1591 – Producing the Conqueror’s Armor

After Shi Feng disconnected the call, Aqua Rose stared at the dark screen before her in stunned silence.

Increasing their bounty on Heaven’s Burial’s members was easier said than done. The additional expenditure would easily reach tens of thousands of Gold.

The Guild did rake in quite a bit of money from Zero Wing City. Currently, it earned more than 5,000 Gold through the entrance fees alone.

However, due to the war of attrition with Heaven’s Burial, Zero Wing struggled to make ends meet. Unless the Guild gained an additional 100,000 Gold, it couldn’t feasibly afford to double the bounty on Heaven’s Burial.

Where, exactly, were they supposed to get another 100,000 Gold?

“Big Sis Aqua, are we really going to double the bounty?” Yaya asked carefully from beside Aqua Rose.

Zero Wing only had a little over 20,000 Gold set aside for emergencies. If they used these funds, the Guild would be in an even more precarious situation should something unexpected occur.

“Make the announcement,” Aqua Rose said, releasing a deep, powerless sigh. “Even if we don’t raise the bounty, our remaining stock of top-tier equipment in the Guild Warehouse won’t last long. If we don’t increase the bounty, we’ll only burn through our stock. If we’re doomed either way, we might as well duke it out with Heaven’s Burial and Blackwater!”

Following which, Yaya posted the increased bounty on Star-Moon Kingdom's official forums.

As the news spread, it attracted the attention of every player in Star-Moon Kingdom. Yaya's post quickly garnered over a million views.

"Is Zero Wing is really trying to fight it out with Heaven's burial? It actually followed Heaven's Burial's lead and doubled its bounty."

"It seems that Zero Wing is finally getting serious!"

"Heaven's Burial has Blackwater's support, so it's expected that the Guild has a massive amount of funding. But how has Zero Wing secured so much money?"

"Maybe Zero Wing's putting up a final struggle, trying to scare Heaven's Burial into backing off? Based on what I've heard, Blackwater mobilized a bunch of experts to help Heaven's Burial and offered the guild an additional 200,000 Gold. With the income from Ancient Rock City, how can Zero Wing possibly beat Heaven's Burial in wealth?"

"Indeed. I've heard that Ancient Rock City's player population has already exceeded 6,000,000. Although Heaven's Burial isn't charging entrance fees, it's still making a ton of money through repair and accommodation fees."

"Let them raise their bounties on each other! The higher, the better! That way, I can earn enough money to buy my Mount!"

In the public eye, Zero Wing was at an overwhelming disadvantage in its war with Heaven's Burial. And yet, everyone celebrated the war. It wasn't every day that players had such a golden opportunity to make money.

...

Orc Empire, Heaven's Burial's Residence in Ancient Rock City:

"Guild Leader Singular, it seems that Zero Wing has quite the budget as well. Are you sure that you won't have any issues?" Lei Jingyang could not help his frown as he read the latest forum post from Zero Wing.

To whittle down Zero Wing's strength as quickly as possible, Heaven's Burial had doubled its bounty on the other Guild's members. This increased the number of bounties they had to pay by several times. Each day, they had to shell out roughly 60,000 Gold in bounties. That was the equivalent of several days of Ancient Rock City's income. Despite what the public thought, Heaven's Burial wasn't as secure as it seemed.

"Young Master Lei, rest assured; I am very familiar with what Zero Wing is capable of. Based on the reports from my spies in the Guild, Zero Wing doesn't have much money left. It's already struggling to maintain its current expenditures. This is merely Zero Wing's final act of defiance," Singular Burial said, not particularly surprised to hear that Zero Wing had doubled its bounty. "I've also reached an agreement with Blackwater. Not only have they invested 200,000 Gold in Heaven's Burial, but they also intend to send another 300,000 Gold later. Five hundred thousand Gold Coins is more than enough to crush Zero Wing. Besides, we've also located a new mine in the Orc Empire. That mine has a Magic Iron vein and a certain chance of producing Magic Crystals. As long as we capture the mine, Zero Wing has no hope of outlasting us, even if it gains the Dragon-Phoenix Pavilion's full support."

Magic Iron veins were one of the few ore veins that produced Magic Crystals, and the vein Heaven's Burial had discovered was only a dozen or so hours' walk away from Ancient Rock City. Although other superpowers had discovered the vein as well, their Guild Towns were much farther away. As a result, these superpowers couldn't compete with Heaven's Burial.

"I guess you're right. But as a precaution, we should move up our timetable. The other superpowers have already shown interest in the Magic Iron vein, and although we have the terrain advantage, securing the vein won't be easy." Lei Jingyang nodded his agreement. He was starting to think that he may have overestimated Zero Wing a little.

Although Zero Wing was powerful, the Guild lacked the support of a major corporation. It relied on its own power.

Meanwhile, in White River City's Candlelight Trading Firm...

As Shi Feng entered one of the Special Forging Rooms on the building's top floor, he noticed Melancholic Smile and nearly 100 other Advanced Forgers waiting for him.

"Guild Leader, I've withdrawn all of the materials you've requested from the warehouse. The Candlelight Trading Firm is also purchasing the materials in bulk," Melancholic Smile reported as she approached Shi Feng, gesturing to the various materials piled around the Special Forging Room.

The materials Melancholic had gathered in the Special Forging Room were none other than the required materials for crafting the Conqueror's Armor.

The Conqueror's Armor's production process was intensely complex. Among the various processes, the most time-consuming were the smelting and material refinement. Fortunately, these tasks could be completed by forgers who hadn't learned the Conqueror's Armor Forging Design, which was precisely why Shi Feng had called upon these forgers to assist. With this, he could focus on forging the Conqueror's Armor, saving plenty of time. However, when Shi Feng considered the materials' purity, he decided that it'd be best if he left the smelting and refinement to Advanced Forgers.

"Good! Put whatever tasks you're currently working on on hold for now. I need all of you to smelt these materials," Shi Feng addressed the Advanced Forgers. He then turned to Melancholic Smile and asked, "How is the market for Lunar Potions right now?"

"Lunar Potions?" Shaking her head, Melancholic Smile said, "Although the Lunar Potion is common, demand has skyrocketed due to the increase in players exploring ruins, yet the Moonlight Flower, the Lunar Potion's main material, is quite rare. As a result, the Moonlight Flower's market price has increased drastically. Now, each flower sells for 6 Silver. As for the Lunar Potion, it's sold for 12 silver. Although we've tried to purchase the flowers to produce Lunar Potions, we've only crafted a little over 2,000 bottles thus far."

The various large Guilds urgently needed Lunar Potions, but due to the Moonlight Flower's rarity, it was impossible to acquire in large quantities. The fact that the Candlelight Trading Firm had accumulated a stock of over 2,000 Lunar Potions was impressive.

So, it's finally begun. Shi Feng smiled. The Moonlight Flower's price was already higher than he had expected. Following which, he retrieved the Moonlight Flowers he had stored in his Epic Spatial Bag and Space-time Herb Garden. "Use these to brew Lunar Potions and sell them for now. Send all of the money to Aqua to cope with our current predicament."

Shi Feng had used the Space-time Herb Garden to grow Moonlight Flowers ever since he obtained it. With the Herb Garden's increased survival rates, the Moonlight Flowers he planted had a 25% survival rate. As a result, each harvest netted around 15,000 Moonlight Flowers. He had already collected over 350,000 in total. Since each stack consisted of 100 flowers, he had 3,521 stacks of Moonlight Flowers.

When Melancholic Smile saw the stacks of Moonlight Flowers Shi Feng had revealed, her jaw dropped.

It was difficult enough to purchase a few dozen Moonlight Flowers from the market, yet Shi Feng had pulled over 3,000 stacks from his bag, almost filling hers...

If they used all of these Moonlight Flowers to brew Lunar Potions, they'd definitely make a fortune!

1592 – Frantic Purchase

After receiving Shi Feng's instructions, Melancholic Smile promptly left the Special Forging Room and contacted every Advanced Alchemist in the Candlelight Trading Firm, passing on the order to begin the Lunar Potion's mass-production.

At the same time, Melancholic Smile retrieved the stockpiled Lunar Potions from the trading firm's warehouse and had her subordinates sell them in Zero Wing's Advanced Auction House and White River City's Auction House.

In addition, she sent a few other players to the Black Dragon Empire and other kingdoms to sell the potions.

Not only could they sell the Lunar Potions quickly by doing so, but they could also maintain the market value.

Meanwhile, in another of the Candlelight Trading Firm's Special Forging Rooms, Shi Feng took out the Philosopher's Stone, which he had retrieved from his Private Warehouse earlier, and began to synthesize Mana Barrier Crystals from the Mana Barrier Crystal Fragments.

Shi Feng had obtained a total of 45 Mana Barrier Crystal Fragments from his latest trip to the World Summit. If he had NPC alchemists help synthesize the Mana Barrier Crystals for him, they'd only have a 40% success rate, and each attempt required ten crystal fragments. He'd be lucky to end up with two Mana Barrier Crystals. On the other hand, the Philosopher's Stone provided a 100% synthesis success rate.

However, something unexpected and shocking happened when Shi Feng synthesized the first batch of crystal fragments. After placing only five crystal fragments into the Philosopher's Stone, a complete Mana Barrier Crystal had appeared on the table before him.

What?! I only need five crystal fragments to form a complete crystal?! Shi Feng was astounded as he stared at the Mana Barrier Crystal on the table.

If he only needed five crystal fragments, he could synthesize nine complete Mana Barrier Crystals.

