

Chapter 91: Do You Want More?

“You hit it!” Ye Erruo hurriedly walked forward and picked up the little fella.

“It does not look like a rabbit,” she said in amazement.

The little fella lay on the ground unmoving, staring at Ye Erruo with its wide, watery eyes.

Mo Jiangye had not expected this either. “It’s a small wolf.”

Ye Erruo was flabbergasted. “Wolf?”

“Logically speaking, a wolf should not have appeared at such a time.”

The fella was furry and it lay miserably on the floor, paralyzed.

“Wolf meat tastes good as well,” he said faintly.

“...”

“Let’s hunt for wild rabbits.” She carried the little fella up and kneaded its soft small ears.

Helpless, Mo Jiangye led her further in. The further they went, the more animals they saw.

“Give me the gun. You hold this.” Itching, Ye Erruo took the gun and passed the small wolf to Mo Jiangye.

Rustling noises were heard among the bushes. Ye Erruo took aim at the target, the tip of the gun following the thing moving left and right.

“Woosh!”

“Squeak, squeak, squeak!” Manic chaos broke out in the bushes.

Ye Erruo was wild with joy that they had made another hit.

However, the grass remained calm after just a moment of struggle. When Ye Erruo ran over, the prey had already escaped.

She aimed at her new target, as she noticed a plump wild chicken hiding behind a tree. She pulled the trigger and took another shot.

The wild chicken, which was quick-witted, rapidly avoided the bullet shot by Ye Erruo’s gun.

“...”

Not a moment later, the numerous prey around them was terrified by Ye Erruo’s shot and went scampering off into deeper parts of the forest.

Standing behind her, Mo Jiangye saw how much fun she was having and decided not to disturb her.

Ye Erruo ran and shot at the same time. All of a sudden, a wild chicken was unfortunately hit. She went forward and picked up the chicken by its legs, moving it from side to side.

She had finally managed to hit one!

She flauntingly brought the wild chicken over to Mo Jiangye.

“Remove your jacket.” He wiped away the sweat on her forehead with a smile on his face as he looked at her with soft eyes.

“Why haven’t we seen any rabbits?”

“It’s not easy to shoot rabbits here. We need to walk further in.”

“Where’s my little wolf?”

Mo Jiangye turned his head back to have a look. There was nothing there!

He furrowed his eyebrows unhappily. “It ran off.”

He hadn’t expected that it would still be able to run! The strength of the tranquilizer exceeded the ordinary level of potency.

“Since it ran away, forget it.”

“Roar!”

Mo Jiangye furrowed his eyebrows and tugged her close to him.

Soon, a huge number of rabbits, wild chickens, and wild pigs came running out of the deeper parts of the forest.

“Climb up the tree!” His gaze turned icy as he eyed the enormous trees surrounding them.

“What’s wrong?”

Without a moment of hesitation, Mo Jiangye dragged her up one of the trees.

“Whew! I think I heard the roar of a tiger!” Ye Erruo sat unsteadily on a tree branch as she took deep breaths of air.

“Yeah.” Mo Jiangye seized her waist.

“Let’s hit it.”

They saw lots of prey fleeing in disarray below them. “Now, I can definitely hit one if I shoot!” Ye Erruo said in surprise.

“What kind of rabbit is that? It is so quick.”

While sitting on the tree, Ye Erruo was basically hitting an animal with every shot. However, the animals she shot were only wild chickens.

Mo Jiangye embraced her shoulders and taught her how to aim at the scattering rabbits by guiding her hands. “A wild hare,” he said with a gentle smile.

“Woosh!”

Ye Erruo placed the gun down happily. “We hit a rabbit.”

“Do you want more?” he asked in a gentle voice, his warm breath caressing her face.

“We already have enough. If we hit any more, we will not be able to bring them back.”

“Shh!” All of a sudden, Mo Jiangye covered Ye Erruo’s mouth and watched closely what was happening below them with a sharp, vigilant gaze.

A few minutes later, a group of people walked out of the deeper part of the forest. They were pointing their guns at a group of young girls while spouting filthy words out of their mouths, their wretched smiles fixed on the young women...

Chapter 92: Not Thirsty

Ye Erruo widened her beautiful eyes in disbelief.

A few minutes later, the group of people pushed the girls and walked far away.

Mo Jiangye was the first to jump down the tree. He then reached with his hand for her. “Come down.”

“It’s too, too high. You go over there. I will get down myself.” Ye Erruo rejected his hug.

“Faster!”

Ye Erruo bit her lip and closed her eyes before jumping down. Mo Jiangye caught her firmly and took a few steps back.

“Who were those people just now?”

