

Sweet Love 1401

Chapter 1401 The sun shines brightly with a cute baby at home.

Little Yichen: "..."

Mu Yazhe was silent.

Yun Shishi: "..."

Youyou tilted his head to the side as he smiled like a little angel—all innocent and pure. "Good morning, my dear father! It's eight in the morning; would you like to have breakfast now?"

The older boy's shoulders shuddered. He commented inwardly, There are so many types of smiles in this world, but only Youyou's smile is scarier than his stony expression. He can make one's hair stand on end!

He always felt that it was extremely evil.

"Cough, cough... What are we having for breakfast?" the man asked quietly.

His younger son's lips raised as his smile became brighter. "Bread, milk, sunny-side-up eggs, and ham sandwiches!"

The adult was momentarily stunned before he responded, "I like sunny-side-up eggs."

With the kid calling him father, he instantly felt quite light and airy.

In such a short moment, the issue of these two dumplings eavesdropping on them was thrown out the window.

His older son was flabbergasted.

He and his brother were clearly on different levels.

Even someone as shrewd as his daddy was easily swallowed up when placed into his twin's hands.

The younger boy continued to smile beautifully as he asked, "Oh, yes, my dearest father, I've also prepared some deep-fried breadsticks. They're crispy on the outside and tender on the inside. They taste superb! Would you like to try them?"

The man nodded in a daze as he carried his younger son toward the dining area.

His older son stood rooted to the ground, stupefied...

Yun Shishi hid under the covers and secretly shook in laughter.

Ha ha ha ha!

She was so amused by her younger son's astute and adorable reaction!

She was happy.

The little guy was an imp with his daddy wrapped around his fingers!

With just a few words, he managed to avoid the issue successfully and coax his father into having breakfast.

If he had not succeeded then, this matter would have never ceased.

If Youyou had not been around, Little Yichen would have had to endure the punishment.

It was not easy for the younger one to save him from scorching fire and deep waters using a few words!

From this, the older boy witnessed and learned what it meant to be scheming.

“Mommy!”

He stood by the door and called out to his mother.

She popped out from under the covers with flushed cheeks, only to see the little guy with a reddened face leaning against the door. He greeted her shyly, “Mommy, good morning!”

With that, he ran away bashfully.

These two little guys did not have the intention of listening in on them.

Both had rushed over to invite their parents for breakfast, but when they were at the door, it was a curious coincidence that Youyou had pressed his ear against it and listened to the sounds coming from within.

Little Yichen ran up to him, and not long later, the door was suddenly opened.

That was when the two lads came tumbling into the room like capsized ships.

The woman was so amused that she had to cover her mouth as she burst out laughing in bed.

With two cute babies in the house, the sun shone a lot brighter every day.

The twins were the best gifts God had given her!

In the dining room, the younger boy was personally feeding his father a piece of deep-fried breadstick.

The man bit down on it. It was fried until golden and crispy, and the insides were tender. It was indeed very delicious.

“You made this?” he asked in disbelief.

The boy raised his eyebrow in delight. “Mhm! Of course, it’s made by me!”

The man praised him generously. “Your skills are better than many of the head chefs in top-class restaurants.”

“He he! This is nothing. You haven’t had a proper taste of my cooking skills yet,” said the boy, feigning aloofness.

However, his heart was already in too much glee.

Chapter 1402 The Primetime Drama King

After getting out of bed, Yun Shishi suddenly received a call from Qin Zhou.

“Are you feeling better?”

“A bit,” she replied.

Her manager let out a sigh of relief but was still unable to hide the worry in his voice. “Your phone was always turned off recently; it’s lucky that my call managed to go through this time. I asked Mu Xi and she said that even she wasn’t able to contact you. We were worried sick!”

“Sorry! Some things happened at home recently, so it wasn’t convenient for me to turn on my phone,” said the artist guiltily.

He only let out a helpless sigh. “It’s okay. I thought something had happened to you; that’s why I was worried.”

For a period, the artist had vanished without a trace. She did not respond to her texts and her phone was turned off even when they tried calling her.

Only when Min Yu had passed the word to Ji Lin did they learn that she had taken a couple of days of leave.