Meanwhile, teleportation arrays like those in White River City's Teleportation Hall needed five Magic Crystals for each activation. Hence, they would also need five Mana Barrier Crystals to operate normally.

As for the Four Towers of Elements' teleportation function, it only needed three Magic Crystals. Originally, Shi Feng had planned to activate the teleportation function only after he had gathered enough Mana Barrier Crystals. After all, it was simply impossible to sustain the teleportation arrays' consumption with Zero Wing's current Magic Crystal income. Now, however, it would seem that that was no longer necessary.

Fortunately, he could use nine Mana Barrier Crystals interchangeably. Moreover, in addition to the Mana Barrier Crystals' self-recovery ability, each Mana Barrier Crystal contained as much Mana as 100 Magic Crystals.

Shi Feng immediately contacted Melancholic Smile and had her send Aqua Rose the synthesized crystals and a message to activate the Four Towers of Elements' teleportation functions.

Once he finished with the Mana Barrier Crystals, Shi Feng took out the Conqueror's Armor Forging Design and began to study.

Unlike Basic Forging Designs, players couldn't learn Advanced Forging Designs with the click of a button.

Advanced Forging Designs also contained special forging techniques and magic arrays. Players needed to learn all of these details themselves.

This thing is really complex. After looking through the Conqueror's Armor's production process, Shi Feng was astonished. It's no wonder why players struggled so hard to produce equipment with battle arrays in the past. So, the process of creating the battle arrays involves Advanced Magic Arrays. Fortunately, I didn't leave the Conqueror's Armor's production to Cocoa and the others. Otherwise, it'd take even longer to craft the armor.

Basic Magic Arrays in God's Domain were quite complex, and even experts needed a considerable amount of time to grasp the skills required to craft them. Needless to say, Intermediate Magic Arrays were even more complex. Otherwise, Shi Feng wouldn't have left the Secret-Silver ranked Secret Technique Tablet in the Guild's Warehouse instead of putting it to use. Even now, Zero Wing didn't have enough players who could draw the Intermediate Magic Arrays.

Throughout Zero Wing, only Shi Feng knew how to draw Advanced Magic Arrays thus far. Everyone else was still a long distance away from being able to draw them effectively.

Fortunately, the required Advanced Magic Array isn't too difficult to draw. I should be able to learn it in a few hours. Shi Feng breathed a sigh of relief after examining the necessary Advanced Magic Array.

Although he could already draw Advanced Magic Arrays, there were simple and complex versions. Shi Feng could draw the simple arrays in a handful of hours, but he might not be able to learn a complex Advanced Magic Array yet with his current standards.

If he couldn't draw the required Advanced Magic Array, he wouldn't be able to forge the Conqueror's Armor.

Although it appeared as though Zero Wing and Heaven's Burial were competing via wealth, in reality, that wasn't the case. The true competition still lay among the Guilds' experts.

Due to Lei Jingyang's partnership with Heaven's Burial, the Guild had recruited a lot of expert players. Now, Heaven's Burial also had the assistance of a large number of Blackwater's experts. As a result, the gap between Zero Wing and Heaven's Burial's strengths had grown.

Unfortunately, Zero Wing didn't have enough Tier 2 experts to deal with the enemy's overwhelming numbers. Even if Shi Feng took up arms personally, there was very little he could do to change the situation.

But it would be a different story if Zero Wing had the Conqueror's Armor. If five elite players wore the armor, they would immediately rise to expert status. They might even become more powerful than ordinary expert players.

If Zero Wing equipped their ordinary expert players with the armor and activated the Basic Strength Battle Array, they'd be as strong as the Guild's first-rate experts. If all five worked together, they might even display more overall combat power than five Refinement Realm experts working together.

Refinement Realm experts!

Even in Super Guilds, experts of such caliber were invaluable. In current first-rate Guilds, such experts would rank among the top in strength.

While Shi Feng studied the Conqueror's Armor's Advanced Magic Array, Melancholic Smile posted every Lunar Potion she had on hand for sale in the various empires and kingdoms' Auction Houses. She only sold 100 bottles in each location, setting the minimum bid at 10 Silver per bottle, slightly cheaper than market value.

When these potions went public in the various Auction Houses, they attracted many Guilds and teams' attention.

"Someone's actually selling so many Lunar Potions?!"

"So cheap!"

"This is wonderful! With these potions, our team can finally explore the ancient ruin we found!"

Excited, players furiously began to bid on the Lunar Potions.

To the current adventurer teams and Guilds, ruin exploration had become a golden opportunity to make a fortune, but without the Lunar Potion or something similar, exploring the dark ruins was troublesome. Every ruin had its own traps, and locating these traps in the dark was dangerous.

If players triggered these traps, even an expert-led team could suffer severe damage or be annihilated. Compared to the risk of triggering these traps, the Lunar Potion's cost was nothing. After all, players would need several days to recover a lost level at this stage of the game.

As players discovered the Lunar Potions in the Auction Houses, the potion's prices quickly skyrocketed.

10 Silver, 40 Copper!

10 Silver, 70 Copper!

11 Silver, 20 Copper!

After a few short minutes, the average price had reached 12 Silver, 50 Copper. Meanwhile, this increase was just the beginning.

In the end, players only stopped contesting for the Lunar Potions after the prices reached 17 Silver, 50 Copper. This was already far beyond the current market value.

Although not every Lunar Potion had sold for 17 Silver, 50 Copper, on average, they had sold for 16 Silver, 40 Copper or more. After deducting the processing fees, Zero Wing still earned a considerable profit. In the end, Melancholic Smile had made a massive 262 Gold from the 2,000 Lunar Potions she had sold...

Fortunately, she had barely dented the market's demand for the Lunar Potions. Two thousand potions weren't nearly enough to quench players' thirst in a single kingdom, much less multiple kingdoms and empires.

1593 – Zero Wing City's True Power

After the first batch of Lunar Potions had sold, none were available in the various Auction Houses. Because of this, regret ravaged the players who had failed to win the potions.

"Crap! The Lunar Potions have sold out already?! I just got here!"

"Damn it! I knew I shouldn't have waited! If I had just bought two or three bottles, our team would have had enough for an expedition!"

Many players had assumed that the Lunar Potions had come from some Guild or trading firm. After all, no single player would be able to sell 100 bottles at a time. If that were the case, there was a high likelihood that another batch would show up in the Auction Houses sooner or later.

However, even after over half an hour, no one had posted any new Lunar Potions...

Meanwhile, Melancholic Smile, who was currently in the Candlelight Trading Firm, was elated.

The speed at which players are buying the potions is really frightening. With this, we won't need to worry about not being able to sell the potions in bulk. When Melancholic Smile received the proceeds from her subordinates, she brimmed with confidence regarding the large number of Moonlight Flowers in her possession.

Although the Candlelight Trading Firm produced a large number of items each day, not all of these items sold the moment they were put up for sale. They needed to let the market slowly digest some of these items. In fact, some items might never sell, collecting dust in the trading firm.

However, the Lunar Potion was a different story. This first round of sales had proven that, as long as the Candlelight Trading Firm crafted Lunar Potions, the market would devour their stock.

Meanwhile, the Candlelight Trading Firm had almost 100 Advanced Alchemists. With enough materials, mass-producing the Lunar Potions would be a piece of cake for these alchemists.

In fact, while the first batch of Lunar Potions had sold, Silent Wonder and the others had brewed over 2,000 new bottles.

This upload first at NovelBin.Com

With this production speed, the Candlelight Trading Firm should earn around two or three hundred Gold per hour. With 48 hours per day in God's Domain, the firm could make over 10,000 Gold per day with the Lunar Potions alone.

Although this amount of money couldn't change the war's overall situation, it was enough to resolve Zero Wing's current predicament.

When Melancholic Smile gave the command to sell the second batch of Lunar Potions, an intense competition raged in the various kingdoms and empires' Auction Houses. The players that had previously adopted a wait-and-see attitude discarded the notion. They did everything in their power to get their hands on the potions for fear that they'd miss this opportunity.

The Lunar Potion's prices soared once again. The highest price during the first batch had climbed to 17 Silver, 50 Copper, but now it rose to 19 Silver per bottle. By the time the 2,000 Lunar Potions sold out, Melancholic Smile had earned an additional 300-plus Gold.

Meanwhile, Aqua Rose was swamped with work in Zero Wing City.

"Big Sis Aqua, we've paid out over 1,300 Gold since we've updated the bounty. Including the remaining funds we have set aside, we won't last another two days," Yaya worriedly reported as she examined the bounty claims summary in her hands.

"It's increased by so much?" Aqua Rose could not help but frown.

The increased bounty claims were far higher than she had expected. She had hoped that they would last a few more days in this war with the income from Zero Wing City and the Guild's remaining funds, but it seemed that wouldn't be possible.

Even if Heaven's Burial didn't mobilize its army, Zero Wing would crumble if it ran out of money. The Guild's reputation would be in tatters.

To make matters worse, Heaven's Burial's Ancient Rock City became more popular as time passed. Not only could players level up in the area, but they could also earn Contribution Points to purchase valuable items. In contrast, Zero Wing City's location was only suitable for leisure right now.

"Big Sis Aqua, under the Guild Leader's orders, the Candlelight Trading Firm has sent a representative with Coins and items. Apparently, these should help us hold out for a little while longer," Yaya suddenly announced.

"They've sent funds? Good! I'll head over to meet them immediately!" Aqua Rose breathed a sigh of relief when she heard that Shi Feng had sent additional funds. She ran to the Guild Hall's lobby to receive the Coins and items.