Mo Jiangye held the gun with a solemn, displeased expression. He picked up a few mountain chickens and wild hares and then bent down and said, “Get on.”

“I can walk by myself.”

“Get on!” He commanded her unquestionably.

Upon seeing his cold, stern expression, Ye Erruo immediately jumped onto his back. “Give me the things in your hand.”

He turned his head sideways and rubbed it against her tender cheeks. “Hang on tight.”

He carried her on his back as they returned to where they’d come from at a high speed.

“Why were there people coming out of the forest?”

“There is a river in the deepest part of the forest. On the other side of the river is K country.”

Those people had clearly been sneaking in. That river did not have a security clearance, and very few people knew about it and dared to cross it. This wasn’t just due to the turbulence of the river water, but because of the unknown creatures living inside it. Whenever there were bodies floating on the surface of the river, they were all lifeless carcasses!

However, they had been able to cross over unscathed!

“K country? Would they run into Xu Xu?” Those people had obviously looked bad at first glance.

A bloodthirsty, sharp glint flashed across his gloomy eyes. “Of course.”

All the people there were his people. He would like to see if they had the capability to walk out of there.

“Are they trafficking young girls?” It seemed like it.

Her fragrance permeated his nostrils, causing Mo Jiangye to abruptly turn his head around and suck on her dry lips. “Don’t talk so much.”

“Oh... ”

“Are you thirsty?” His voice sounded a little husky.

“No.”

“Your lips are dry.”

Ye Erruo touched her lips. “They are?”

“Lie down properly and keep quiet,” he commanded her overbearingly.

Ye Erruo curled her lips into a smile and reached out to wipe the sweat on his forehead while intimately touching her nose against the back of his neck. Then, she lay on his back obediently without saying another word.

A few minutes later, they walked out of the forest. The rays of light above their heads were instantly a lot brighter.

“Alright, you can put me down. We are almost there.”

Mo Jiangye placed her on the ground and glanced at her lips. This woman needed to drink water!

When they returned to the grounds, Xu Xu was pointing his gun at that crowd of people.

“You’re back?” Zheng Yi’s eyes brightened at the sight of Mo Jiangye.

Ye Erruo lifted the wild chicken and glanced at the group of people kneeling on the ground. They were the people they had seen in the forest earlier.

“Boss, this group of people is carrying unidentifiable substances. They seem like drugs. They came running out of the forest, so they probably came from next door,” Wang Yiyang reported.

“Drugs?” Ye Erruo said.

Her clear, gentle voice caused the men who were kneeling on the ground to raise their heads abruptly. When they saw Ye Erruo, their eyes instantly filled with greed and a glint of perversion.

Mo Jiangye's eyes turned cold as he speedily walked toward Wang Yiyang. Before the man could even blink, the dagger that was at his waist had disappeared.

"Ah!"

The man covered his eyes in agony as red, fresh blood flowed out of his eye sockets.

"My eyes are sore!"

At that moment, the terrified group of men shrank into a small space.

Mo Jiangye threw the prey they had hunted on the ground and grabbed a bottle of mineral water before twisting the cap open and passing it to Ye Erruo. He then stomped icily toward the group of men.

Chapter 93: He Almost Lost Her

When the group saw Mo Jiangye walking over, they retreated in fear.

"Pretty, huh?" His dangerous voice exploded above their heads.

The men shook their heads. Their skin was dark, and they were bursting with sturdy muscles. It was hard to imagine how Xu Xu and the rest had subdued this group of ten men.

"This group has captured five girls. The girls' bodies are filled with drugs, and there is a kid who is only slightly older than ten."

Ye Erruo walked over from the back. "Their bodies are filled with drugs?"

"There. The drugs are all in their clothes," Xu Xu said as he glanced at the bosoms of the women.

"It's strange that they were able to survive until now," Zheng Yi said curiously.

"Investigate thoroughly and find out who they are and what they plan to do," Mo Jiangye said as he glanced askance at them coldly.

It seemed like this river needed more preventive measures!

Ye Erruo walked carefully over to the women. Their hair was very long, and their skin was dark. They were wearing baggy skirts, and their bosoms were particularly big... They were at most 14 or 15 years old!

Upon seeing Ye Erruo, they retreated in utter fear. However, they still glanced at the bottle of mineral water in Ye Erruo's hand from time to time.

"Are you all thirsty?" Ye Erruo lowered her head and looked at the bottle in her hand before she held it out.

The girls retreated further away, afraid to accept the bottle of water from her.

A boy that was roughly ten years old was squatting aside. He stared at the bottle of water in Ye Erruo's hand with a thirsty gaze.