After learning about this, Qin Zhou was able to calm down.

Finally, her phone was contactable, and she responded to his messages.

However, he had been overseas for the past few days. Once he turned on his phone upon his return and saw all her texts, he hurriedly gave her a call.

He paused for a moment before he asked with perplexity, “What happened at home?”

“Um... It’s a long story.” She did not know how to broach the topic.

Still, the man was sensitive, so he hurriedly said, “If it’s inconvenient for you to share, it’s okay! I understand that celebrities have their privacy and personal space!”

“Mm! Thank you, Qin Zhou.”

“Are you free recently? If you are, are you able to jump back into work? This whole time that you’ve been away, the office got filled with scripts for you to look through!”

The artist fell silent. As if an enemy were hot on her heels, the moment she finished her breakfast, she rushed to the office.

The moment the manager saw her, he reprimanded her harshly.

Even though he sounded gentle on the phone, he still took this chance to give her a good scolding when she returned.

It was not because of anything else apart from the fact that she had caused him to worry so much.

The artist was reprimanded until she did not have a temper anymore and could only let out a sigh. "I'm sorry! There was just a situation at home that needed settling."

"That isn't why I'm angry!" he retorted coldly, letting out a huff. "I'm angry because you didn't inform me about anything, causing me to worry so much! I thought you were kidnapped!"

Yun Shishi fell silent for a moment before responding, "It isn't anything so dramatic!"

"How is it not?!" He rolled his eyes. "Shishi, you know better than anyone else that I treat you as family! Please, if you have any issues, inform me."

His tone of voice instantly softened. "If not, you're just asking me to worry to death. I couldn't eat or rest peacefully."

Her heart was filled with warmth at that and said sincerely, "Thank you."

"What are you thanking me for?!"

The man rolled his eyes again unhappily before he changed the topic. "Let's not talk about this any longer. Have you finished reading the script?"

"Yes."

"It will begin soon, so be more thoughtful and showcase your acting skills well," her manager continued.

"Okay." The artist remembered this to heart.

Naturally, the man was assured of her acting abilities.

Her acting in the production team of 'Lethal Beauty', even if given the leading role, would have no issues whatsoever.

"Oh, yes. Do you know who the male lead for 'Lethal Beauty' is?"

"I have no idea..."

She shook her head vacantly.

"The present primetime drama king and today's one of the most in-demand actors of Huanyu, Hua Jin."

Lately, she had only busied herself with the script and had not bothered with anything else.

Chapter 1403 What is important for a celebrity is to be obedient!

"Hua Jin?" The artist reacted to the name after a few seconds. "That name sounds familiar."

Qin Zhou rolled his eyes at that. "Sis, can you be more thoughtful and do a bit more homework? There's a lot of limelight on that actor right now. It'll be so embarrassing if he stands in front of you and you fail to even recognize him."

Yun Shishi: "..."

The man eyed her before adding, “Plus, he’s background isn’t so simple; be careful. Don’t get too close to him in the production team.”

She did not probe any further, deciding to just adhere to his advice. She would not ask why the actor was no easy character.

Knowing that her manager had his reasons for telling her not to get close to that actor, she would just listen obediently.

Her manager nodded, satisfied.

This was what he loved about his artist.

No matter what he planned or asked her to do, she would follow along obediently. She rarely questioned his actions, and even if she did, it was out of pure curiosity.

There was never a hint of resistance from her.

An obedient celebrity with a warm personality and lacking any malevolence—in all honesty, she was one of the most professional celebrities he had ever managed.

If one must know, there were many disobedient celebrities in the entertainment industry.

This meant that she trusted him fully.

On that note, he was extremely touched.

The man instructed her regarding a few more matters before leaving her in the company to wait for her make-up artist. She had an exclusive interview with a style magazine that afternoon, and they were taking a few shots of her.

After his artist nodded obediently, he left.

He had a meeting with a producer, who was working on filming the second season of a popular TV drama. He heard that there was a supporting role which had not been filled yet and wanted to insert his protégé in it to become a familiar face to the masses.

Although it was only a minor role, no matter how small a fly was, it was still meat.

