

Rejecting Your Rejection

Chapter 4 Did You Forget

'You're someone I won't forget because you daunted my heart with your rejection'

Present

He held her back when she turns to walk away

"I thought today is the day where you say you miss me, you know"

His hand was in his suit pocket and he was provoking her.

"Why would I? I thought your luna was everything I am not and plus you try to chase me out of our territory through the council too bad you can't do anything about it."

She watches him took another step back

"yeah I forgot about that," he tightens his jaw she scoffs then walks past him "but I never forget how this feels like," she felt his hands around her waist again.

"How it feels like to be closer to you, to have those lips on mine again, then to reject you again"

He smirks and she untangles his hands from her waist and is ready to slap him in the face again except he was more than ready to stop her. She struggled in his arms pushing him away from her. When she's free from his grasp she slaps him once again and yet she fails once more as he held her hand in the air.

She gritted her teeth and he could tell that she was angry she spat at him

"too bad my answer will still remain the same."

She pulls her hand away from his retreating steps and walks out there taking up all the courage not to turn around and run into his arms again to have one kiss. The only kiss that she longs to repeat is the one that awakens her body. Too bad he has rejected her might as well rest their case.

Dante on the other hand was having a second thought, there's a side of him that refuses to let her go anymore or let her walk away from him. He was wrong when he rejected and compare her to Alexis who was nothing to him but just a girlfriend whom he remembers nothing of.

His first mate whom everyone thought he loves dearly again he pushes all the thought of wanting Daniella away.

Daniella almost runs into Alpha Allen when she went back to the hall.

“hello”

He stops her with his hand resting on her shoulder.

Daniella only knew little of Alpha Allen. She met him at one of the parties her friend Aida drag her to. He was one of Aida’s boyfriends until she found her mate and move away. They never knew each other personally Daniella never really bothered to or was interested in getting to know the Alpha. She was only there at the party to say hi then goodbye to whomever she was introduced to at the party night.

Meeting him again was awkward even though he was a stranger to her. In fact, he was her friend’s ex which makes it weird to be around him. Although he seems to be friendly with her when he chose the restaurant where she works as part timer to cater for the night’s event.

She squirms away from him “Alpha” and she ran past him into the dining hall.

She finds almost everyone has finished eating she moves to another table to clear the dishes and carry them to the kitchen.

Balancing both plates on her hands, their sub-chef open up the door for her

“thank you Kiev,”

she walks inside and put them on the sink while Sheila their other employee was washing the dishes. Kiev move again to help her with the dishes

“Aren’t you supposed to be out there to chat with your fellow pack members”

“Nah Crimson maybe my pack but the Mystic pack is my home” he responds to her with a huge smile on his face.

Kiev was not really friends with Daniella and everyone in their workplace aumed they were once a couple due to his sweetness towards her. There was a time when people’s thoughts and words get into his head so he asks her out one time, unfortunately, she rejected him.

Daniella didn’t want to give him any false hope, she didn’t want to date anyone not yet. She just simply wants to enjoy her freedom and heal herself completely before her doors open up for anyone.

The night events concluded Dante and his pack members were ready to go back to their pack. Daniella who was behind a far corner of the packed hall watches him while they bid goodbye to Alpha Allen. She was a bit jealous when she saw some of the girls especially Allen’s sister Carla swoon over her mate.

Only if he hadn't wanted her, only if he hadn't done what everyone did to her which kills her deep inside. He saw the way his eyes lit up, those hazel eyes which made her lost easily.

Remembering the first time she met him, he blew her mind away as she never saw anyone so handsome, so cruel yet intriguing in her life.

Tonight she may act like one of those big girls deep down inside she and her wolf yearn for him.

A car horn interrupts her thoughts she turns to find Cameron waving at her from inside the car. She looks back and finds Dante's eyes on hers she held his gaze for a while before going inside the car and left to go home.

She cries silently once she reaches her room, slowly sinking to the ground sleeping there on the cold tile.
