

Right Person 514

Chapter 514 The Vaccine Will Be the Death of Us

The succession of the vaccine could save countless people. Although the virus was in Espad, it would spread here if they didn't control it.

The people at the research center sat together and chatted for a long time, and most of their conversations were about positive things. After all, they had made remarkable achievements this time. Due to the successful research of the vaccine, history would remember them.

When it was finally 9.00AM, the reporters readied themselves since this particular research was a massive breakthrough in the medical field.

Each one of the research center's members walked up one by one. Some of them were nervous as they were the type to work hard and had never stood in front of a crowd before. They first introduced the vaccine and its research progress. Then, they said that the vaccine would be free of charge to the public.

Amid this grand scene, their words won the respect of the reporters.

apprentice of Dr. White, who has allegedly thieved from others' research results. Although it said, "A clear and innocent conscience fears nothing." Although her words were not much, many people relief, a disheveled man suddenly bolted inside. Even though the bodyguards tried to stop him, he still managed to get inside. When the man entered the room, he roared, "The vaccine is not done yet! It will be the death of us!" He repeatedly said those words and even took out a red banner, raising it high up in the air. Although the bodyguards tried to drag him away, the man was strong. He struggled out of their grasp and continued, "The vaccine is stage, the people at the research center were panicking. They didn't know what was happening as their had taken the vaccine? Didn't they say that they them, and

Pierre must've sent this person here, she said faintly. Then, she bodyguards surrounded the man, he was still screeching as if

was a slight distance between them as she raised her voice and asked, "Did you say