Still Loving You Nonetheless Chapter 1487

Liam heard what Yanne said. Although he was surprised, he was even more delighted.

Without the child, this would be much easier to handle. At least, there would not be a child destined to be hurt.

Noticing the glimmer in his eyes, Yanne felt even more bitter.

She looked at him and said, "I initially thought that I don't weigh much in your heart, adding a child would be enough. It looks like..."

Yanne shook her head. "Forget about it. I fully understand how you feel."

Liam was silent for a while before saying, "Ivy knew that you were not pregnant?"

"Have you forgotten that she is a doctor?" Yanne said, "That day when I argued with her at the hospital, she grabbed my hand and felt my pulse, she found out that I was not pregnant at all.

"I initially thought that she would tell you all to bring me to have a check, I never would have thought..." Yanne chuckled and shook her head. "I was too petty-minded."

tell me?" Liam muttered. "Not only did she not tell me, but she back about her attitude toward him, he was even her previously the reason for you getting engaged to me. Perhaps, she doesn't speechless, but he had been rejecting him not because of the child in bad, he was too stupid to sighed helplessly and said, "Thank you for bitterly, "Shouldn't you scold me and chase me out

had lied to important to me anymore. What's important is that I could be child so that it would be better for him and Ivy. He was worried that was in such a good mood that he soon thought about another incident that he had always cared about. He looked at Yanne and asked, predicted that he would ask her

because I don't remember

I was afraid that it would hurt your ego."

Yanne took a breath and said, "No."

Sure enough! Liam was secretly delighted once more.

"That night, all you thought of was Ivy. You even called out her name. I initially thought that it would be fine being Ivy for the night, if I slept with you, I would get pregnant with your child. It's a pity that even at that time, you were still not interested in me. You pushed me away."

Liam was extremely relieved and satisfied with her answer.

He felt that his guilt for Yanne had vanished quite a lot.

"Thankyou," Liam said gratefully.

Yanne smiled bitterly and said, "Thanking me makes me feel guilty. II

"No matter what, I hope that you will find a much better man. I believe that you can do it too."

"I don't need you to say such a thing. It's pointless," Yanne said.