Ye Erruo distanced herself before placing the bottle of water down on the ground. The boy testily came forward and grabbed the bottle before downing the water down in big gulps!

Ye Erruo nibbled on her lips, feeling pity for them.

A few seconds later, the boy politely handed the bottle back to Ye Erruo after drinking. She did not think twice before heading forward, ready to retrieve the bottle.

Mo Jiangye, who had accidentally turned his head around to look for Ye Erruo, abruptly grabbed the soup ladle in the pot beside him and flung it!

“Bang, bang, bang!” The sound of consecutive gunshots was heard as bullets whizzed past the side of Ye Erruo’s face and passed through the trees behind her.

The boy, who had almost been knocked to the ground by the soup ladle, recovered from the misfire and pointed the gun back at Ye Erruo the moment he had the chance to. She had not had the slightest idea that this little child could have a gun hidden on him.

Ye Erruo did not even have the time to blink before she felt a huge gust of wind and was pulled into someone’s embrace a moment later.

“Smack!” The gun in the boy’s hand was kicked to the ground by Mo Jiangye.

Xu Xu and the others had not imagined that such a situation would suddenly occur. During the split second they had lost their focus, Zheng Yi had pulled the trigger and instantly killed the blind man who was in terrible pain, using him as a warning for the rest of them. Wang Yiyang grasped the gun and watched the group of men. If any of them were to even move, they would immediately get a bullet. Xu Xu advanced forward at lightning speed and subdued the little boy onto the ground.

They were aware of their roles so they did not trip up due to the sudden situation.

“Are you hurt?” Mo Jiangye’s veins were popping from worry as he inspected her body all over with shaking hands.

Thank goodness there seemed to be no injury!

He could not bear to imagine what would have happened to her if he had turned his head a second later. As he glanced at the trees behind her, the fear in his heart multiplied.

“Speak up!” He held her face and frantically broke out into cold sweat.

Ye Erruo blinked dumbly. “I am alright.”

Mo Jiangye’s heart was about to burst out of his chest from the intense beating. He pulled the person before him into his embrace and hugged her tightly! He then burrowed his head into her hair and took a deep breath...

Chapter 94: Why Did You Leave My Side? No Excuses!

Fear lingered in the depths of his eyes for a long time as he panted quickly and heavily.

“Ugh! Mo Jiangye, you’re hurting me.”

“Ah! Eugh!” A ticklish, warm, moist sensation assailed her when the man bit and sucked on her neck’s sensitive spot, making her involuntarily wish to curl up her body.

After burying his head in the crook of her neck, Mo Jiangye breathed in her unique scent for a good while before he finally managed to suppress his panic and get a hold of himself.

Gripping her chin, he sternly growled, “The gall of you! How dare you leave my side!”

The woman was just about to give him an explanation when he interrupted her. “No excuses!”

“...”

What came after fear was rage. This was made evident by the uncontrollable, intensifying bloodthirsty look on his face when his scarlet eyes landed on the boy, who was lying sprawled on the ground.

“I didn’t expect the child to be hiding a gun on him.” By now, Xu Xu had truly broken into a cold sweat. Boss would surely have skinned us alive if something had happened to sister-in-law.

It was no one’s fault, though. After all, it was hard for anyone to suspect a child of being armed with a gun and even harder to conduct a body search on him.

While pinning down the now-kneeling boy to the ground with a foot, his chief took his pistol and fired two shots at the boy’s arms.

“Mo Jiangye!”

Bang! Bang!

“Ughh!” The boy’s face contorted in pain. His cry was hoarse and repressed, as he was mute.

A terrifying, menacing aura emanated from the man as he sent the boy flying away with a swift kick.

His subordinate dared not make a squeak when he witnessed this scene from the side. He rarely saw him so flared up and he knew that it must have been for the sake of his wife that he had not shot the boy to death right away.

“Mo Jiangye.” Appalled, Ye Erruo moved forward to take his hand at once.

The boy lay several meters away from them as he coughed up blood. It only took a few coughs for him to go silent again. Mo Jiangye proceeded to shake the boy’s body with his foot.

“Drag him over.”

“He’s dead,” replied Xu Xu.

“Dead?” He tugged his lips, feeling skeptical.

“He’s...” She wanted to say that he was only a child, but on second thought, without her husband’s quick reflexes, the one dead and riddled with bullets now would have been her. She did not understand why the child had tried to take her life, however.

“Throw him into the woods.”

“Yes, sir.”

“Don’t spare a single one of them.” All of them, regardless of gender, needed to be checked.

“Roger that.”

Meanwhile, the men kneeling on the ground had indignant, rebellious looks on their faces.

