

Still Loving You Nonetheless Chapter 1475

After entering the house, Ivy was eager to serve Siena delicious food.

Siena kept saying, "Aunt V, I just had my dinner."

"You've eaten? Then how about eating some fruits?" Ivy hurried to the kitchen and cut some fruits.

Liam followed her into the kitchen and said, "V, let me come."

"It's okay. You don't know what fruit Siena likes."

While Ivy was cutting the fruit, Liam finally could not help but ask, "V, does Siena's family mistreat her? Why does it feel like no one cares about her?"

Ivy paused and shook her head. "They don't mistreat her, but they don't treat her that great either. Foreigners have a different lifestyle from ours. They tend to focus on themselves more, leaving their children at home and handing them over to nannies while they travel or work alone. They hardly come back, only about twice a year."

"What's the difference between her and those left-behind children?"

"There's no difference."

Staying here with Siena...

Ivy had to admit it was very tempting, but she still shook her head rationally. "Don't say these unrealistic words. It's impossible." "You don't want to?"

"I don't."

Ivy did not want Liam to leave everything for her, not only his family but also the company. It would simply be too cruel to him. Besides, when his love for her faded one day, he would definitely regret this decision.

Liam was still in a daze, and Ivy had already gone out with the fruit.

"Siena, let's eat fruit." Ivy handed her a piece of watermelon. " Look, it's your favorite watermelon."

"Thank you, Aunt Ivy." Siena took the watermelon. Seeing Liam coming out of the kitchen, she said to Liam sensibly, "Uncle Liam, come and join US."

"You two go ahead. I'm still full from dinner."

"Aunt Ivy, is Uncle Liam the person you like?" Siena asked cheekily.
