Chapter 3567

The short-haired man's tone was incredibly cold. When the eight warriors heard that, their expressions darkened greatly.

Airn shouted, "You're the ones who shouldn't be so pleased with yourselves! Even if I have to die today, I'll make sure you pay the iron price!"

Airn felt like he was going to blow up from his anger. Those guys talked in such a disgusting manner. At that moment, he truly did want to put his life on the line to make those three pay.

Jack smirked, not saying anything. The others could not understand what the short-haired man actually meant, but he understood. Other than those three, there were still another three who were hiding in a concealment formation not far away.

If the six of them attacked together, it really would be difficult. It was because of that, the short-haired man was acting so arrogantly.

However, Jack did not mind. Even with another three, he would still have the ability to make them pay a painful price!

The fox temporarily stopped attacking after half of its claw was lost. It retreated and licked its wounds, but its eyes were full of rage. Jack had thoroughly angered the beast, and with the beast's temperament, there was no way it would let Jack off.

It suited Jack perfectly. The other two beasts had stopped for the moment because of what happened as well. The intense battlefield suddenly turned strangely quiet, but everyone there knew that it was just a temporary peace. It would not take that long for the peace to be broken!

The three in the concealment formation were stunned when Jack appeared. After all, Jack had just passed by earlier and did not seem to act strangely at all. Yet, Jack had suddenly appeared just like that, which caught them off guard.

Reyes frowned and said, "What is happening?! Why did this guy suddenly appear there?! Wasn't he moving forward? Why did he suddenly turn around? Did he suddenly change his mind? Was he not planning on interfering, but ended up deciding to?"

Morrison turned and rolled his eyes at Reyes, “What are you even saying? He’s already on the battlefield anyway, so what’s the point of trying to figure out why? Right now, we need to figure out how to deal with this!”

Reyes was speechless after Morrison’s words.

Goran sighed and said, “Is this the time to fight? Keep quiet!”

Morrison knew how to read the mood and immediately decided against continuing to exchange words with Reyes.

He said, “What do we do now? Should we go there right now? I feel like the other three might not be able to handle the situation.

That guy doesn’t seem weak. He managed to slice the fox’s claws in one slash. That’s not something an ordinary warrior can do.”

Goran nodded as various thoughts surfaced in his head.

After a moment, he said coldly, “We’ll wait a bit more! This isn’t the time to strike! We need to wait until both sides are heavily injured before we reap the benefits, and not join in too early, dragging ourselves inside. The three of us aren’t as fast as the other three. If we join now, we could very well end up injured. Don't forget what we're meant to do, and don't forget our goal."

Morrison nodded seriously, feeling like Goran was right! The situation was not that bad at the moment. Jack turned to look at Dagda.

At that moment, his back was facing the three warriors, and only the eight warriors from third-grade worlds were facing him.