More importantly, the reputation of this popular drama was great. While its second season was being filmed, the show’s viewer ratings showed remarkable results. It maintained its high ranking on the charts.

If one must know, many raving dramas dropped in popularity during the filming of their second season.

The main point was that this popular drama followed a production schedule, wherein the filming coincided with the broadcasting. Once an episode was filmed, it would be broadcasted on TV after a couple of weeks.

Her manager naturally had his reasons for planning this.

Initially, she became famous mainly because of the huge boost ‘The Green Apple’ had on Weibo and the behind-the-scenes content, which garnered much attention.

However, as 'The Green Apple' had wrapped up its filming and entered the stages of post-production, it had been a long period of coldness.

Therefore, he had to seek a few opportunities to maintain his artist's exposure.

It was not a bad decision to act a supporting role in this popular drama.

The key point was that the supporting role's character was well-mannered.

If she could clinch this chance to join the team, it would definitely increase her exposure.

Naturally, he was determined to win this role for her during the negotiation, so after imparting a few instructions to his charge, he left in a hurry.

Yun Shishi stayed behind in the company to memorize her script.

The interview scheduled in the afternoon was Bazaar Fashion's exclusive; thus, the fashion company planned for their cosmetics artist to head down and help the actress with her make-up.

The make-up artist arrived that afternoon.

She saw a person with a vogue face.

"Hello, I'm Andy, Bazaar Fashion's chief stylist," greeted the makeup artist before letting out a bright but stiff smile.

She furrowed her eyebrows, a little unwilling to stick her hand out for a handshake.

Chapter 1404 Disdaining Her Low Celebrity Rating

She furrowed her eyebrows, a little unwilling to stick her hand out for a handshake.

However, when she finally shook Andy's hand, she could feel the latter tightening her grip with much strength!

She was using so much strength that Yun Shishi was afraid her hand would be deformed!

The actress shook off the person's hand unconsciously. She raised her gaze and furrowed her brows in slight unhappiness.

She felt that the smile on the makeup artist's face was extremely stiff and not all that friendly.

This was their first meeting, yet why was she looking at her with so much animosity?

"What's the matter?"

Seeing her slightly cold face, the makeup artist could not help but smile. "Yun Shishi, your attitude doesn't seem all that friendly."

"You used too much strength in your grip during our handshake." She paused for a moment before her lips arched a little. "It hurt me."

Andy could only smile as she sized her up from head to toe. "Oh, dear. I never knew that newcomers would put on such airs! Were you trying to act all high and mighty in front of me earlier? You don't have to do that!"

"Act all high and mighty?"

Yun Shishi was a little stunned but recovered fast enough. This haughty-mannered stylist was ridiculing her!

It seemed that this stylist was not very friendly with her!

She did not understand why the makeup artist was hostile to her, proceeding to speak to her in a lukewarm manner and even using such harsh words. This was their first meeting, yet they seemed to be mortal enemies right from the start.

Was she crazy?

Did she have a score to settle with her? Could she have offended this person in the past?

The actress brushed aside her humiliation with a cold smile. "Acting all high and mighty is dependent on the assets one has; I'm undeserving of your words."

Her statement was well-delivered. There was no error or issue with her choice of words.

However, it seemed that Andy was intentionally trying to twist her words as she snorted coldly in ridicule. "Assets? You are a newcomer. What kind of assets do you have which give you the right to act all high and mighty? Tsk! Yun Shishi, I've been in this industry much longer, and let me say that you have the lowest celebrity rating out of all the artists I've met. If not for the chief editor's command, do you think I'd be willing to wait on you?"

The actress instantly understood her words.

Being a meticulous person, she could detect the huge dissatisfaction the makeup artist felt toward her from those uttered words.

It was not because she had offended her in the past, which resulted in Andy's nasty and unfriendly behavior toward her, but because the latter was big in Bazaar Fashion as its self-proclaimed chief stylist. With a rank like that, one had to have much influence.

Only someone who had won countless awards in fashion shows in and out of the country was qualified to use such a title.

Bazaar was a top international fashion magazine. They had a firm standing in the industry, and many stylists under its banner came from complex backgrounds. Therefore, to be labeled as the 'chief stylist', she had to be a rather big shot.

