

Still Loving You Nonetheless Chapter 1489

"Mom, please think back about the things you have done to me all this time. Was this something a biological mother would do to her son?"

Madam Sheldon thought for a while. Indeed, it was not.

Of course, she would not admit it.

"If it was not because of your brother, I wouldn't have asked this of you." Madam Sheldon sighed and said, "Right now, I'm worried that Howard will think that he isn't my biological son anymore."

"Don't worry, Howard isn't such an ungrateful person."

"Let's hope so."

Liam measured his mother up once more and said, "So, why are you here?"

"Nothing, just to see where you have gone for the past few days."

She initially wanted to apologize to her son, but she could not find herself to do so, so she came up with a random excuse.

"Back then what?" Liam pretended to be unhappy and questioned her, "Back then, because of my brother, you had to help Yanne and lie to me?"

"What?" Ivy was stunned. "Are you talking about the child in Miss Young?"

"If not?" Liam captured something fishy going on. "If not, who else?"

"Oh, no. I thought you were talking about Siena." Ivy was clearly relieved.

"What happened to Siena?"

"Nothing. She was just crying, asking to see her Daddy."

"I don't believe it," Liam said with a smile, "she is clearly closer to you. How could she possibly miss me?"

"Being close to me won't affect her being close to you too. How could she not miss you?"

"Then, did you tell her that I would soon return to pick her up?"

"I did."

Liam then said, "Wait, we're not talking about Siena. We're talking about the child in Yanne. Tell me. why didn't you tell me the truth? II
