

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 396

Linda raised her eyes as she held her chopsticks.

“Look, I’m all good now.” Catherine said, “I got my hearing back. I’ve been taking my meds and I don’t drink anymore. I used to have a gym membership, but I haven’t been able to go. It’s about to expire. Starting today, I am going to live every day to the fullest.”

Linda sighed lightly and said what was on her mind, “In fact, I feel empty when you are not there. I have gotten used to working with you.”

“When I have the next job, you can come to me if you want to.” Catherine gave her this promise, “After all, I can’t stay out of work for the rest of my life, right? Even if I had some savings, these would be depleted one day.”

Linda’s eyes lit up, “Really? To work for you as an assistant?”

“Of course. You are free to choose.” She said, “No one can hold a job for a lifetime unless it’s for someone. Only the faith that person gives you can help you withstand the long days.”

In fact, after spending so much time together, Linda is the one who knows her best.

She was trying to make herself better every day to be a good match for Mr. Marsh.

Night at Emerald Bay, Jennifer poured a cup of warm water before going to bed and handed the small white pill to Ivan, “Here.”

The man opened his mouth to take the pill, took the glass of water to drink, tilted his head slightly, and swallowed it, “Thank you, bae.”

“You can eat something recently.” Jennifer has been secretly watching him, “You have eaten much of the food I cooked but left much of others cooked. Still, that’s pretty good.”

“I am still not quite used to other people’s cooking.” Ivan put down the cup and untied himself, “I rely on nutrition solutions sometimes in the company because I do not want to eat.”

“It’s ok. You’ve made a lot of progress.” Jennifer had confidence in him, “The session isn’t over yet. This time I will have your back to the end and I will cure your stomach disease.”

“Thanks for your hard work.” Ivan picked her up around the waist, “Sorry, I didn’t even accompany you on your first day of recording. I was too busy today.”

“Never mind.” She wrapped her arms around his neck happily, “Pippa was with me.”

“I’ll pick you up tomorrow.” Ivan put her gently on the bed, “And just in time to claim that you are my wife.”

“Hahaha, it’s ok. It’s just me and Pippa in the studio.” Jennifer couldn’t help but smile, she felt so happy and didn’t reject him, “But I’m happy if you want to go.”

He leaned down and kissed her lips...

The moon set and the sun rose.

Another bright and sunny day.

Jennifer and Ivan got up early. She poured warm water and remind him to take his medicine.

After breakfast, she took him to the courtyard and watched his car leave.

The Marsh's building was wrapped in the morning sun and the glass of the building reflected the beautiful clouds.

On the 22nd floor of the main building, Linda arrived at the vice president's office, which had been redecorated, without any semblance of its former appearance.

Everything felt strange... she took a step inside.

Even the desk was changed as if everything that Catherine had touched was bad and got emptied.

This made Linda inexplicably feel heartbroken.

The surroundings were extraordinarily quiet when she stopped walking.

She seemed to still be able to see Catherine wearing a competent professional dress, stepping on high heels in and out of there.

She was calm and wise, and many of the company's decisions were made by her, and she had contributed to the growing glory of the Marsh Group.

She used to be a goddess-like existence in this office.