Under the assumption that they had a glimmer of hope to turn things around since there were only four men and a woman to take on, one of them sent an eye signal to the nearby unsupervised group of women.

All at once, the women frantically undressed themselves, their plump boobs jiggling along with their movements.

Unperturbed by this, Mo Jiangye merely raised the gun in his hand and fired shots until they were all killed before turning around to aim the black muzzle at the group of men. Anyone who attempted to resist would end up suffering the same fate as those women... Eventually, only four men were left out of the group of ten.

Just a short distance away stood Sun You, Yao Tiao, and a few others, who came running over upon hearing the gunshots, dumbfounded and motionless.

“Drag the corpses away,” he ordered his men coldly.

Used to this sort of scene, his subordinates subconsciously looked at Ye Erruo and heaved a sigh of relief only when they noticed her calm expression. Boss has no doubt picked the right woman.

He turned his head and glanced at the petite woman beside him before pursing his lips somewhat regretfully. “They deserve to die!”

With her hand in his, she nodded in agreement upon meeting his icy gaze.

He pulled her into his arms then. If it had not been for the special circumstances of that day, he would never have let her see this bloodthirsty side of him!

Chapter 95: In Seventh Heaven

After exchanging a glance, Sun You and the rest headed back in the direction they had come from.

“Murder! Chief Mo killed someone earlier...”

“Many of them, in fact.”

“Women and a child!”

“Good gracious. That’s ten or so lives.”

Looks of horror appeared on their faces.

“Just because he’s the chief, he can kill people at will?”

Yao Tiao disagreed with that. "Those people perhaps deserved to die. That's why he dealt with them that way."

"Huh. They deserved death? What kind of heinous crime had they committed to warrant death? Not even a child was spared." Sun You rebuked sarcastically.

"I agree. What kind of abominable crime could a ten-year-old commit? Besides, even if the boy was found guilty, he's still a minor. He's nowhere near the right age to receive the death penalty."

Her expression turned miserable. "D-Didn't you guys notice that those people were from WG?"

"That's exactly why he dealt with them however he pleased."

"This is a military area, so their unusual appearance must mean that something is up. They must've deserved to die," answered the lass seriously.

She did not believe that Chief Mo would resort to killing for no rhyme or reason.

"Ha!" The guy scoffed in disbelief.

Erruo must not be with someone as dangerous as him!

"Erruo seems to have been there earlier, too."

"And she didn't care to stop his actions?"

When she heard that, the displeased girl argued. "I already told you that those people deserved to die. Otherwise, why would Ruoruo not stop it?"

"How was she going to do that? Coach Mo might have dealt with her as well if she had so much as intervened. No, she mustn't be with him," said the chap solemnly.

"Hey, Sun You. You..."

...

After dealing with that gang, Xu Xu continued roasting the wild chicken while Wang Yiyang tended to the fire. The whereabouts of Zheng Yi, on the other hand, were unknown.

Minutes later, the latter finally returned, only to glance at Ye Erruo faintly.

"Speak." Mo Jiangye had no qualms about her presence as he sat behind her and helped her with her long hair.

"Those women had drugs on them. Accidental contact with those powder particles could cause one to develop symptoms that are similar to those of AIDS. However, this is a much more serious disease. It's been exquisitely made and probably recently manufactured since there's no such stuff on the market as of now."

The news came as a shock to the woman. How fortunate that those women hadn't left this place.

The man furrowed his brows tightly but merely said, "Let's go."

He had the feeling that every inch of this place emanated danger. Thus, he made a move to leave as soon as he grabbed hold of his wife's hand.

"What the heck? That's vicious!" Xu Xu tossed aside the wild rabbit that he was handling.

"How lucky for us that those drugs weren't spilled when we killed them," Zheng Yi remarked.

They then picked up their clothes and left the place with their chief after putting out the fire.

"Burn them all," instructed Mo Jiangye.

"Yes, sir."

"Those men were healthy and showed no signs of the disease. They were probably here to peddle the drugs. Any contact with that drug would cause one the same reaction as..." Zheng Yi's face looked slightly flushed as he revealed this information.

Xu Xu chuckled. "Same reaction as what? Will they be in seventh heaven?"

Under the setting sun, the group chatted as they made their way through the forest.

Zheng Yi shot a glare at him. "I can help you if you're keen to give it a try."

"Alright, help me out then."

"Go to hell." He sent a kick in Xu Xu's direction.

"Those people were from Blue Tower and they came over via K country. They were split into three batches and they entered the country from different points, so there are still two more groups of people. Earlier, those four men revealed that someone was liaising and arranging a meeting with them."

Mo Jiangye's sharp eyes narrowed when he heard that. Since they were carrying dangerous goods, they naturally would not enter this place via a normal route.

