

Still Loving You Nonetheless Chapter 1471

"Alright. I swear I won't do it again."

Liam was a little happy because he understood she was not angry this time.

"V, the flight to Raflurg takes a long time. Do you want to sleep first?" Liam asked with concern while covering her with a small blanket.

"I just got up. How can I be sleepy?" Ivy stared at his dark circles and could tell he did not sleep well last night.

Was it because Liam did not have a place to stay? No. He owned so many properties that he could live anywhere. Moreover, he could have stayed at a hotel.

"What did you do last night?" Ivy asked.

"I was in a bad mood, so I dragged Josiah out for a drink," Liam answered while shaking his head, "it's so hard to ask that guy out nowadays. Did he forget I drank a lot with him to help him drown his sorrows back then? Now that it's his turn to accompany me, he said he needs to spend time with his family at home."

"He has a happy family, and you really shouldn't bother him," Ivy replied, "if you want to drown your sorrows, you can always find other friends."

"A happy family..." Liam sighed sadly, "V, when can I have a happy family life like him?"

Listening to his even breathing, Ivy carefully covered him with her blanket.

Liam originally just wanted to shut his eyes for a quick rest, but he slept the entire journey, when he woke up, the plane was already landing. He glanced at the time, only to realize that he had slept so long. On the other hand, Ivy was leaning against her chair and staring blankly out the window, and she did not notice that Liam had woken up.

Liam faked a cough and asked, "V, why didn't you wake me up?"

Ivy returned to his senses, stared at him, and answered, "I saw that you slept well the entire journey, so I didn't wake you up."

"Didn't we agree to chat if you're bored?"

"I'm not bored."

She really did not feel bored. On the way, Ivy was thinking about her child, where she was most likely to go, and whether she was still alive.

"Are you hungry? I left some food for you," Ivy said.

"I'm not. Besides, airline meals are not delicious. Let's eat something good later."

"Okay."

After getting off the plane, Liam was about to take Ivy to the hotel, but Ivy wanted to return to her previous residence.
