

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 211

Pippa sounded like she felt sorry for Jennifer. "She didn't ask Dr. Watson to leave. It was Madam Aubree, after knowing her identity."

Ivan looked sullen, his breathing becoming heavier.

"Madam Aubree hates it the most when someone lies to her. Of course, she couldn't accept that Mrs. Marsh had hidden her identity. Hence, even though Mrs. Marsh could cure her, Madam Aubree was still mad," Pippa continued, "She asked Mrs. Marsh to cook and do all housework."

Her words cause a tearing pain in Ivan's heart.

"To develop the medicine for Madam Aubree, Mrs. Marsh had to squeeze time to work in the research lab. She got up earlier in the morning and went to bed late at night. Whenever Madam Aubree gave her a hard time by smashing the plates or tossing away her dishes, or even when Mrs. Marsh was slapped, she tolerated it and made the dishes again. It's all because Madam Aubree is your mother. She loves the person you love."

Slapped?

Ivan captured the critical point.

His heart sank, and his face turned livid.

When he returned from New York that time, her cheek was swollen. It turned out it wasn't because of her wisdom tooth.

Ivan withdrew his gaze slowly, his dull eyes falling on the empty bottles. He felt indeed upset.

"Mrs. Marsh loves you a lot. She swallowed all her grievances for you. Her biggest wish was for you and Madam Aubree to get along well." Pippa felt bitter, her mind jumbled. She had forgotten she was Aubree's caregiver. "Please get her back, Mr. Marsh, if you also love her."

"I know I shouldn't have told you these. I work at Kelsington Bay, after all." Tears welled up in her eyes. Pippa held them back and continued, "However... I don't want to see a loving couple separated. It could be a regret of lifetime if you missed the one."

After listening to her, Ivan apologized to her sincerely, "Sorry for my rudeness just now."

The man of status and God's favorite said sorry to a maid.

Pippa felt much better. She added, "Ms. Collins drugged you that night seven years ago."

She bluntly told Ivan whatever she had learned about.

"Madam Aubree felt itchy and was cured instantly that day because of Ms. Collins, but she was up to no good in the first place."

Ivan was sobered, gazing at the righteous girl in front of him.

Although furious, he listened to her seriously.

“She put something into the medicine to set up Mrs. Marsh,” Pippa said, “However, she coincidentally did Mrs. Marsh a favor. Fortunately, Madam Aubree wasn’t disfigured. Or, I can’t imagine the consequences.”

“That’s not love. Ms. Collins is extreme and selfish,” Though Pippa was young, she had a good judgement. “Mrs. Marsh loves you truly. She was willing to leave you and even left the children here. However, she didn’t know you would be so devastated after leaving, and your relationship with Madam Aubree worsened.

“You also hurt yourself. If Mrs. Marsh knew, she would be indeed upset.”

As Pippa spoke, she choked in sobs. “Mr. Marsh, if you want to reconcile with Madam Aubree, I’m afraid Mrs. Marsh must come back. In fact...”

The room full of alcohol smell fell into silence for a moment.

Pippa’s chest heaved up and down fiercely as she was angry.

“In fact, what?” Ivan asked hoarsely.

Pippa looked into his eyes, plucking up her courage. “In fact, Madam Aubree was disappointed in Ms. Collins. She also wavered between Mrs. Marsh and Ms. Collins. Sometimes, she missed Mrs. Marsh’s kindness...”

Ivan understood. It turned out his mother didn’t detest Jennifer completely. However, Catherine had won the upper hand at this moment.

“Do you know where Andrew is?” he asked.