"Blue Tower?" cried out Ye Erruo in astonishment.

"What's wrong, sis-in-law?"

Isn't Gu Feirou a royal princess of Blue Tower?

Chapter 96: Have You Gotten It On With Chief Mo?

"Blue Tower?" cried out Ye Erruo in astonishment.

"What's wrong, sis-in-law?"

Isn't Gu Feirou a royal princess of Blue Tower?

"Nothing's wrong."

"Look into it. This stuff mustn't be allowed to enter," ordered Mo Jiangye in a cold, stern voice.

"Orders have already been passed down to alert every other place to this."

Growl!

Her stomach suddenly grumbled.

Ye Erruo was speechless.

“Hungry?”

The man glimpsed at her from the corner of his eyes. If that batch of people had not come just now, she would already have eaten something.

“Yeah, a little.”

He scooped her up with his big hands.

“What are you doing? Put me down.”

“I’m saving you energy. There’s still quite a long walk before we get out of here,” answered the man.

Meanwhile, Xu Xu was eyeing Ye Erruo with a somewhat ambiguous, mischievous look as he stroked his nose.

After pushing Wang Yiyang to the side, he carefully said, “Sis-in-law, can I ask you a question?”

She turned her head to look at him. “What?”

“Have you gotten it on with our boss?” he whispered inquiringly.

Her ears instantly flushed red. “W-What?”

“Heh...” He could tell right away just by the look on her face that she must have slept with Young Master Mo.

With our boss being so horny, how can he possibly not eat her up?

“He he...” He let out an evil chuckle.

The woman gave him a hard look. “I have no idea what you’re talking about.”

She then turned her head back to lean against her man’s chest, her cheeks tinted with an imperceptible tinge of rosiness.

“You did, right? No need to be shy.” The chap continued smirking evilly.

“Did what?” asked Zheng Yi curiously.

“Not telling you. It’s a secret between me and sis-in-law.”

“...”

From then on, she lay meekly in Mo Jiangye’s embrace and quietly listened to the others’ conversation throughout the journey.

Upon looking down at the small woman in his arms, the man could not resist asking with a smile, “What did he say to you?”

"It's nothing."

"Quick, quick. There's a wild hare!" Wang Yiyang patted Xu Xu in a hurry.

"Woohoo! I didn't expect to see a wild hare in here." He quickly pulled out his gun and aimed at the animal.

Bang! The target was precisely hit with just one shot.

"We have something at least." He then strode forward and picked up the hare by its ears.

"What a fat and meaty one." Zheng Yi and Wang Yiyang stepped forward to pluck out the rabbit's fur.

The bright golden rays of the setting sun were shining down on the two sides of the path, making the shadow of Mo Jiangye carrying Ye Erruo extend as they made their way out of the forest along with their boisterous companions, who were carrying their guns and jackets.

At nightfall, a variety of food was roasted over a campfire amid the group's jovial laughter.

"Ruoruo!" called Shu Xin softly as she carefully approached them.

"I'll be right back," Ye Erruo informed her husband.

"Come back soon, sis-in-law."

"Okay."

"What's the matter?" asked Ye Erruo in puzzlement.

Her friend glanced at Mo Jiangye before dragging her away.

"Someone's looking for you."

"Who is it?"

"Come with me." Shu Xin led her by the hand to a big tree far away from the crowd.

"Hm?"

"Wait here for a bit." Upon saying that, her friend left.

Soon, a black figure walked out.

"Sun You?"

Sun You approached her with a bunch of flowers in his hands. "Please be my girlfriend, Ruoruo."

"..."

She retreated. "I already have a boyfriend."

She was just about to turn around and leave when he tugged at her wrist and pinned her against a tree.

"Dump him. You two are not a suitable match. I can give you everything I have."

Chapter 97: Dump Chief Mo. I Can Give You Everything I Have

“Dump him. You two are not a suitable match. I can give you everything I have.”

Ye Erruo shoved him away with furrowed brows. “Let me go, Sun You.”

“I’ll let you go if you stay.”

“I won’t leave!”

Only then did he release her. Staring at the fresh flowers in his hands, he said, “Ruoruo, to be honest, someone with a background like mine has plenty of admirers. My parents have introduced me to plenty of girls, though I never had any romantic feelings for them. I’m not sure if it was Fate that allowed me to meet you here.”

He paused for a moment before continuing. “I felt something different for you from the first time I laid eyes on you. I don’t know if this is what people usually call love at first sight. You’re a really pretty, outstanding girl who seems similar yet different from the girls my parents tried to set me up with. Each movement of yours can send my heart thumping, and each word you say to me can make me happy for a very long time. I’m really, really fond of you.”

