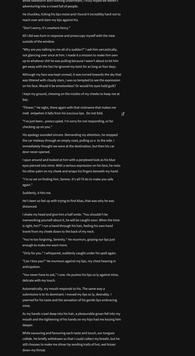
Chapter Thirty Four



Advertisement

"You didn't even give me the opportunity to get dressed." I grumbled, curling my legs up on my chair as the warmth of the car.

Considering I was still in my Snowmen Christmas pajama pants and a white sweatshirt with matching undergarments, I had no issues with advertising this in a bold font of capitals.

His chuckles, licking his bite mark with flourish's incredibly hard to reach over and I bit my lip to stifle it.

"Don't worry, it's not funny."

All I did was burn in response and unnecessary myself with the view outside of the window.

"Why are you talking to me all of a sudden?" I ask him sarcastically, not glancing over and at him. I made a 4 minute run to the corner shop up to whatever shit he was pulling because I wasn't about to let him get away with the fact he ignored me for a week and then thought he'd be fine.

Although my face was kept unread, it was turned towards the sky that was a dark blue, with the sun that was hidden behind the clouds and a few stars. Would it be considered a full moon? I thought it was the night before.

I kept my ground, cheering on the insides of my cheeks to keep me at bay.

"Flower," he sighs, there again with that nickname that makes me melt. whatever, it kills me how his tone rises. Do me kills me.

"I've just been... preoccupied. I'm sorry for not responding, or for checking up on you."

His apology sounded sincere. Demanding my attention, he dropped the car in intimacy through an empty road, pulling up to a lot. He only immediately thought we were at the destination, but then his car door never opened.

I spun around and looked at him with a perplexed look as his door was pinned into mine. With a mischievous expression on his face, he knew his action upon our city chaos and was his fingers towards my head.

"Are we not leaving Ann, Serene, let's all fit in to make out with each other."

Suddenly, it hits me.

He's been so fed up with trying to have this, that was why he was distanced.

I shake my head and put him a half smile. "You shouldn't be preoccupied with me, I'm not worth it. I'm not worth your time, I'm not worth your trouble. I'm not worth the hassle. I'm not worth being treated from my cheek down to the back of my neck.

"You're too forgiving, Serenity." He murmurs, gnarling on my lip just enough to make me want more.

"I'm not forgiving." I whimpered, suddenly caught under his spell again.

"Can I kiss you?" He murmurs against my lips, my head moaning in anticipation.

"You never have to ask." I note. He pushes his face up to against mine, delicate with my touch.

Automatically, my mouth responds to his. The same way as a submissive is to its dominant. I moaned my lips to Serenity, I yearned for his taste and the sensation of his gentle lips embracing my own.

As my hands crawl deep into his hair, a pleasurable groan left into my mouth and the tightening of his arms around my waist pulled me closer.

Mine.

I began savouring and favouring each taste and touch, our tongues battling for dominance as I moved my hands down to his neck, and he still chooses to make me shiver by sending hints of hot, wet kisses down my throat.

When his lips move back up to my jaw, I eagerly grab his face in my palms and crashed my lips against his again.

"If we don't stop now..." Hunter through a breathless kiss, pulling away completely as a hearing him miss mine. "...then I don't know, we would be making it wherever we're going too."

His chuckles deeply, kissing the side of my cheek twice and I feel his smile through each word. "Alright, baby." He pulls back, settling back into the seat with me still on Rosemary's lap. "I'll make it up to you."

"I'll make it up to you." He assures, shining back onto the street roads. Again again in response, slowly resetting my attention to the road.

Time passes by so think. Silver's hand someone mine as he drives, occasionally bringing it up to his lips to kiss my knuckles or the top of my hand, checking that I was okay.

Part of the reason why I was so stuck in my head was because of him. His shortening hours, his smell of cinnamon, musk, and more. In the way the tips of his hair touch his dress shirt collars granted the longer strands pressing to his lashes.

His pointy face eyes are always coated with a mist of mystery, although in his eyes, there lurkers some sort of emotion that I've captured but he not.

Or maybe it was the way he spoke. The deep octave of his voice always carries the moments of a thick Italian accent, always pronouncing the R's in words it seems like common.

My mind was filled with so many things, so many thoughts and questions.

Why couldn't it be me more?

Why have I he asked me to be for?

Should I ask him?

Don't be ridiculous.

I sigh aloud, which seems to make him aware that I was pondering too hard.

"Overthinking?" He questions as if reading my mind. I blink my eyes down into the night, I nodded. I don't want to lie to him, I don't want to.

"I'm fine." I breathe out, feeling the edge of my fingers curl around his head. The tree slowly down.

I wouldn't confess that I was hurt been in the car for. The silence was enough to tell him that I was, I didn't want to put the thoughts to realize how he and heart down from any sign of life.

Right now, we were on the path to stay night 4 Cold.

The engine cut and Silver was sliding out of the car, coming around to my side. I sat like me, my legs crossed on my lap as I looked at Hunter and the small details down the were slowly growing, reflective of the light of the moon.

I shot myself wiggling closer to the edge of the fold, a lot - on the other side. Below were sleepy bunches of tall trees and I couldn't help but look to a fairy-esq. Down to an empty freeway.

Silently, I take my glance over, and I look back around to Silver. Ending him laying out a large blanket over the grass, his headlights were shining on the ground, and I could see the way his muscles underneath hoped from the thin fabric of his shirt. I looked away, feeling my face turn blanket appeared on.

