

She is a ceo Chapter 244

“Arthur, I’ll go with you to check.” A choked but firm words came out of Juliana’s mouth.

Arthur clearly saw the transformation of Juliana’s gaze. She seemed to have the same arrogant and righteous appearance. Arthur did not know why Juliana suddenly had this transformation, but this moment, he had already completely forgiven her in his heart.

“Okay, tomorrow we go back to Athegate,” Arthur said softly with a slight smile on his face.

Juliana looked at Arthur who smiled and was gentle. She can’t help but also smile. The hate for Lucia was another story. She didn’t want to embarrass Arthur again.

Robert was doubly surprised by Juliana’s change and asked her, “Julia, what the hell is going on here?”

Juliana wiped her tears, raised her eyes and said to her father, “We’ll talk about everything after the DNA test.”

Robert looked into his daughter’s clear eyes. Although he did not understand what had happened, such a child made him proud. When doing something, she had the courage to take responsibility for the consequences, so he nodded approvingly.

After reaching a consensus, Juliana quickly calmed down, and only when she went to her parents’ room to pick up the baby did she find that Kayla was still looking at her with a frightened look on her face. Still holding the baby tightly in her arms, Kayla was afraid that she would hurt the baby again.

Juliana’s heart ached. What had she done? She hurriedly opened her mouth to apologize, “Mom, I’m sorry for losing control of my emotions just now.”

Kayla looked suspiciously at Juliana, who had calmed down, and then at Robert, who was following her. She was only at ease when she saw Robert was nodding to her.

“Julia, you scared me just now.” Kayla made sure it was okay, and only then did she take off her guard and worry. She was afraid that Juliana would hurt the baby, but she was also worried about her.

“I’m sorry,” said softly as she walked towards Kayla. Juliana looked down at the baby in her arms who had slept and said the same.

“Baby, I’m sorry.”

Kayla’s heart softened and her eyes immediately reddened. Juliana was touched and rested her forehead against her mother’s. They forgave each other now.

“Kayla, leave the baby with Julia. Let’s pack up and go back to Athegate with Arthur tomorrow,” Robert said with relief as he saw them freeze.

Kayla looked up at her husband, wondering, “Are we going to Athegate?”

“Mom, I promised to have the baby’s DNA tested,” Juliana explained to Kayla. When she saw her mother’s eyes widen at her, she said with a bitter smile.

“Arthur has done so much for me. I can’t be willful anymore.”

It was undeniable that much of Juliana’s sobriety stemmed from the excitement of Kane’s deception, but the recollection of a simple tie with Arthur also played a key role.

Juliana's words did not dispel Kayla's doubts. She looked at her husband, only to see him reach out and make a downward motion, suggesting that she should not ask. Then she let go, nodded and said, "Okay, we'll go together tomorrow."

Juliana felt the support of her parents and was ready to confess everything. Suddenly she remembered something and said to Kayla before she left with the baby in her arms.

"Mom, give the photos back to Arthur. It's important to him."

Kayla nodded woodenly and saw Juliana carrying the baby back to her room before she hurriedly asked Robert, "Robert, what the hell just happened?"

Robert told Kayla everything that had just happened, including Juliana's sudden change of attitude, and he had his doubts, "I wonder what is she hiding from us in the end..."

Kayla was silent. She was a woman and she knew very well that if Juliana no longer resisted the DNA test and had changed her attitude towards Arthur, it was almost proof that the baby was not really Arthur's. But, who was the baby's real father and why did Julia have to hide his existence?

Seeing his wife's frown, Robert probably guessed what she was thinking. He sighed and said soothingly.

"Who is right and who is wrong, let's wait for the results to come out."

The next day at noon, Sophie waited for Arthur and the Knight family. She was very surprised to receive a phone call from her son last night, because the Knight family had been extremely resistant to DNA testing. But overnight, the situation had completely reversed.

"Julia, come on. I'll hold the baby," Sophie said to Juliana as she welcomed the Robert family at the door, "I haven't seen him for a long time and I miss him."

Sophie said this without any false feelings. She saw the baby the day after he was born and had been taking care of him ever since. Although he was not necessarily her own grandson, he also had the Knight family bloodline and was a little life that she had loved.

Juliana handed the baby to Sophie, who carefully took the baby with an even bigger smile on her face, "I didn't expect the baby to grow so big in just over half a month. How nice, how nice."

The Robert family was ashamed of themselves when they saw Sophie's affection for the baby. After a sudden change last night, they had fully understood Sophie's approach, and she was not at fault.

"Sophie, I'm sorry ..." Kayla hesitated, but hid her timidity and sincerely apologized to Sophie.

Sophie smiled at the words, like a breeze brushing her face and warming her heart, "Kayla, we've been friends for decades. Is there a need to say that?"

Kayla's eyes immediately reddened at these words. Sophie patted her on the arm, and the two let it past.

"Mom, let them go to rest first. We'll talk about the paternity test tomorrow." Arthur suggested after they sat down.

"No, today." Juliana opened her mouth to rebuff Arthur's suggestion. Her eyes were sparkling. She had never been so anxious to return Arthur's innocence, and, before she left this morning, she had talked to Arthur as well.

Early this morning, Juliana knocked on Arthur's door while her parents didn't get up. Shortly afterwards Arthur opened the door and saw that it was Juliana, he asked her, "Julia, what are you up so early?"

Juliana gave Arthur a look, said “go in and talk” and passed Arthur into his room. Arthur closed the door and looked at Juliana who had walked to the center of the room.

“I can decide if the baby is your child with one word. Do you know why I still say I want to go back to Athegate with you for a paternity test?” Turning back around, Juliana said seriously to Arthur.

“Julia, are you ready for this?” Arthur was intelligent enough to understand what she was thinking.

“Well, check it out and find that person.” After saying the words, Juliana lowered her eyes and bit her lower lip because of the excitement.

Arthur took a few steps forward to Juliana, embraced her for the first time after so many changes, and sighed, “This is the Juliana I know.”