“...”

As she was about to open her mouth, he hastily interrupted her. “I know Chief Mo is a lot more outstanding than me and that you have feelings for him. After all, he’s the Prince Charming that many women dream of. But, Ruoruo, the two of you are truly an incompatible match.”

When he said that, she coldly replied, “It’s not up to you to decide if we’re a compatible match.”

Nevertheless, the guy was relentless. “He’s a militarist whose hands are stained with blood. Just today, I saw him killing plenty of people. Not even a child was spared. I don’t know and I don’t want to know what kind of person he is, but I do know that you’ll never be happy with him!”

His revelation shocked her. He had seen Mo Jiangye killing those people?

“If he hadn’t killed them, he would’ve been in danger. Likewise, if he hadn’t killed that boy, I would’ve been dead instead. That’s enough, Sun You. I repeat myself: I do not and will not ever have any romantic feelings for you, now or in the future.”

“Feelings can be developed.”

Her lips were pursed into a grim line. “I have spent more time with you than with Chief Mo, but I’ve never developed such feelings for you. On the other hand, my heart thumps for Chief Mo even though he’s only been here for less than a day. Therefore, I—”

“Ruoruo!” Sun You raised his voice all of a sudden and cut her off mid-speech.

A deep frown settled on her face as she turned to leave, reckoning that it was pointless to continue having this conversation with him.

This made him frantic. Shoving the flowers into her arms, he pinned her against the tree. “You haven’t spent some proper alone time with me.”

He had finally found a girl that he liked and wanted to spend a lifetime with. How could he possibly be willing to let her go?

Fate was something one needed to grab hold of tightly. Even the slightest carelessness could mean missing something for a lifetime.

The woman flung his arms off right away, reacting as though she had come into contact with something shocking. "What are you doing? If you continue behaving like this, I—"

"What are you going to do? Continue rejecting me?" The two hands he placed by her side were clenched tightly.

"Can't we try dating? I, Sun You, haven't gotten into a relationship or chased any girl in the entire twenty-five years of my life. You're the first woman I want to do that with."

"Sun You! I'll say it again: Let me go and step aside." Her face grew stern and cold with displeasure as she was trapped between him and the tree.

"Is it truly impossible?" He released his hands, feeling somewhat dejected.

"It'll never work out. In fact, I'm married to Chief Mo."

His eyes bulged incredulously at the news. "You're married?" To Chief Mo?

"Yes. The military training will soon be over. I hope you'll be able to keep my relationship with Chief Mo a secret." As she spoke, she returned the flowers in her hands to him. After all, they might not meet each other again after leaving this place. She did not want gossip about her flying all over the place before she left.

"Sis-in-law?"

Upon looking past her shoulders, she saw Xu Xu standing a short distance away, staring with a complicated expression between her and the flowers in her hands that she pushed back into Sun You's arms.

Chapter 98: I Am Sorry, Sis-In-Law

Upon looking past her shoulders, she saw Xu Xu standing a short distance away, staring with a complicated expression between her and the flowers in her hands that she pushed back into Sun You's arms.

Xu Xu's eyes darkened as he stared closely at Ye Erruo as though he had caught the two of them committing adultery.

"N-No. It's not what you think." She shoved the flowers into the other guy's arms and shook her hands and head frantically at him. Alas, it only made her appear guiltier than ever about being caught red-handed.

His gaze then landed on the bunch of flowers in the young chap's arms, and the complicated look in his eyes intensified even more.

She glanced at Sun You before hastily snatching the flowers back from him.

“Is this a yes?” His eyes sparkled with hope as he gazed fixedly at the woman before him.

Countless images and scenes instantly played in the other man’s mind. Sis-in-law has taken a fancy to some young chap and is wooing him with flowers behind Boss’s back, yet that chap still dared accept her pursuit? They must really have a death wish.

Her brows formed a tight line as she stared at the flowers in her hands. She then returned them to Sun You again before turning around and walking in Xu Xu’s direction.

“Sis-in-law.”

Staring at him, she said, “Don’t let your imagination run wild and don’t tell Mo Jiangye anything.”

The man felt conflicted. She has indeed committed evil sins behind Boss’s back.

“Sis-in-law, you mustn’t do anything to let Boss down or make him angry. He’s terrifying when he flares up, and you won’t be able to handle the aftermath.” He gave her a grave warning.

She shot him a warning look in return and said solemnly, “Exactly, so you’re not allowed to tell him anything. I didn’t do anything to let him down, so just forget what you just saw.”

With a straight face, he replied, “I’m sorry, sis-in-law, but I’ll definitely tell Boss about this.”

