's go. You're being transferred back to Urix. Also, you're being promoted to squad leader because you killed the Alphdanian village and that traitor." He leans on the door frame.

"Don't call him that." I say angrily. "Why should I go with you."

"Because you have to, either get up now, or I will have guards force you into the carriage." He turns around and walks away. I get up start packing. Once I am done, punch the wall before going to the carriage. They let me ride in a different carriage than Milos because I refused to ride with him. The ride there went smoothly. We walked into the building and he showed me to my new room. I settled down and moved all my stuff in before laying down on my bed to sleep.

The next day, I get up for training. I beat three boys in hand to hand combat, then one girl and one boy in sword practice, then lastly I beat two girls and lost to one boy in source training. Once we are done training, I go back to my room and sleep some more. The next few days go the same way. Until I decide to have a funeral for my fallen friends and family. I light a fire in the outside wasteland and make them a memorial.

"Goodbye."

End of book one.

To be Continued...

Reborn Through Fire

Last updated: Jul 31