Although she didn't know how Shi Feng had obtained the additional funding, another forty or fifty thousand Gold would help Zero Wing endure this war for a few more days. During that time, they could organize an auction to sell some of Zero Wing City's private housing. That might allow them to continue this fight with Heaven's Burial. They might even be able to put an end to this war. Heaven's Burial invested quite a bit of money each day as well, and no one wanted to see this drag on.

However, when Aqua Rose saw the Coins Melancholic Smile's subordinate had traded to her, she was dumbfounded. For a moment, she wondered if she had misread the total.

Five hundred Gold!

To a small Guild or adventurer team, 500 Gold might be a considerable amount of money, but to Zero Wing, this was nothing more than pocket change. It was far from enough to pull Zero Wing from its current predicament.

Is this supposed to help me hold out for another half an hour? Aqua Rose was speechless as she stared at the 500 Gold.

But when Aqua Rose noticed the nine Mana Barrier Crystals in her bag and inspected their Attribute Panels, her eyes began to glow.

Everlasting Magic Crystals? Aqua Rose couldn't believe her eyes. She immediately contacted Shi Feng and asked, "Guild Leader, just where did you get these Mana Barrier Crystals? Do you have more of them?"

God's Domain's various Guilds and players were all in desperate need of Magic Crystals, and Zero Wing was certainly no exception, yet not only were these Mana Barrier Crystals the equivalent of 100 Magic Crystals, but they could also be used repeatedly. This was akin to having a miniature Magic Crystal vein.

Furthermore, these Mana Barrier Crystals only needed 48 hours to replenish their energy. They basically gave Zero Wing a stable income of 900 magic Crystals per day. If they stored the Mana Barrier Crystals in a location with sufficient Mana density, their Cooldowns would be even shorter. Although the Mana Barrier Crystals could not be used in places like the Divine Colosseum, they were extremely valuable.

"You've already received them?" Seeing Aqua Rose's excitement, Shi Feng smiled bitterly as he said, "Mana Barrier Crystals are extremely rare items. Obtaining more is impossible at the moment."

Naturally, Aqua Rose was a little disappointed to hear this.

If they had 50 or 60 Mana Barrier Crystals, Zero Wing would be set for life.

However, after giving the matter some thought, she found it reasonable. If it were possible to obtain something as valuable as Mana Barrier Crystals in large quantities, it would throw God's Domain's market into chaos.

"Use the nine Mana Barrier Crystals to operate the Four Towers of Elements' teleportation array for now. With the Mana Barrier Crystals and some additional Magic Crystals, we should be able to sustain the teleportation array's consumption easily." Shi Feng could sympathize with Aqua Rose's desire for the Mana Barrier Crystals, but they simply weren't that easy to obtain. "Let the public know that Zero Wing City will activate a teleportation function that can transport players anywhere within 4,000,000 yards of the city. The cost will be 5 Silver Coins per 1,000,000 yards per person. At the same time, set up a membership system for the teleportation function. Those who wish to become members can pay a one-time membership fee of 20 Magic Crystals. In return, they'll get a 20% discount when using the teleportation function."

Currently, Stone Forest Town and Team Dungeons were Zero Wing's main income source for Magic Crystals, but both Stone Forest Town and Zero Wing City needed a lot of Magic Crystals to operate. Furthermore, the Guild had to sustain the daily Magic Crystal allocation for its members. It was practically impossible to sustain the Four Towers of Elements's teleportation function with the Guild's current Magic Crystal income.

Although not every player would pay 20 Magic Crystals to become a member, Zero Wing would be fine as long as it earned enough Magic Crystals to sustain the Four Towers of Elements' teleportation function.

"Alright, I'll get it done right away!" Aqua Rose nodded excitedly.

She had waited to launch of the Four Towers of Elements's teleportation function for a long time. Unfortunately, Zero Wing hadn't had enough Magic Crystals to sustain the teleportation array until now. Now that they had the Mana Barrier Crystals, they could finally show off Zero Wing City's true power.

1594 – Surging Towards Zero Wing City

Star-Moon Kingdom, Star-Moon City:

Light flashed in the Teleportation Hall as a team of 20 players arrived in the lively Star-Moon City. When these players appeared, many players in the hall turned to look.

All of these 20 players' levels were impressively high, and they were well-equipped. The lowest level among them was Level 47, while the most inferior equipment was Level 45 Fine-Gold rank. The pair leading the team, a man and a woman, were even more awe-inspiring; both were Level 49 and wore nothing but Level 45 Dark-Gold Equipment...

Not even first-rate Guilds' experts could compare to this team. Most surprisingly, none of these experts wore a Guild Emblem, showing that they were all independent players.

"What a powerful team. Who are they?"

"Don't you see the flaming fox logo sewn on their cloaks? They're members of Firecloud Fox, one of the top 50 adventurer teams in the Black Dragon Empire. That Shield Warrior in the lead is Remnant Cloud, Firecloud Fox's commander. He is one of the Black Dragon Empire's top 100 Shield Warriors. I've heard that several first-rate Guilds in the empire have offered high prices to recruit him, but he's refused every one."

“Since they’re from an adventurer team in the Black Dragon Empire, why are they here in Star-Moon Kingdom?”

“Because of Stone Forest Town. The town’s Battle Arena is a perfect place for experts like them to train. I’ve also heard that Firecloud Fox plans to move its headquarters to Zero Wing City. Although Zero Wing City’s Battle Arena isn’t as effective as the one in Stone Forest Town, the city’s Mana density is much higher.”

When the players in the Hall saw Firecloud Fox’s members, they all fell into heated discussions. Some players, members of other adventurer teams, gazed at Firecloud Fox’s members with envy and admiration. Even first-rate Guilds fought to recruit these experts; it was an honor that few adventurer teams received.

“It really is annoying to travel to and from the Orc Empire every time. Commander, can’t we grind somewhere else next time?” Graceful Moon, Firecloud Fox’s vice commander, suggested, paying no attention to the gossip around her. Turning to Remnant Cloud, she continued, “The Orcs’ invasion is getting worse, and over the past few days, we’ve come across more and higher-quality Orcs. It’ll definitely affect our leveling speed.”

“In your dreams. If we don’t continue questing in the Orc Empire and kill Heaven’s Burial’s members, how are we supposed to earn the money for our Mounts?” Remnant Cloud snapped. “Although the Orcs’ upgrade had affected our leveling speed, opportunities like this don’t happen often. Alright, enough complaining. Let’s head to Zero Wing City to claim our bounties.”

“I get what you’re trying to say, but you’ve seen the difference for yourself. Those Orcs are growing more powerful. At first, we usually only encountered Elite ranked Orcs, but now, we’ve run into Chieftains left and right. Their combat standards have improved, as well. I’m willing to bet that we’ll need to waste several more hours to cross the border the next time we try to enter the Orc Empire,” Graceful Moon grumbled.

Despite the short distance between Star-Moon Kingdom's border towns and the Orc Empire's border, their adventurer team had spent a significant amount of time crossing the border due to Orc patrol squads. To make matters worse, the quantity and quality of patrol squads continued to increase as well. Now, they spent half of their travel time on fighting the Orc patrol squads.

"Alright, if they've grown stronger by the time we try to cross the border again, we'll find another location to grind and quest. In any case, our adventurer team has earned quite a bit. With today's haul, we should have enough to purchase a private house in Zero Wing City," Remnant Cloud said. After giving the matter some more thought, he saw the logic in Graceful Moon's concerns.

While earning money was important, it wouldn't do them any good if it came at the cost of their leveling speed. If the Orcs guarding the border grew even stronger, leveling in the Orc Empire would no longer be worth it. In fact, based on what information he had, several adventurer teams, which were only slightly weaker than Firecloud Fox, had already given up on the Orc Empire and opted to grind in other maps. These other adventurer teams' level speed was now slightly faster than his own team's.

As Remnant Cloud and his companions prepared to head to Zero Wing City, they overheard nearby players discussing their destination.

"Is Zero Wing for real?! Zero Wing City can actually do that?!"

"It can't be true. How could a city possibly teleport players to any location within 4,000,000 yards? If that were possible, wouldn't players be able to teleport to their desired leveling areas instantly?"

"Zero Wing made the announcement personally. Why wouldn't it be true? Players would see through it immediately if this were some kind of ruse. Besides, didn't you see it? The teleportation fee is absurd. Ordinary players barely earn anything each day. If we want to use the teleportation function, we'll have to hand over a whole day's earnings to Zero Wing."

“Zero Wing is too strong! It actually secured something like this, too! As expected of our kingdom’s number one Guild!”

The players on Star-Moon City’s streets debated Zero Wing’s latest announcement. Meanwhile, the numerous adventurer teams in the city burned with excitement over the news.

Zero Wing City’s location was no longer news to Star-Moon Kingdom’s players.

The city wasn’t far from the frontlines of this war between the Orc Empire and Star-Moon Kingdom. For the most part, only a large forest separated the city from the frontlines. Being able to teleport to any location within 4,000,000 yards of the city would allow players to travel beyond the kingdom’s border, bypassing many of the Orc patrol squads. This would save players plenty of travel time and allow them to avoid quite a bit of danger.

The teleportation’s cost was the only downside. If players teleported across the maximum range, one trip would cost 20 Silver per person...