There were rumors about some chief stylists flaunting their high statuses and being extremely picky with the celebrities they wanted to work with.

Some stylists refused to accept third-rate celebs. This Andy seemed rather arrogant. She was probably sarcastic with her this whole time due to her unwillingness to be her stylist!

After all, being relatively new, she only filmed one movie and a few commercials. She was not extremely popular and did not even have a high celebrity rating.

The makeup artist must be feeling that styling such a small celebrity was beneath her.

Chapter 1405 Burying the Hatchet 1

In other words, she was disdainful of her low celebrity rating.

Yun Shishi's guess was right.

The stylist's unwillingness to work with her was wholly the reason for her hostility.

The newly debuted artist could not even be considered a celebrity.

Even though she was phenomenally popular on Weibo for a period following the production team's hype for her, she had no substantial reputation.

The celebrity rating was, after all, measured by one's net worth and not how popular they were on Weibo.

Bluntly put, one's popularity on that platform was useless if the person could not do well in the industry itself.

Given her current five-figure remuneration, she might even have to come up with her resources if she were in a bigger production team.

Andy was filled with much disdain when she received this job.

No way would she work with a low-ranking artist!

Her colleagues laughed at her behind her back for some time, and many even scoffed at her for being assigned to work with a nameless artist.

Given the actress's status, she would never have the chance to do an exclusive interview with Bazaar if not for Qin Zhou using his accumulated resources while working as Gu Xingze's manager.

The chief editor then arranged for the stylist to work with her.

The interview was already set even if she refused the job; this had left her beyond infuriated.

After all, as the chief stylist of Bazaar Fashion, she worked with only the hottest movie stars and famous carpet stars. Who was Yun Shishi when compared to them?

Despite being the female lead in Lin Fengtian's newest movie, it had yet to be shown on screen as the filming had just ended and was only entering its post-production stage. Furthermore, its box-office success remained undetermined.

That was none of her concern, though.

What she cared about was the artist's inattention to fashion!

The woman was clearly insulting her by dressing so shabbily for a Bazaar interview!

In the fashion world, many stylists or makeup artists were proud.

Big-name stylists, such as her, were even more so.

In the past, some celebrities would even apply three thick layers of foundation to their faces before dressing up exquisitely for their Bazaar exclusive interview.

Look at this actress.

A plain dress. A knitted sweater. Her black hair scattering all over her shoulders. Her outfit was way too much of an understatement.

Andy felt utterly revolted by her outfit.

Hence, she was bent on making things difficult for her.

The exasperated actress then quietly apologized, "I'm sorry that you have to work with an unknown artist like me. It must be hard on you."

Despite the bitterness in her words, she actually optimistically deprecated herself!

The stylist was practically flabbergasted by her reply.

She thought for sure that the artist would be infuriated with how she had humiliated her.

In the end, the latter did not show anger or refute her at all. She actually went along with what she had said and spouted such self-deprecating words.

Her anger deflated at once.

What else could she say to that?

As such, she coldly questioned, "Have you applied base makeup on your face?"

"Nope," Yun Shishi responded. "I just had my lunch."

Andy: "..."

She seemed to have encountered a weirdo.

Chapter 1406 Burying the Hatchet 2

The stylist snorted in annoyance. "Hey, are you deliberately making things difficult for me? If you know that you'll be doing an interview later, shouldn't you apply your base makeup ahead of time? Are you waiting for me to do it for you?"

"I've only learned about this interview moments ago."

Pausing, Yun Shishi continued calmly, "The interview is still a job to the both of us, so there's no need for you to go all aggressive on me. If you want me to apply my base makeup in advance, I'll do that now and leave the rest to you!"

Despite her accommodating gesture, Andy rolled her eyes indifferently still. The latter was apparently unappreciative of her offer, yet she at least no longer spoke with sarcasm.

The artist then went to the makeup room and proceeded to put on base makeup carefully.

Unlike other artists who piled their faces with thick layers of foundation, a thin layer of it did the trick for her since she had such an excellent complexion.

Hence, she was done in a matter of minutes.

The stylist was surprised. "Why are you out so fast?"

"I'm done applying foundation."

