Still Loving You Nonetheless Chapter 1468

Liam did not say a word and just hugged her gently.

Ivy froze and asked, "Liam, what are you doing? We..."

"V, just let me hold you for a while," Liam answered sleepily, "Just for a while. I'm a little tired."

When Ivy heard that, she stopped pushing him away and let Liam hug her. Then, Ivy asked, "Did something happen to Miss Young?"

"She said the baby was hurt, but it didn't seem so."

"Did she say I hurt the baby?" Ivy had already guessed Yanne's plan.

Yanne would not have come over and caused a scene if she had not planned this, strangely, Ivy did not hate Yanne as much. Instead, she pitied her.

Was it really worth it to do all that for a man?

Ivy said,

"V, you don't have to persuade me. I won't leave." Then, Liam pointed at the bathroom and added, "I'll take a shower."

"Liam, you're only going to make Madam Sheldon and Miss Young hate me more," Ivy said, "You're an adult, so you should be more mature and sensible, stop being so stubborn."

Liam did not answer her. After all, Ivy's words did somewhat hurt him.

Liam only wanted to accompany her, but he did not expect that Ivy would view it as him being immature and insensible. Perhaps from Ivy's side, he was really so, and Ivy was not wrong.

Moreover, Ivy was right. If Liam stayed the night, Yanne and Madam Sheldon would only hate her more. Then, they would leash out their grievance and anger on her.

In the end, Liam returned to her side and said gently, "Fine. I'll go back for your sake,"

Ivy looked at him and found that he was not angry but sad. She could not believe that he was not furious at her words.

Ivy wanted to say something but held back. She decided just to let him be.

Liam kissed Ivy's forehead. "Have a good rest. Goodbye."