However, the price was definitely worth the trip for capable adventurer teams. They could easily earn back several times the money they had spent with the time they saved. After all, Zero Wing had placed a bounty on Heaven’s Burial’s members. They could earn back the teleportation fees by killing a bunch of the Guild’s members easily. Moreover, the Orc Empire’s maps had far more resources than most of Star-Moon Kingdom’s. They’d also be able to increase their leveling speed.

“Commander, it seems that we’ll have to save a bit more Coins to buy a private house in Zero Wing City,” Graceful Moon said, chuckling after she read Zero Wing’s announcement.

“Zero Wing isn’t giving us a chance! How wonderful would it have been if they had sold their private housing before this announcement?” While Remnant Cloud celebrated the news, he also felt a sting in his pockets.

Zero Wing City had already offered amazing benefits, but now it also informed the public of its teleportation function. Needless to say, adventurer teams and experts who wanted to level in the Orc Empire would flood Zero Wing City. To players like them, the teleportation function was a major resource, and 20 Silver Coins wasn’t a significant expenditure. As long as they obtained one or two pieces of equipment to sell, they would easily earn back what they spent. Furthermore, players could purchase a membership to receive a 20% discount.

In fact, Star-Moon Kingdom’s players wouldn’t be the only ones interested in Zero Wing City’s teleportation function. Players from other kingdoms and empires would likely visit Zero Wing City to travel to the Orc Empire. As it was, the Orcs guarding all of the empire’s borders were growing stronger.

As Remnant Cloud fussed over how to earn enough money to purchase a private house in Zero Wing City, the adventurer teams and players in said city were in an uproar. These players, who had initially planned to walk to the Orc Empire, changed their minds immediately and made their way to the nearest Four Towers of Elements. They then spent 20 Silver to travel across Star-Moon Kingdom’s border.

As more players proved the power of the Four Towers of Elements’ teleportation function, more adventurer teams and expert players applied for the teleportation membership. One short hour after Zero Wing announced the teleportation function, 1,042 players had become members, contributing over 20,000 Magic Crystals.

In total, over 2,000 players had used the teleportation function. Naturally, not everyone wanted to pay a portion of their teleportation fees in Magic Crystals.

After subtracting the maintenance and energy costs, Zero Wing had earned 12 Silver Coins off of every player that had teleported over the maximum distance. In a single hour, Zero Wing had made over 240 Gold in pure profit.

However, the truly frightening result of Zero Wing's latest announcement was the number of players who visited Zero Wing City. In just one hour, Zero Wing City's player population had shot past the 2,000,000-threshold. Many of these players belonged to adventurer teams from other kingdoms and empires, and in the end, Zero Wing had also earned a fortune from the entrance fees...

1595 – Upgrading the Blacksteel Insignia

The moment Zero Wing City revealed its teleportation function, the city attracted many major powers' attention. A large number of merchant players also considered conducting their business in Zero Wing City. Some of the Guilds in the several kingdoms and two empires bordering the Orc Empire even tried to ally with Zero Wing in secret.

The situation had completely exceeded Aqua Rose's expectations.

All of these Guilds offered to sell Zero Wing Level 45, top-tier equipment at below market price in exchange for the right to establish a Guild Residence in Zero Wing City and a 20% discount on the teleportation fees. These Guilds were also willing to pay a portion of the teleportation fees with Magic Crystals.

Although mainstream players had already reached Level 40, they were still some time from reaching Level 45. Only the various Guilds' elite members had reached such a high level, and because of this, Level 45 Fine-Gold Equipment and above was still extremely rare. Although the equipment was available on the market, these pieces usually cost far more than market value. Moreover, there weren't many pieces available. Even if Zero Wing were willing to purchase the overpriced equipment, it wouldn't secure many pieces.

Yet, these large Guilds had offered Level 45, top-tier equipment as payment. Aqua Rose had never expected this. If she accepted their offers, she'd solve the Guild's shortage of funds and top-tier equipment. Furthermore, even after giving these Guilds a 20% discount on teleportation fees, Zero Wing would still make quite a bit of profit.

"Guild Leader, three first-rate Guilds and 11 second-rate Guilds have expressed interest in partnering with us thus far. If we agree, replenishing our top-tier equipment in the Guild Warehouse won't be an issue anymore," Aqua Rose said excitedly as she read the report in her hands.

Rather than Coins, Zero Wing urgently needed top-tier equipment for its war against Heaven's Burial. Every time their players died, they'd lose a piece of equipment. Occasionally, Heaven's Burial's members even used some special methods to force players to drop more than one piece when they died. Generally, Zero Wing compensated its members with GCPs, and these members would then trade their points for replacement weapons and equipment from the Warehouse. Because of this, Zero Wing's members were rapidly depleting the Guild's stock of weapons and equipment.

If Zero Wing's Guild Warehouse ran out of top-tier weapons and equipment for its members, Zero Wing's GCPs would lose their value. If that happened, it would only be a matter of time before the Guild crumbled.

However, if Zero Wing could replenish its stock, Aqua Rose was confident that the Guild could continue to duke it out with Heaven's Burial.

"There are so many Guilds seeking an alliance?" Aqua Rose's report surprised Shi Feng. He hadn't thought that the Four Towers of Elements' teleportation function would be such an effective advertisement. "Alright. However, they have to pay 25% of their teleportation fees with Magic Crystals. Otherwise, no deal!"

While the Four Towers of Elements's teleportation function was powerful, its operation cost a lot of Magic Crystals. If he allowed these Guilds to mass-teleport their members, the nine Mana Barrier Crystals would drain in the blink of an eye. Zero Wing did not have many Magic Crystals to spare. If these Guilds paid a quarter of their teleportation fees in Magic Crystals, they'd offset the additional cost. Zero Wing might even earn some Magic Crystal profit.

"I understand. I'll begin the negotiations right away." After Shi Feng agreed, Aqua Rose disconnected the call and contacted the various large Guilds' Guild Leaders.

Meanwhile, the atmosphere among Zero Wing's members had lightened considerably due to the city's sudden popularity. Everyone's confidence of defeating Heaven's Burial renewed. They could easily imagine the future that awaited their Guild City, and there was no way it would lose to Heaven's Burial's Ancient Rock City in any aspect.

Similarly, Star-Moon Kingdom's players had begun to change their minds about Zero Wing falling prey to Heaven's Burial. They now thought that Zero Wing had some hope of victory.

While Aqua Rose negotiated the contracts' terms with the various Guild Leaders, Shi Feng had finally learned how to craft the new Advanced Magic Array and had begun to forge the Conqueror's Armor.

Although Zero Wing had solved its money and equipment problems, it still wouldn't be easy to defeat Heaven's Burial and Blackwater.

Shi Feng didn't even think that his current Guild could do anything to the two Guilds. The difference between their expert counts was just too massive, not to mention financial strength. If Zero Wing wanted to end this war of attrition, it would have to rely on the strength of its Guild members.

In fact, this was God's Domain's infallible truth!

Otherwise, Guilds wouldn't pay so much attention to nurturing their experts.

Now that I've learned how to draw the magic array, I need to find a way to improve my success rate. Although it is somewhat wasteful, I'll have to upgrade the Blacksteel Insignia. When Shi Feng had tried to forge the Conqueror's Armor and saw his theoretical success rate, he steeled himself and made his way to White River City's bank.

Forging the Level 50 Fine-Gold ranked Conqueror's Armor would be even more challenging than forging Level 50 Dark-Gold Equipment. Despite his status as a Master Forger, he only had a theoretical success rate of 18%. Even with his various support tools, he only increased that success rate to around 28%.

Although it seemed relatively high, he'd be fortunate to succeed once out of every five attempts to produce the armor. This was due to the Conqueror's Armor's complex forging process. Unfortunately, the required materials weren't cheap, and each attempt would cost around 50 Gold. With that kind of money, he could already purchase a piece of Level 45 Fine-Gold Equipment.

Because the required materials were also rare and difficult to obtain, he also had a limited number of attempts.

Shi Feng simply couldn't bear to forge the Conqueror's Armor with such a low success rate.

If he had to craft the armor, he'd have to reach a 30% success rate at the very least.

His only solution was the Holy Grail's Power of Evolution, which he could only use once every ten days.

Shi Feng quickly arrived in his own Large Private Warehouse and carefully retrieved Zero Wing's greatest secret weapon—the Holy Grail.

He had planned to save the Power of Evolution to upgrade items with special abilities to Epic rank, but he couldn't care less right now. He immediately retrieved the Blacksteel Insignia and scanned it with the Holy Grail.

Suddenly, purple fog leaked from the Holy Grail and enveloped the Blacksteel Insignia. The system soon notified Shi Feng of the evolution cost.

System: Are you willing to permanently lose 1,000 HP to evolve the Blacksteel Insignia?

...

What? This thing actually requires 1,000 HP? Shi Feng was astonished.

The Blacksteel Insignia was currently Fine-Gold rank. Even if he evolved the item, it would only become Dark-Gold rank, yet the evolution cost was as high as the cost of evolving the Holy City's Emblem.

Losing 1,000 HP was no trivial matter. It was the equivalent of losing 50 Endurance permanently. Even a Tier 2 player would have to level a few times to make up for this loss. Moreover, the evolution's success wasn't guaranteed. There was still a chance of failure.

But Shi Feng did not hesitate long before he clicked 'Agree.'

He might have decided against evolving the Blacksteel Insignia in the past, but now that he had the Dark Iron Bloodline, things had changed. The Bloodline provided some additional Basic Attribute points with each level-up. Moreover, the bonus would grow as he reached higher levels. He could recover the lost 50 Endurance very quickly.