Her beautiful, big eyes widened as she reminded him, “He’s terrifying when he flares up.”

Looking righteous, he advised her, “Things will be fine after you apologize to Boss. I’m sure he’ll forgive you if you tell him that you won’t meet this lad ever again.”

“...”

Upon saying that, he turned his head away and left.

“Sigh... Hey, Xu Xu.” With a backhand, she grabbed hold of his arm.

“W-What are you doing?” Startled, he jumped away from her and evaded her hands dramatically.

Her lips twitched. “Don’t tell Mo Jiangye.”

Mo Jiangye is bound to get upset if Xu Xu tattletales on me and things will get blown up. Sheesh, this misunderstanding can completely be avoided, but he just has to overthink things.

Sun You then walked over. “What’s wrong with telling him? Ruoruo, you don’t have to be afraid.”

The man used this opportunity to flee from her, running in the direction of his chief.

With her lips pursed, she told Sun You solemnly, “I hope you won’t come to disturb my life again.”

Then, she hastily chased after Xu Xu. Gosh, I’m dead.

Sun You stared at his crush’s departing figure forlornly as the flowers in his hands drooped and fell to the ground. She claims to be married and says she doesn’t want me disturbing her life, but is that possible? No, it’s impossible! I don’t believe she’s married!

Xu Xu, Zheng Yi, and Wang Yiyang cast looks of sympathy in Ye Erruo's direction when she came running back to the original spot of their campfire. Beside them was Mo Jiangye, whose jacket had been stripped off and was hanging on a nearby branch. His white shirt, pair of black boots, and black belt highlighted his extraordinary coldness and aloofness. His head was dipped as he polished his gun, so his handsome features were somewhat hidden. As the fire crackled, the fragrance of roasted meat wafted in the air.

"It smells good. Is it fully cooked?" She approached him with feigned calmness and ease and rubbed herself against him when she reached his side.

"I'm cold, hubby."

Chapter 99: I'm Cold, Hubby

"I'm cold, hubby."

Mo Jiangye raised his gaze and looked at her shaggy head. "Where have you been?"

Ye Erruo secretly cast a fierce glare at Xu Xu.

Xu Xu pretended he hadn't seen anything as he lowered his head and tore the barbecued meat up.

"I went out with Shu Xin for a while." She strongly longed to be in his embrace. By sitting in his embrace, she wouldn't feel cold any longer.

"Smells delicious. Is it done being barbecued? Can I eat it?" She reached out and grabbed the roasted leg to have a sniff.

Xu Xu and the rest seemed like they were fiddling with the barbecued meat, but they were examining Mo Jiangye's reaction out of the corners of their eyes.

Ye Erruo impatiently took a bite of the delicious meat.

"Hot." She furrowed her brows as her eyes welled up in tears. She then turned around and hugged Mo Jiangye.

When she turned around, Mo Jiangye...

Xu Xu and the rest widened their eyes in shock speechlessly.

After feeding the piece of meat into his mouth and turning around calmly, she blew at the meat in her hand and tried it out once again by eating a smaller bite.

"Why are you all looking at me like that?" she asked, despite knowing the answer.

She smiled gently and lowered her head to look at the meat in her hands. "Although it is very delicious, it lacks salt."

Suddenly, the man's arm hugged her from behind while he held a seasoning bottle in his other hand. He sprinkled seasoning on her meat and said softly, "This is cumin and salt."

A crafty glint flashed across Ye Erruo's eyes. Just like that, she had smoothly avoided a storm! Now, there wasn't a thing that couldn't be solved by a kiss, a hug, or some coquettish behavior. If one of them wasn't enough, then she would use two. If two were not enough, then she would use three. He would always compromise in the end...

Xu Xu blinked. Sister-in-law had not even apologized, yet boss had forgiven her just like that? How could he?

Ye Erruo smiled and delivered the piece of barbecued meat in her hand to the mouth of the man behind her. She purposely passed the side she had not eaten to him. In the end, Mo Jiangye lowered his head and chose to only eat the side she had bitten.

Xu Xu was speechless.

"Sister-in-law, earlier... You..." Before Xu Xu could finish his words, Zheng Yi and Wang Yiyang gave him a harsh kick.

"I said, you all..."

"Sister-in-law! It's delicious, isn't it? I barbecued this myself!" Zheng Yi fawned over her and handed the wing to her.

"Delicious!" She grinned. She glanced at Xu Xu and let out a soft snort before rolling her eyes.

In a moment, Zheng Yi and Wang Yiyang had squeezed Xu Xu to the side.

"Try this, sister-in-law. Brush this on top and it will taste even better."

"Chili oil!" Ye Erruo's eyes shone.

