

Rejecting Your Rejection

Chapter 18 Time Is Ticking

You have to make up your mind or you'll all die.

Constantly months after months there were Rogues attack on the border this include the territories of the Alphas in the council.

They couldn't control them anymore therefore, instead of calling Allen they turn to the one and only person whom could provide security for the neutral territory instead of handing them over to the rogue King.

The council has nothing else to do with it, he was the only who can clear them off, their only option was Dante Hernandez. Who have helped months after months keeping the rogues out from the neutral territory run by them.

The neutral territory was there central city for everything and there's a reason why Rogues wanted that territory. Once any Alpha rule it they could easily have access to other borders and attacks could be easy excluding Dante's pack as they are well secure and not exposed to any other border opening.

They have already call him and within an hour Dante finally arrive in the council meeting place. They watches him as he saunter to sit on the chair at the far end of the table.

He didn't acknowledge anyone there, he just sat there waiting for them to start. He refused to be nice to anyone as they refused to help him back then.

"We have called you today to asked you here if you could join forces with us" Dante kept on listening as one of the Alpha spoke. "The Rogues will attack again today, and we are here to ask you if you could lend a hand in this matter"

Dante lay back on his chair "and"

ADVERTISEMENT

"we need you Alpha, we ask you to please put our differences aside and help the poor innocent children and other people there."

Dante laugh knowing that they're using vocabs like innocent and poor which could make him agree. In fact, he is not a fool as finally they seek for his help, but that's not all he wants. He wanted the territory too and he was ready to make them beg for his help 'not so easy' his wolf mock.

He nodded his head towards the council to make it seem like it was an easy deal yet when he spoke the council knew then they have to agree with Alpha Dante's requirements, unless they use Allen as a bait.

"We could call Alpha Allen for his help"

"then you should have instead of me" Dante now tapping his finger on the table.
"Something tells me you couldn't" he smile with victory "ahh I remember you still don't trust Allen and his pack since they attack your territory years ago, right Alpha Cruz" nobody speaks.

"I apologise fellow but it's either you take it or leave it. I have no problem with the Rogues taking over that territory," he lies and at the same time he wishes the Moon Goddess has heard him. "After all I'm not the one begging for help"

The doors abruptly slams open with two betas came running in whispering something to their Alphas who growls in return.

"Alpha those people needs your help" Alpha Aaron tries to convince him yet he didn't bulge to agree.

Another warrior came in whispering to another Alpha then to the other. So far the Rogues were near to victory and Dante knew about it

ADVERTISEMENT

"Alpha Dante" growl Alpha Conrad "agree, we'll take it" they all nodded.

"Very well"

Dante gesture to Kyle for the papers who went around the table with it. The council members sign it one by one Dante then mindlink Jem who was already by the borders and in hide to attack now.

He turn to the six gentlemen "fellows clear out your men from my territory" Dante walk out of there before shifting in to his wolf and head there.

He made it there in the heat of chaos seeing that all other pack members from the council Alphas has now retreat leaving only his warriors there with the pack members of the neutral territory. He kill the first rogue he got his hands on.

The rogue was about to murder a young warrior probably around his 15s 'thank you' he mutters. Dante move to his next opponents, clawing then snaps their heads off. His wolf growl in victory when there were only fewer Rogues left.

Their leader growls thundering through the wind running in speed towards Dante. Who just stood there waiting for him patiently, when he was about to reach him he quickly dodge his attack using his werewolf senses and speed.

The rogue leader who was not the Alpha rogue as he wasn't really that strong whimper under Dante's attack.

ADVERTISEMENT

"You pick the wrong day to attack this territory.. My territory" others stops fighting and the other remaining Rogues retreat instantly.

He held up the rogue in his bare hand "today Mark this territory as mine, next time attack another Alpha's land not mine" he smirk looking straight in the rogue eye before snapping his neck cold heartedly.

Everyone has scurry away Dante gesture for Kyle to do their official announcements.

'Don't forget tonight's our welcoming dinner everyone is expected' he mindlink before walking back to the woods heading for their pack house.

.....

It's 1:50am here... Lol.. Anyways I have to sleep and will update again around 5 or 6pm after work. Thanking you all again

Love Xox,

Nica