After Shi Feng agreed to the evolution, the Holy Grail's purple fog wrapped around him. Immediately, Shi Feng's maximum HP fell by 1,000. Meanwhile, the Holy Grail radiated a purple glow as it absorbed the Life Force. Following which, plumes of purple fog seeped into the Blacksteel Insignia.

Suddenly, the Blacksteel Insignia released a blinding glow that enveloped the Private Warehouse.

This should mean it succeeded, right? Shi Feng's heart pounded as he stared at the Blacksteel Insignia in his hand.

1596 – Budding Threat

The Holy Grail's Power of Evolution did not have a 100% success rate. Moreover, the success rate would drop as Shi Feng chose higher-ranked items. The cost would also increase. Even if the evolution failed, the Holy Grail would still have a 10-day Cooldown.

Although the Blacksteel Insignia was only Fine-Gold rank, it was an extremely precious support tool for forgers. It was far more valuable than ordinary Dark-Gold items. Hence, in Shi Feng's opinion, the success rate for evolving the Blacksteel Insignia would be on par with evolving a Dark-Gold item to Epic rank.

If the evolution failed, not only would he permanently lose 1,000 HP, but he'd also have to wait another ten days before he could attempt to evolve the Blacksteel Insignia again.

This was not a desired outcome.

Following which, Shi Feng took a deep breath as he clicked to inspect the Blacksteel Insignia's Attribute Panel.

The Blacksteel Insignia is the highest medal of honor amongst the Blacksteel Dwarves. After equipping it, Forging success rate increased by 10%, Proficiency has a 15% chance to increase by 1 extra point. When forging, there is a 3% chance to increase the forged item's Attributes.

Shi Feng breathed a sigh of relief when he saw the Blacksteel Insignia's Attributes. Ecstasy then gripped his heart.

The Dark-Gold ranked Blacksteel Insignia is amazing! No wonder the evolution required so much HP! The Blacksteel Insignia's upgraded Attributes shocked Shi Feng.

This upload first at NovelBin.Com

Not only had the bonus forging success rate risen from 5% to 10%, but the chances of increasing a forged item's Attributes had also increased from 1% to 3%. Now, he'd have a considerably higher chance of improving his crafted items' Attributes.

In God's Domain, producing higher-rank items would become exponentially more difficult. Although it wouldn't be a direct rank increase, the Blacksteel Insignia could raise a Fine-Gold item's Attributes to be only slightly inferior to a piece of Dark-Gold Equipment of the same level. This meant that the Blacksteel Insignia's wielder could forge items one rank stronger than their intended rank.

After dealing with the Blacksteel Insignia, Shi Feng returned to the Candlelight Trading Firm to forge the Conqueror's Armor.

Meanwhile, an army of over 3,000 players, all Level 46 or higher, assaulted an Orc Fortress within the Orc Empires.

Although the Orcs defending the fortress were around Level 60 and ranked between Elite and Grand Lord, they fell, one after another, under the players' fierce assault.

Unfortunately, the players also suffered casualties.

"Focus on dodging the Boss's Skills! Ranged players, destroy the fortress's Defense Turrets!" Singular Burial commanded from the rear of the army.

As the Orcs worked to strengthen their empire's defenses, they had constructed temporary fortresses as resting points for the armies. Because of this, more Orcs operated around these temporary fortresses, troubling the players in the area.

Meanwhile, the Orcs' mines were usually surrounded by several temporary fortresses. If players wanted to secure an Orc Mine, they'd have to deal with the fortresses first.

Singular Burial was confident that he could secure the Orc Mine, which many of God's Domain's superpowers drooled over, once Heaven's Burial dealt with the temporary fortresses. Once they succeeded, Heaven's Burial wouldn't have to worry about Coins or Magic Crystals.

Daybreak Fog, who wore a cyan mage robe, suddenly approached Singular Burial and quietly reported, "Guild Leader, our spies in Zero Wing have reported that the Guild has somehow obtained a teleportation function that allows players to teleport from Zero Wing City to the border between the Orc Empire and Star-Moon Kingdom. With this teleportation function, players can save a massive amount of time. In fact, many players have already used the service, contributing to Zero Wing's wealth. Moreover, we've received news that plenty of Guilds have begun negotiations to ally with Zero Wing. By the looks of it, they plan to sell Level 45 top-tier equipment to the Guild. I'm afraid this will affect our plans severely at this rate."

According to previous reports, Zero Wing should've been on its last leg, yet due to Zero Wing City's teleportation function, Zero Wing had pulled itself out of its predicament. In fact, the teleportation service had become so profitable that Zero Wing was now able to continue its war of attrition against them.

This was not good news.

The long-term attrition war was a painful burden on Heaven's Burial's finances and development.

They had already suffered significant casualties thanks to Zero Wing's bounty. This had impacted the Guild members' leveling speed. Moreover, Guild members had to stay alert for ambushes in the fields. Many players who had originally wanted to join Heaven's Burial had begun to change their mind.

This upload first at NovelBin.Com

If they did not deal with Zero Wing quickly, their Guild's development would stagnate, and they wouldn't be able to keep up with God's Domain's other superpowers even with Ancient Rock City.

"Zero Wing is a tenacious cockroach!" Singular Burial could not help but frown. Immediately, he commanded, "Notify Young Master Lei and tell him that it's time for his Thunder Legion to take action. Contact Blackwater as well; tell them that if they still want a share of the Orc Mine, they should send more top-tier experts and help us finish off Zero Wing quickly!"

"We're taking action now?" Daybreak Fog was stunned. She hadn't expected Singular Burial to switch tactics so soon.

Until now, their experts usually attacked in small groups, fleeing the moment they killed Zero Wing's members and minimizing their casualties. However, if they started team battles in the fields, they would suffer more casualties even if they dealt greater damage to their enemy. That was why they had avoided doing so thus far. Now that Singular Burial had approved team battles, he had proven that Zero Wing was a major threat to their Guild. Thus, he decided to put a swift end to this war, regardless of cost, and exterminate the budding threat before it did permanent damage.

“Mhm. I want to see how long Zero Wing can hold on!” Singular Burial nodded. Zero Wing’s sudden transformation had exceeded his expectations and left him with no other choice, but he also wanted to use this opportunity to show Zero Wing how wide the gap was between their expert counts.

Star-Moon Kingdom, White River City, in a Special Forging Room located on the Candlelight Trading Firm’s top floor...

Shi Feng sat alone beside a furnace, repeatedly swinging a hammer as he forged the Conqueror’s Armor. To sharpen his focus, he had even used the precious Soul Water.

The Conqueror’s Armor required a lot of materials, including over ten main materials and over twenty support materials. Every material needed to be smelted carefully. Just the smelting and refining all of the involved materials took more than half an hour.

If Shi Feng had gone through the entire forging process alone, he would’ve only had time to forge a few pieces of the Conqueror’s Armor each day.

Fortunately, he could rely on Candlelight’s Advanced Forgers to help him with the smelting and refining processes, saving him plenty of time.

Fortunately, with the improved Blacksteel Insignia, Shi Feng’s forging success rate had broken past the 30% threshold.

Fusing, stacking, fusing, stacking...

As he continued to fuse and shape the extracted materials, the Conqueror's Armor began to take shape. Once the armor was perfect, Shi Feng released a deep sigh of relief and began to draw the Advanced Magic Array.

Due to the Soul Water's effects, Shi Feng was able to complete the Advanced Magic Array naturally and without pause.

The instant he completed the Advanced Magic Array, the Conqueror's Armor released a mesmerizing, crimson glow.

This is the first Conqueror's Armor I've forged, and I've already triggered the strengthening effect? Shi Feng's excitement grew as he watched the crimson light, completely different from the usual glow on Fine-Gold Equipment.

1597 – Improved Conqueror's Armor

Despite being a Master Forger, Shi Feng didn't have a particularly high success rate with forging the Conqueror's Armor.

Although God's Domain had plenty of support tools, these tools would become less effective with more complex items. In fact, most support tools were nullified when producing an Epic item. Only a small number of support tools could help a player craft an Epic item.

Shi Feng hadn't expected, despite having barely over a 30% success rate, he would actually forge a successful Conqueror's Armor on his first try. Moreover, he had triggered the Blacksteel Insignia's strengthening effect.

After gazing at the armor for a moment, Shi Feng clicked to inspect its Attributes.

Immediately, the system analyzed the Conqueror's Armor's statistics.

System: Conqueror's Armor has been forged successfully. Forging Proficiency increased by 4 points. Obtained 3,000,000 EXP.

The Blacksteel Insignia is really quite amazing. Not only did it improve the armor's Basic Attributes, but it also boosted one of the armor's Skills slightly. Although this Conqueror's Armor still is not a match for Level 50 Dark-Equipment individually, it is not far from it. Shi Feng was delighted as he read the Conqueror's Armor's Attributes.

Level 50 was a major turning point in God's Domain.

Top-tier equipment past this level would become incredibly difficult to obtain. Even Level 50, 100-man Team Dungeons only dropped Level 50 Fine-Gold Equipment and Set Equipment at best. Generally, players could only obtain Level 50 Dark-Gold Equipment from super-large-scale Team Dungeons.

On its own, the improved Conqueror's Armor was only slightly less valuable than a piece of Epic Equipment of the same level, but if he had five pieces of the improved version of this armor, each piece would be worth as much as a piece of ordinary Epic Equipment.