She couldn't wait to have a firm bite after she smeared chili oil on top of the meat. When she had first come here, every meal had been bland. It was rare to even see any kind of chili in the dishes. She was someone who loved spicy food, so she had been enduring this for a long time.

Upon seeing her eating without the slightest scruple, Mo Jiangye furrowed his eyebrows. "Did you not get to eat a lot here?"

"There hasn't been any chili."

Mo Jiangye rubbed off the chili oil at the corner of her lips with his thumb as he curled the corners of his lips into a loving smile.

"Try it. It tastes really good." She turned her head and passed the meat in her hand to him.

"Sister-in-law, he doesn't eat spicy food." Zheng Yi smiled gently.

"Yeah, he..." Before Wang Yiyang could finish his words, they were fed another mushy scene.

Mo Jiangye did not only eat up all the meat she fed him, but he also licked the chili oil on her fingers clean.

Ye Erruo's face turned embarrassingly red as she hurriedly retracted her hand. However, he continued to hold onto her wrist tightly.

“W-What are you doing?”

Chapter 100: Leaving the Training Ground

“W-What are you doing?”

“Damn, is Boss getting horny again?” asked Zheng Yi with a mischievous look.

Upon shooting a side-eye glance at him, Mo Jiangye proceeded to unbutton the jacket of the woman lying in his embrace and help her take it off. She, who had complained about the cold earlier, now had tiny beads of perspiration oozing out of her forehead.

Meanwhile, Xu Xu was filled with resentment for being shoved aside. His resentment, however, was not directed at his chief and sister-in-law, but at the two shameless fellows beside him.

“Are you two going back tonight?”

The man, who was fiddling with a lock of his wife’s hair, replied, “We’ll be leaving in a while.”

“You are in such a hurry?”

Ye Erruo sipped a mouthful of mineral water before answering, “We can get home earlier if we leave early.”

“Sis-in-law, is there something urgent awaiting you?”

“Yes.”

“No wonder Boss wants to leave before he’s even done with his work.”

She lifted her head in surprise. “You still have work to do? Why don’t I leave first and you stay behind and take care of everything before heading back?”

“We’ll head back together.” He caressed her head lovingly.

She rubbed herself against his chest, giggling delightfully. “Alright.”

Zheng Yi was speechless.

“I’ll go bid the others farewell.”

The excited lass, who had just climbed to her feet, got pulled right back into her husband’s embrace.

“No need.”

She was confused.

Looking slightly frigid and displeased, the man added, “There’s no need for goodbyes.”

“But they’re in the same—”

Upon meeting his warning gaze, she heaved a sigh of resignation. “Just a little while. I’ll be right back! It won’t take long.”

After spending so much time with the others, it'd be rude of me if I didn't bid them farewell before leaving.

Slowly, the man got to his feet, reached for the jacket beside him, and wrapped it tightly around his woman.

Goodbye? What for?

Why let the other guys meet her for the last time before we leave? Everyone's paths are different, so what are the chances of them bumping into each other after this? Farewell? Bah, no need for that.

"H-Hey! Hey! Put me down."

"Behave. I'll settle the score with you later." He shot her a hard look.

"Hey, Boss. Are you really going to leave tonight when the new cadre leader hasn't arrived?" yelled Xu Xu from behind.

"I'll leave the rest to you guys. You can only leave when you're done with this matter."

"Damn!"

"What the hell? That's your job, Boss. Don't you feel a prick in your conscience for dumping your work on us?"

However, the man merely picked up his wife and strode off without so much as turning his head. Judging by the cold, eerie air he exuded, someone must have pissed him off again.

The small woman swiftly remained still and obedient in his arms.

That very night, while Mo Jiangye and Ye Erruo left the campsite first via a plane, the rest of her teammates ended their BBQ gathering in the wee hours. They were very reluctant to part after spending almost two months together.

Early the next day, they gathered at the airport and bade their instructors farewell before they flew off.

"Stay in touch."

"Let's hang out whenever you're in XXXX area."

"Awesome. I'm finally leaving this damn place!" A furious Yao Tiao scanned her surroundings, thinking: Trust that wretch Ye Erruo to secretly leave last night! Hm! That heartless lass didn't even bother to say goodbye to me.

The group of people at the airport was engaged in a frenzied conversation when a forklift that carried a large number of suitcases drove over in their direction.

"Everyone, take your stuff and get ready to board the plane," ordered Chen Zhanxiao.

"Ah! Ah! Ah! My luggage is still here."

"Eh? Where's that girl you always hang out with? Why don't I see her?" Wu Mengran, who was wearing a pair of sunglasses and a sun hat, asked as she walked over.