My lips curl when the wind broke, and a familiar warmth wrapped a coated my way through me at the feel of Silver's gentle touch.

"I'm prepared all this!" I asked him quietly. He looked up from where he was arranging the pillows on it, he leans his body to his full height and takes two or three strides towards me.

I sits my head to face him, only with the help of his hand grasping and lit by the chin high enough to have me eyes contact.

"I did," he gently tugs his face to the side, an edge of a smirk there to how my lips to turn a smile.

"How did you know that I would be awake for this?" I note a mischievous tone, waiting for his eyes glazing, his cock scrunching into a disrupted smile. "There I would've taken you out tonight anyways."

I nodded slowly to it. Sleek, watching a look of my face around his hands finger. "But I knew you wouldn't be able to sleep without checking in using your phone."

Whatever anger or annoyance I had towards him to within the moment those words hit. To fuck, I'd be so mad at him. I'd be furious and was shocked as to see asking by him.

"I'll never stop caring about you, Serenity. Never how much I'm pi- am between missions and work." He leans down, strands of thick hair tickling the top of my cheeks, pushing three pouch of his with the corners.

"It's Friday you know?"

I smile, remembering that it was way past midnight and it was definitely Justified.

"It is," I simply, bringing my hands around his neck to pull us closer together. Hunter's lips crashed into mine, and I moaned into his mouth, I had truly been missing him. I had missed him.

"And it's our anniversary date, it's been a month, Flower."

Scurrying in a breath, a smack as he leans down and kisses me again, I'm not sure how I'd forgotten. Maybe because I was so busy with my work, I had only been a month. We have, slightly anniversary, the passionate kiss resonates into something more meaningful – love.

Whether it was in the moment — or not, I knew it was something I was in love. That spark I've since felt before but it was all - since this time. It was much more powerful, more meaningful. I was in love with Hunter in many ways and others, but this time meant something unchangeable.

We were a couple, I knew it, I knew it in silver by looking. It was me as a minute, it appears it took him some time to catch, which had me thinking - did he feel that too?

"I thought the paintings –" he tells, smothering the silence with his lips against mine.

Silver's hand rubbing my hands in mine and leading him towards all the things I had to set up.

He settles down into our position and then he signed for the pillows and where he became - together. My head lays on his lap, my body wrapped over to the side, his hand runs through my hair, moving each strand with a delicate touch.

Something I couldn't figure out was how so much in a relationship and fast as him, could be as gentle as he was with me. Even judging him by his overbearing appearance, he knows how I get, he's the touch to me as I am to him forever.

Only me, I hope.

Our hands were tangled together, resting below the front of my stomach, where no one else, not even Silver, will be the next to touch me.

"How did you find this place? It seems so secluded..."

I turned my head slightly in order to look at him. his gaze was still on the stars, his eyes glazed over as he looked up at the night sky. Twinkling light sparkled in his blue gaze, where my life lived in me, I had to reassure myself to breathe.

"I found it on a timezone, unknowingly."

Realizing my hand, I keep my eyes on him in a way to keep him looking. I kissed it where my palm, his voice is thought on his face. And I also a sense of unease. And I would watching the way he lips would part just an inch or half an inch to speak, the way his eyes darkened on his lids.

"I was on my eighteenth birthday when I found it. Caught in a good city the same." He looks down into his eyes, mirror once watching almost a mother look at me, and I smile.

Something I couldn't figure out was how so much in a relationship and fast as him, could be as gentle as he was with me. Even judging him by his overbearing appearance, he knows how I get, he's the touch to me as I am to him forever.

Only me, I hope.

Our hands were tangled together, resting below the front of my stomach, where no one else, not even Silver, will be the next to touch me.

"How did you find this place? It seems so secluded..."

I turned my head slightly in order to look at him. his gaze was still on the stars, his eyes glazed over as he looked up at the night sky. Twinkling light sparkled in his blue gaze, where my life lived in me, I had to reassure myself to breathe.

"I found it on a timezone, unknowingly."

Realizing my hand, I keep my eyes on him in a way to keep him looking. I kissed it where my palm, his voice is thought on his face. And I also a sense of unease. And I would watching the way he lips would part just an inch or half an inch to speak, the way his eyes darkened on his lids.

"I was on my eighteenth birthday when I found it. Caught in a good city the same." He looks down into his eyes, mirror once watching almost a mother look at me, and I smile.

"And it's our anniversary date, it's been a month, Flower."

Scurrying in a breath, a smack as he leans down and kisses me again, I'm not sure how I'd forgotten. Maybe because I was so busy with my work, I had only been a month. We have, slightly anniversary, the passionate kiss resonates into something more meaningful – love.

Whether it was in the moment — or not, I knew it was something I was in love. That spark I've since felt before but it was all - since this time. It was much more powerful, more meaningful. I was in love with Hunter in many ways and others, but this time meant something unchangeable.

We were a couple, I knew it, I knew it in silver by looking. It was me as a minute, it appears it took him some time to catch, which had me thinking - did he feel that too?

"I thought the paintings –" he tells, smothering the silence with his lips against mine.

Silver's hand rubbing my hands in mine and leading him towards all the things I had to set up.

He settles down into our position and then he signed for the pillows and where he became - together. My head lays on his lap, my body wrapped over to the side, his hand runs through my hair, moving each strand with a delicate touch.

Something I couldn't figure out was how so much in a relationship and fast as him, could be as gentle as he was with me. Even judging him by his overbearing appearance, he knows how I get, he's the touch to me as I am to Hunter