Unlike the improved Conqueror's Armor, Epic Equipment only provided powerful boosts to Basic Attributes and a few powerful Skills. On the other hand, the Conqueror's Armor's Basic Strength Battle Array could improve players' combat standards as well as Basic Attributes and physique. The only flaw was the armor's level limit. At best, players could use the armor until Level 60. Most Epic Equipment, in contrast, could be used past Level 100.

Gazing at the improved Conqueror's Armor before him, Shi Feng's passion to forge the armor ignited.

If he could mass-produce the Conqueror's Armor and equip a 1,000-man legion, the result would be mind-blowing.

If he geared a legion of 1,000 expert players in the Conqueror's Armor, he'd have a legion of Refinement Realm experts instantly!

Such a legion would be unstoppable on the battlefield.

He'd even dare to challenge a true super-first-rate Guild head-on with such a force, not to mention Heaven's Burial.

Dreaming of such a powerful legion, Shi Feng continued to forge one Conqueror's Armor after another, not resting for a moment.

Since Shi Feng had nearly 100 Advanced Forgers to handle the most time-consuming process—smelting and refining—he could complete each forging attempt in roughly ten minutes. As he became more familiar with the process, he was even able to work faster than that.

This upload first at NovelBin.Com

Perhaps he had used all of his luck during the first attempt because unfortunately, the next four attempts all failed. In the blink of an eye, he had wasted over 200 Gold in materials. If any other trading firm suffered such a loss, they'd likely halt production immediately, but Shi Feng was unfazed.

If equipment with Basic Battle Arrays were that easy to produce, the various Super Guilds wouldn't have struggled so much in the past, mass-producing such equipment.

However, as Shi Feng continued his forging attempts, he became increasingly familiar with drawing the crucial Advanced Magic Array. He'd even use Divine Providence to improve his success rate later.

Although Luck was insubstantial, it could, more or less, affect production success rate.

Before Shi Feng had realized it, he had already gone through 300 material sets.

In the end, he had successfully forged 96 pieces of Conqueror's Armor. His overall success rate was slightly higher than the theoretical success rate the system had given him, and among the 96 chest pieces, Shi Feng had forged another three pieces of improved Conqueror's Armor, securing a total of four improved chest pieces.

Meanwhile, Shi Feng's experience bar had risen steadily due to his diligent work to craft the Conqueror's Armor. His leveling speed was three to four times faster than God's Domain's other peak experts.

Although his leveling speed was impressive, there likely wasn't another player in God's Domain who would dare to replicate Shi Feng's leveling method. The 300 material sets Shi Feng had used were worth 15,000 Gold in total, and this was only the current market value. Players would likely have to pay far more than that if they tried to purchase the materials in bulk.

As Shi Feng was about to use up the remaining two dozen or so material sets, Aqua Rose contacted.

"Guild Leader, Heaven's Burial and Blackwater have suddenly increased the force they've mobilized against us. They've organized 100-man teams to ambush our Dungeon raiding teams. Our casualty count is rising rapidly. We've already lost over 5,000 lives since they bolstered their forces..."

"Although we've tried to retaliate, we're too outnumbered. We simply can't keep up with all of the attacks. Should I recall our Guild members from the Dungeon raids and grinding in the high-resource maps for now and concentrate on leveling up in a few safe maps?"

Due to Zero Wing City's rise in popularity, Aqua Rose was relatively confident that Zero Wing would survive the war with Heaven's Burial, but now Heaven's Burial and Blackwater had dispatched more experts to ambush their players in the various high-resource maps they occupied. The two Guilds even targeted their 100-man elite and expert teams. This had never happened before.

The wisest move right now would be to gather their members in a few, specific leveling maps close to each other. Although this would limit their members' leveling speed, it would provide more security. Zero Wing could also send their limited number of experts as reinforcements far faster.

“They’re finally done sitting by, huh?” Shi Feng frowned. He hadn’t thought that Heaven’s Burial would attempt to end this war so soon. Immediately, he commanded, “I like your suggestion. We need to concentrate our forces, but move them to the targeted, high-resource maps, instead.”

“But the Level 40 and 50 high-resource maps are too far apart. If a battle breaks out, our reinforcements will need some time to get there.” Aqua Rose had also considered the idea, but it wasn’t a wise move. Zero Wing had a limited number of experts, and they weren’t enough to cover multiple maps that were so far apart.

“It’s fine. Just do as I say. Leave the rest to me.” Shi Feng simply smiled, not bothering to offer any further explanation. “Select 100 skilled plate-armor classes from the Dark Gods Legion and send them my way. They have to be Level 50 or higher.”

“One hundred people?”

Aqua Rose could not figure out what Shi Feng intended to do. Currently, only a few of Zero Wing’s players were capable of standing against Heaven’s Burial and Blackwater’s experts. If they wanted to suppress the enemy’s teams, they’d have to form a team of the Guild’s Tier 2 players. Even a 100-man expert team’s ability to turn the tide of battle would be limited.

But since Shi Feng had given the command, she had no choice but to follow it.

1598 – Exterminate Heaven’s Burial

Star-Moon Kingdom, Pyroxene Hills:

As one of the many Level 50 maps in Star-Moon Kingdom, it housed plenty of ancient ruins, even if it weren't particularly resource-rich. Hence, many Guilds and adventurer teams in the kingdom loved to explore the map and its ruins.

The Pyroxene Hills was also home to some rare herbs and ores. Many independent players came to harvest these materials while grinding.

Currently, two groups of players clashed outside one of the Pyroxene Hills' dilapidated ruins. All of the players were high-leveled, with the lowest at Level 50, and the strongest players at Level 52. One of the two groups wore Heaven's Burial's Guild Emblem, while the other players wore Zero Wing's.

"Amazing! So, this is a team battle between Guilds?"

The players passing by could not help but pause to watch the battle. They were captivated.

Compared to the PvP battles between independent players they had seen before, this battle was on a level of its own.

When independent teams clashed, the fight usually involved a dozen players or so, most of which focused on their own fights. It was more apt to call these battles free-for-alls, rather than team battles. There was no coordination between any of the players. Normally, a single expert could change the course of the skirmish.

However, battles between Guild teams were a different story. These battles were akin to wars on ancient battlefields. Each team had clear leadership, and Guild teams focused on coordination among team members, seeking the enemy's weak points to strike. In such battles, individual experts had very little effect on the outcome.

For a time, Heaven's Burial and Zero Wing's members fought. Spells and arrows flew across the battlefield as the healers in the back desperately cast one Healing Spell after another.

However, as the battle drug on, Zero Wing's frontline melee players began to fall.

Despite starting with the same number of players, Heaven's Burial clearly had the advantage due to its frightening number of experts.

Generally, five or six expert players would lead a 100-man Guild elite team.

This upload first at NovelBin.Com

Yet, Heaven's Burial's elite team had more than 30 experts. In contrast, Zero Wing's team only had 15. Not only were expert players stronger than elites individually, but they also had better coordination, and they could easily find their opponents weak points.

As one player from Zero Wing fell after another, the battle became more one-sided. In the end, Zero Wing's team was forced to retreat.

Unfortunately, Heaven's Burial's players clearly had no intention of letting their enemies get away as they chased after the fleeing players. Although Heaven's Burial suffered around 20 casualties, the team had annihilated the players from Zero Wing.

"Leader, Zero Wing's members are a bunch of weaklings. Had the Guild Leader given the command to attack earlier, Heaven's Burial would've long since dominated Star-Moon Kingdom."

“That’s right! Even if Zero Wing is powerful, it can only strut before first-rate Guilds. It’s nothing to Heaven’s Burial!”

The players from Heaven’s Burial laughed as they admired the weapons and equipment scattered across the ground.

Zero Wing’s time as Star-Moon Kingdom’s overlord was over, and Heaven’s Burial wasn’t the Guild it had been in the past. Now, every aspect of the Guild was formidable. In total, Heaven’s Burial and Blackwater had dispatched over 8,000 experts and spread them across multiple teams to ambush Zero Wing’s members. They had even dispatched top-tier and peak experts.

With so many expert-led teams on the hunt, they would kill any Zero Wing member that dared to show up in the various leveling maps.

Shortly after the team from Heaven’s Burial left, another 20-man team from Zero Wing arrived on the battlefield.

“Damn it! We are too late again!” Shadow Sword cursed as he surveyed the tattered battlefield.

The leveling map he had been tasked to secure was simply too large, and Heaven’s Burial had too many teams in the map. There was a limit to how many players he could save. Sometimes, the enemy ambushed far-away teams, and by the time he arrived, the fight would be over. He couldn’t help but feel powerless.

Moreover, his leveling speed had sharply decreased since he had focused on hunting down Heaven’s Burial’s teams.

“Commander Shadow Sword, we just received a message from Vice Guild Leader Aqua. She wants all members who want to level to gather in these four high-resource maps. She’s also ordered these specific Dark Gods Legion members to gather in White River City’s Guild Residence immediately,” a Level 50 Ranger reported as he handed Shadow Sword a list.

While it would make defense and reinforcement easier if they gathered their Guild members in a few select areas, the four maps were spread out. Sending their members to these maps was the equivalent of splitting the Guild’s power, making it easier for Heaven’s Burial and Blackwater to slaughter them.

“The Vice Guild Leader has said that this is an order from our Guild Leader.” The Ranger nodded solemnly.

This upload first at NovelBin.Com

“An order from the Guild Leader?” Hearing this, Shadow Sword was even more confused. “I understand. We’ll head to our assigned map right away. Any Dark Gods Legion members on the list should return to the Guild Residence immediately.”

