

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 342

Linda's eyes lit up as she looked in the direction Catherine pointed at. "Even the shoebox is so beautiful!" She went over and opened the box."

The handmade shoes with diamonds inside almost hurt her eyes. "Wow! That's beautiful. How much are they?"

"600,000," Catherine replied with a smile.

"Mr. Marsh is so rich!" Linda died of envy, "You could buy a house with that money! Look, he is very nice to you."

Catherine was smiling on the surface, but sad on the inside.

She paid for the wedding dress that was custom-made. It was nearly 1.6 million.

The wedding shoes were also designed by herself, costing 500,000.

She had spent basically all her savings over the years on this once-in-a-lifetime wedding.

Ivan hadn't said anything about the gift... He never talked about the wedding with her.

Catherine felt sad. She was a woman, after all.

However, as long as Ivan was willing to marry her, she didn't mind her suffering.

She couldn't wait for her wedding day.

Emerald Bay.

The moon was bright and the night was charming.

In the brightly lit living room, Jennifer also tried on her wedding dress, she was as beautiful as an angel.

Ivan carefully helped her with the details, such as tying the belt and the hem of the dress. His eyes were full of affection.

Marry and Jordan was watching with great joy.

The servants were gathered in a circle, all with blessing smiles on their faces.

Since Jennifer came back, Ivan became much gentler. Emerald Bay felt like home.

"This wedding dress is perfect." Ivan's voice was gentle, "It's your style."

"Who is the designer?" Jennifer looked at herself in the mirror with a smile. "This designer understands me very well. This wedding dress seems simple, but it is more beautiful than those fancy ones."

Ivan stood in front of her, blocking the person in the mirror, and held out his finger to himself, "The designer is here."

"You?" She was shocked.

He put on a proud smile. "Yes."

Jennifer pushed him aside and looked at herself in the mirror again, admiring the wedding dress.

The fabrics were carefully selected. Every stitch and every thread were filled with romance and affection.

It was indeed her style.

"Would you like to hear my design philosophy, Mrs. Marsh?" Ivan wrapped his hands around his chest. He looked very gentle tonight. "Will I get a reward if you like the explanation?"

"Tell me then. I'll assess it from Emma's point of view." As a designer, she would indeed understand.

Ivan spoke while admiring the wedding dress, "The meticulous work is a representative of unshakeable love."

Jennifer looked at him with a smile and listened patiently.

"The dazzling white ink represents my burning heart for you." He held her hand, and spoke in a confessing tone, "The overall design represents happiness."

The wedding dress fit her body curve.

Jennifer's wedding dress was more eye-catching than Catherine's wedding dress with countless diamonds. She looked like a delicate lily.

A car light shone into the living room. Everyone looked around and saw a car parked in the courtyard.

"Is it Edward?" Jennifer lifted the hem of her dress and turned around with a smile of joy on her face.

Ivan grabbed her by the shoulders and said softly, "I'll take a look." She couldn't move freely wearing the wedding dress.

Seeing that his aura was so gentle, and there was always a smile on his face, Jennifer also felt very happy. Even the air was filled with the smell of happiness.

The servants also felt that Emerald Bay was getting more and more homely. Ivan seemed to be a human with flesh and blood, no longer cold.

Everyone believed that life would turn better.