While Shadow Sword’s team prepared for the trip to another map, Zero Wing’s Guild members, who were scattered across Star-Moon Kingdom, followed the same orders. Naturally, such a massive shift attracted the attention of the kingdom’s various large Guilds.

“What is Zero Wing trying to do?” Daybreak Fog was baffled as she read the latest report a subordinate had sent her.

“Hahaha! Truly foolish! Do they think this will scare us?” Singular Burial chuckled at the report. “Notify our generals and dispatch our forces to these four maps. Tell them to move in 100-man units or less. Do not start any large-scale fights with Zero Wing. I want to see how Black Flame intends to cope with so many teams!”

He had discovered Black Flame’s capabilities long ago. Not only did the man wield large-scale destruction Spells, but he also possessed a large-scale Silencing Skill. In battles involving thousands of players, these abilities worked wonders. Even if Heaven’s Burial won due to its numeric advantage, the Guild would suffer drastically, and that wasn’t something he wished to see.

Had Zero Wing gathered its members in a single map, he wouldn’t have dared to send his Guild members. Of course, he’d be more than happy to see Zero Wing do just that since only so many resources were available in a single map. If every Zero Wing member cowered in one area, even if it were a high-resource map, there wouldn’t be enough resources to go around. Ultimately, it would damage the Guild members’ leveling speed.

However, to ensure that its members could level normally, Zero Wing had split its players across four, high-resource maps that were fairly far from each other. With Zero Wing’s limited number of experts, it could only dispatch a few to protect each area. As long as Heaven’s Burial continued to start small-scale battles, Zero Wing would fail to keep up with the enemy Guild’s numeric advantage. If this drug on, it would only be a matter of time before Zero Wing crumbled.

Meanwhile, in Zero Wing’s Residence in White River City...

One hundred players wearing the core members' Guild Emblem sat in the Residence's meeting room. The lowest level among the crowd was Level 50, while the highest had reached Level 52. All of these players could rank among the top regarding levels in any Guild. As for their combat standards, the weakest among them had reached the middle stage of the Trial Tower's sixth floor, and the most powerful had reached the seventh floor.

None of these players dared to utter a word as they watched the cloaked man before them, reverence and admiration filling their gazes.

This cloaked man was none other than Black Flame, Zero Wing's Guild Leader and an expert of his own legends.

"Since everyone's here, let's get straight to business," Shi Feng said as he glanced at the players in the room. Once he verified that there were enough players, he continued, "From now on, I have an extremely important task for you, but before carrying it out, you'll have to sign a confidentiality contract. If you don't wish to sign, you may leave, and I'll find a replacement. If you have any questions, ask now."

"A confidentiality contract?"

"Guild Leader, can you tell us what kind of task we'll be doing?"

Everyone stirred for a moment when they heard Shi Feng mention a confidentiality contract. They were all profoundly curious about what Shi Feng had in store for them, and not a single player among the crowd showed any signs of abstaining from the challenge.

"I'm sure you are all aware that Heaven's Burial has caused our Guild quite a bit of trouble lately. The task I have for you is very simple; you'll annihilate Heaven's Burial!"

1599 – Count Your Deaths on Me

When Shi Feng finished speaking, silence descended on the meeting room.

Heaven's Burial shone like the midday sun in several kingdoms and empires neighboring the Orc Empire. Not only had it annexed many Workshops and adventurer teams, but it had also captured Ancient Rock City. Now, the Guild had nearly as much overall strength as a super-first-rate Guild.

Although Zero Wing was also powerful and had great growth potential, it wasn't as powerful as Heaven's Burial, which had both its own strength and the support of major corporations.

In fact, as members of Zero Wing, they had prepared themselves for a long, arduous battle against their rival Guild.

Yet, Shi Feng wanted them to exterminate Heaven's Burial. He had also made the declaration as if it were a matter of course. For a moment, they wondered if Shi Feng had gone mad.

However, they couldn't help but burn with fighting spirit, knowing that Shi Feng had chosen them for this task.

"Those bastards from Heaven's Burial have always been an eyesore! Guild Leader, just tell us what we need to do!"

“We finally get to start a real fight with Heaven’s Burial?”

“I’ve been waiting to duke it out with Heaven’s Burial for a long time! Those cowards only know how to hit and run! If given the chance, I’ll beat them until not even their mothers recognize them!”

Everyone’s blood boiled with excitement as they looked at Shi Feng. Their hatred for Heaven’s Burial was nothing new. In fact, that hatred had only increased due to the Guild’s shameless tactics.

“Alright, since none of you have any issues, sign these confidentiality contracts.” Shi Feng nodded in satisfaction before handing out a contract.

When players signed confidentiality contracts, they wouldn’t be able to discuss the relevant information while logged into God’s Domain. Although the Main God System could not regulate information in the real world, if one found evidence of someone violating their contract in the real world, they could hand the evidence over to the Main God System. If the evidence were valid, the player would receive their deserved punishment, the severity of which would depend on the terms of the contract.

Shi Feng wanted to keep the Conqueror’s Armor’s battle array a secret. Although God’s Domain’s various powers and players were bound to discover battle arrays eventually, he wanted to reserve the armor as one of the Guild’s trump cards. The later the various major powers discovered battle arrays, the better.

The penalty Shi Feng had set for breaking the confidentiality contract wasn’t unusual; any player who violated it would have their account permanently suspended.

In general, Guilds chose a consequence that would bar players from God’s Domain permanently if they violated a confidentiality contract regarding extremely important secrets. It would not even matter if players deleted their accounts; they’d never be able to log back in.

Hence, Guilds' core secrets hadn't often leaked in the past. The consequences of doing so would be devastating to players who had grown comfortable with God's Domain's lifestyle. Permanently losing access to the game was more of a punishment than death itself. This was especially true for players who earned access to their Guild's core secrets.

Of course, there were bound to be players who would take the risk when offered an astronomical price.

Once the 100 plate armor players from the Dark Gods Legion signed the contracts, Shi Feng pulled one Conqueror's Armor after another from his bag.

While Aqua Rose had gathered the necessary players, Shi Feng had successfully forged another four pieces of the Conqueror's Armor. Among these four pieces, one was even an improved Conqueror's Armor. This increased the count to five improved pieces, just enough for a 5-man party to activate the Basic Strength Battle Array.

"What? There's so much Level 50 Fine-Gold Equipment here!"

"Wait, look at the Attributes! They're insane!"

"This Basic Strength Battle Array is amazing! It's basically a mini Berserk Skill! Moreover, it doesn't have a Cooldown and only costs one Magic Crystal per five minutes! It can last until players run out of Stamina!"

Everyone was flabbergasted over the 100 chest pieces Shi Feng had revealed.

They frequently grinded in Level 50-plus maps, so they knew just how difficult it was to obtain Level 50 equipment. Even Mysterious-Iron Equipment was incredibly rare, let alone Secret-Silver rank. Level 50 Mysterious-Iron Equipment's Basic Attributes could easily rival those of Level 45 Fine-Gold Equipment, and Level 50 Equipment provided higher Defense than lower-level equipment.

However, the superior Defense wasn't displayed in numerical value. Rather, it came in the form of impact mitigation. When players were attacked in God's Domain, the impact oftentimes disrupted their stance, revealing flaws in their defense. Aside from damage reduction, a player's Defense could also mitigate some, if not all, of the impact from an attack.

Thus, when deciding between Level 45 Fine-Gold Equipment and Level 50 Mysterious-Iron Equipment, players usually chose the latter, even if the former had stronger Skills.

Needless to say, not even Level 45, top-tier, Dark-Gold Equipment could compare to Level 50 Fine-Gold Equipment. Unfortunately, such equipment was extremely challenging to obtain. Even when raiding Level 50, 100-man Hell Mode Team Dungeons, the armor only had a chance of dropping; it wasn't guaranteed.

Yet, Shi Feng had just set 100 pieces of such equipment before them. Moreover, the Conqueror's Armor had a superb Skill for large-scale combat. Every one of these players from the Dark Gods Legion felt as if they were dreaming...

Only a few of them had Level 50 Dark-Gold Equipment, while most of them still used Level 45 Dark-Gold Equipment or a combination of Level 50 Mysterious-Iron and Secret-Silver Equipment. Even in a first-rate Guild, their equipment would only be second to those who wore Epic Equipment.

In response to these players' elation, Shi Feng simply chuckled and shook his head.

All of these players only had eyes for the Conqueror's Armor's Basic Attributes. They had no idea that the Fine-Gold ranked Conqueror's Armor was even more valuable than Level 60 Dark-Gold Equipment.

"I want each of you to select one of the chest pieces. Then, I'll split you into twenty parties of five. Each party will take a healer and head to the four high-resource maps where we've sent our Guild members to grind. I need all of you to continue the search for Heaven's Burial and Blackwater's members. If you find a group of 100 or fewer, kill them all. If the enemy overwhelms your team with numbers or peak experts are among their teams, notify the commanders responsible for the region; then send you reinforcements. If that is the case, you just need to keep an eye on the enemy. If they chase after you, try to kite them and regroup with the reinforcements," Shi Feng strictly explained the details of their task as he eyes the players before him.

By having the Dark Gods Legion members move in 6-man parties, they could move swiftly and stealthily. Although splitting these Dark Gods Legion members into 6-man parties, rather than 100-man teams, would limit the legion's combat power, the smaller parties would seem like less of a threat to their enemies. This would make it easier for the Dark Gods Legion members to evade the enemy's detection.

When Shi Feng fell silent, everyone in the meeting room was dumbfounded. They even wondered if they had heard wrong.

Shi Feng actually wanted them to form 6-man parties to take on Heaven's Burial's 100-man teams...

If they targeted ordinary 100-man teams, they'd be confident of their victory, but Heaven's Burial's teams were anything but ordinary. Each team was normally led by dozens of experts.

If they assaulted such a force, they'd be attempting suicide, not starting a battle.

"Relax! I'll take responsibility for any of your deaths!" Shi Feng could see these players' confusion regarding his decision. However, he simply chuckled and said, "Or don't you have the courage for a task like this?"

“So what if these 100-man teams are from Heaven’s Burial?! Guild Leader, just you wait! Even if we don’t kill them all, we’ll definitely make them suffer!”

Initially, worry had gripped everyone’s hearts, but after Shi Feng had told them off in such a way, their fighting spirit began to burn anew.

As Shi Feng had implied, if they weren’t even brave enough to do this, they might as well stop calling themselves experts.

“Good! Also, the three parties with the highest kill counts will receive a large number of GCPs and gain one opportunity to learn an Advanced Combat Technique. Whether or not you earn the opportunity will depend on your effort,” Shi Feng said, nodding in approval at everyone’s high spirits. Immediately, he organized his players into parties before sending them off to the four high-resource maps.

When they had heard that they might be able to learn an Advanced Combat Technique, these players couldn’t help their growing excitement.

Advanced Combat Techniques were the Guild’s core secrets. It was extremely difficult to earn the opportunity to learn one. Normally, they’d only have the chance to earn the opportunity if they achieved some impressive feat or were selected by the Guild for training, yet all they needed to do was rank among the top three for kill counts. Why wouldn’t they be excited?

After Shi Feng finished with the Conqueror’s Armor and the twenty teams, he made his way towards Seliora’s smithy in White River City to repair the Disintegration Armor.

1600 – Legendary Armor’s Power

The Disintegration Armor’s existence was giving Shi Feng a huge headache right now.

As he was no longer at the World Summit, the Disintegration Armor’s Disintegration Power was not being suppressed anymore. Meanwhile, with the dispelling of a portion of the evil power, the Disintegration Power leaking from the Disintegration Armor had intensified.

As a result, the Disintegration Power, which initially suppressed his Basic Attributes by only 50%, now suppressed them by 60%. He didn’t dare to recklessly remove the evil power suppressing the Disintegration Armor any further. After all, if he removed the evil power entirely, the suppression on him might become even stronger. If that happened, he would definitely be doomed.

Hence, as a precaution, he decided to meet with Seliora first before doing anything else to the Disintegration Armor.

Upon arriving at Seliora’s smithy, things were just as usual. There were no guests before the cozy wooden house. Only the clangor of hammering came from it. There was nothing unusual about this place whatsoever.

However, when Shi Feng stepped into the smithy, it was as if he had entered an entirely different world. The Mana density inside the smithy was far superior to even that of Zero Wing City. Meanwhile, at this moment, Seliora stood before a furnace smelting materials.

Upon seeing Seliora’s actions, Shi Feng had to admit that a Grandmaster Forger was indeed different from a Master Forger. Master Forgers would normally use only flames when smelting and refining materials. However, Seliora was actually controlling a threefold magic array to imbue an oceanic amount of Mana into her materials first before refining them using flames, which boosted the quality of her materials.

Meanwhile, upon sensing Shi Feng's entry into the smithy, Seliora sent him a glance. Although Seliora herself was not a combat-specialized NPC, Shi Feng still felt as if Seliora saw through his soul when she looked at him.

"It seems you managed to find some God's Power to remove that evil power while you were gone. It's a pity that the God's Power you acquired was too little to completely remove that evil power," Seliora said, shaking her head as she looked at Shi Feng. She then demanded, "Well, out with it. What are you here for? If you're looking for a method to suppress that Disintegration Power of yours, I don't have any solutions. Right now, the only thing you can do is gather enough God's Power and remove that evil power as soon as possible. Otherwise, the Disintegration Armor will only lure even more Orcs to you. Soon, it won't even matter if you're hiding inside a city, as those Orcs would do anything to satisfy their greed for the Disintegration Power."

If things drag on for too long, even NPC cities won't be able to stop the Orcs? Shi Feng could not help but be shocked when he heard Seliora's words.

He had never thought that removing a portion of the evil power suppressing the Disintegration Armor would have such frightening effects.

If what Seliora said was true, then he really wouldn't have any place he could hide in the future.

"Lady Seliora, do you mean that if I manage to gather sufficient God's Power, I'll be able to break free of my current predicament?" Shi Feng asked curiously.

Previously, the reason why he chose to deal with the problem regarding the Disintegration Armor quickly was the armor serving as a beacon that lured Mutated Orcs to him. This situation prevented him from taking action out in the fields freely.

If he could not deal with this problem, he wouldn't be able to do anything at all in the future.

"That should be the case. After all, the only reason the Disintegration Armor is leaking Disintegration Power is the loss of its channeling abilities. If the materials making up the Disintegration Armor recover, they should be able to control this Disintegration Power," Seliora said, a hint of uncertainty in her tone.

Upon hearing Seliora's explanation, Shi Feng breathed out a sigh of relief. He then took out the Disintegration Armor and had it absorb the God Crystals inside his bag.

The Advanced God Crystal and the Basic God Crystal there shattered and transformed into streams of golden mist that flowed into the Disintegration Armor.

When the golden mist suffused the Disintegration Armor, streams of pitch-black energy started flowing out of the armor. When Seliora saw this pitch-black energy corroding its surroundings, she could not help but be surprised and hurriedly activated the magic array set up inside her house.

The magic array immediately started suppressing the pitch-black energy, nullifying its corrosive capabilities.

Although the pitch-black energy's corrosive capabilities were suppressed, the energy itself showed no signs of disappearing. Instead, it actually started condensing. After five seconds passed, the mist-like energy transformed into a pitch-black energy bead that hovered quietly in midair, releasing a terrifying aura.

What is this thing? Shi Feng was indescribably shocked as he looked at the pitch-black energy bead before him.

The aura the bead radiated made him feel as if a gigantic beast had just opened its bloody maw before him. At this moment, he could not even move his body in the slightest and could only look helplessly at the energy bead.

Aside from the pitch-black energy bead, a change had also occurred to the Disintegration Armor, which he had placed on the table. As if the armor itself had gained life, Shi Feng could clearly feel a surge of vitality from it. Rather than an inanimate object, the Disintegration Armor before him felt like it was some kind of lifeform, instead.

As the evil power no longer tainted the Disintegration Armor, the magic circuits covering the surface of the armor released a dazzling glow. Aside from the house becoming brightly lit, the Mana inside the house had also frozen. Shi Feng could not sense the slightest flow of Mana whatsoever right now.

However, this situation persisted for only a few short seconds, after which the entire house returned to its normal state. As for the Disintegration Armor, it was as if the armor had just received a complete makeover. Both the armor's external appearance and aura had changed significantly. Despite the armor merely sitting atop the stone table, it radiated a power that made even Shi Feng's soul shudder in fear. In fact, the stone table the Disintegration Armor sat on had even started disintegrating, unable to withstand the armor's power.

So, this is the Disintegration Armor's original power? Shi Feng was at a loss for words as he looked at the stone table decomposing at a speed visible to the naked eye.

It should be known that Seliora was a bona fide Grandmaster Forger.

Although the furniture placed inside her house appeared normal, in reality, that was far from the case. In fact, even the stone table before him had an extraordinary origin. From what Shi Feng could tell, the table should be made of Fire Essence Stone. Not only was Fire Essence Stone incomparably tough, but it was also one of the top-tier Magic Resistance materials in God's Domain. Yet, now, it actually couldn't withstand the Disintegration Armor's power despite the armor being in a passive state right now. This was simply inconceivable.

However, before the stone table could fully disintegrate, Seliora quickly made her move, line after line of divine runes appearing before her. A moment later, a fourfold magic array formed around the Disintegration Armor.

With the appearance of the magic array, the stone table stopped disintegrating. However, the magic array continuously produced crackling sounds, a sign that it couldn't withstand the Disintegration Armor's power, either.

"Amazing! Truly amazing! Even a fourfold Void Magic Array isn't able to contain this thing! As expected of a mythical artifact created by the Great Orc Emperor!" Seliora's eyes glowed as she looked at her crumbling magic array. At this moment, it was as if her eyes had just been opened to a whole new world.

Meanwhile, Shi Feng was quite shocked as he looked at the disintegrating fourfold magic array.

A fourfold magic array!

That was a magic array that even Mythic monsters could not destroy. Yet, a piece of equipment in its passive state was destroying such a magic array. It was no wonder the Disintegration Set was considered as one of the Nine Great Legendary Sets in God's Domain.

Despite the Disintegration Armor being damaged, it still possessed such frightening capabilities. One could just imagine how powerful the Founding Emperor of the Orc Empire was when he wore the complete Disintegration Set. Based on this, the legends of the Founding Emperor fighting against Gods were not exaggerations at all.

“I don’t have the ability to suppress the power this Disintegration Armor is releasing. Do you wish to take this armor away, or let me recast it for you right now?” Seliora asked, smiling as she looked at Shi Feng.

Take it away? Shi Feng smiled bitterly. If Seliora couldn’t suppress the Disintegration Armor’s power, he would be a fool if he thought even for a second that he could. He immediately replied, “I’ll have to trouble Lady Seliora, then.”