With a cocked brow, she nitpicked at the artist. "Must you be so perfunctory? For God's sake, it'll be your face on screen; are you sure you want to be so sloppy about it?! The makeup's gonna be smudged and ruined if the base layer isn't applied properly! Many ignorant people think themselves naturally beautiful and, as such, see no need for a thick layer of foundation. Ha ha! As a result, they only make a mess out of themselves!"

The other arched a brow. "How about our master stylist check for herself if my base makeup passes the test, then?"

She answered, irked, "Sit down! I'll just do your makeup. It's your face on screen, anyway; even if the base layer isn't properly done, that's none of my concern!"

With that, she signaled her to the chair with her eyes.

Yun Shishi obediently took her place.

The stylist then walked over and looked at that beautiful face in the mirror.

Clear, fair, flawless, and beautiful.

Makeup had yet to be applied, and neither was the eyes outlined with an eyeliner, yet with just a layer of foundation evening out her skin tone, from afar, she looked like an otherworldly fairy who had walked out of a painting with her naturally ethereal aura.

Suddenly, she felt her face tingling as she received a silent slap in the face.

Having witnessed it for herself now, she must admit that some people were indeed born beauties.

One could look equally stunning with just a thin layer of foundation.

She gritted her teeth in indignation and proceeded to put on makeup to the artist.

She did her job with professionalism, notwithstanding her prejudice for the artist.

Though haughty, she was very focused and professional in her work.

Her attitude was serious and she allowed no slipshod work.

This interview's concept was purity.

As such, she did a Japanese crystal-nude makeup for her, which required the most sophisticated skills and techniques.

Be it the eyeline or blush, everything must appear natural, fresh, and radiant.

Hence, once the makeup was completed, the mirror reflected Yun Shishi in interpretation of her beauty.

She was pure and beautiful; her smile made her look youthful and sweet.

A naïve schoolgirl in love for the first time probably looked like this!

Chapter 1407 Burying the Hatchet 3

Feelings of jealousy and revulsion emerged from within Andy as she gazed at the ravishing beauty in the mirror; the despise in her eyes became increasingly apparent.

“Yun Shishi, do you know why I hate you so much?”

She suddenly looked at the person in the mirror provocatively.

The latter, naturally, shook her head in bafflement.

She snarled, “Rather than your low celebrity rating, I hate you for your nauseating ambitions and behavior!”

Being a straightforward person, she did not ever like beating around the bush and would say whatever came to her mind.

The artist coolly clarified, “Ambitions?”

“I do admit that you have natural, good looks. I’ve also watched your performance before, and you do have a flair for acting! Still, what I loathe the most is female celebrities who stop at nothing just to get ahead of others!”

She fired heatedly, her sharp eyes gleaming with aggressiveness.

The artist gave her a bland smile in return. “I have no idea what you’re talking about.”

From the actress’s attitude, she was certain that the former was exactly as she thought her to be—unscrupulous in hyping herself—as such, her impression of Yun Shishi had hit rock bottom.

Getting straight to the point, she grilled her. “You started that rumor about you and Gu Xingze being an item, right?”

“How scheming of you!”

As her eyes narrowed in utmost contempt, she suddenly lamented, “There are many like you in this industry who get all arrogant just because they get to partner with him in a film or two! Are you that much in a rush to gain fame and fortune despite having only debuted recently? The gossip about you and the superstar is all over the place. I bet that you’re making use of his prestige and shamelessly involving him with you to amass a large number of followers overnight and jump up in status! How vile can you get?"

The actress merely calmly gazed up at her throughout her lamentation. When the latter was done, she asked smilingly, "Surely, you need not over react?"

"..." A sweet smile graced her face as she looked at Andy's reflection in the mirror. She hit the nail in the head when she surmised, "I suppose you like Xingze since you are all bothered?"

With a reddening face, the stylist screeched, "Don't you talk nonsense!"

"Am I?"

The artist gave her a teasing smirk. "From the way you're acting, those who see you may assume that I've stolen your boyfriend!"

"Shut up!"

The stylist flew into a rage out of humiliation. "Stop making wild guesses! I-I don't feel that way toward him!"

Darting a look at the stylist, she found her to be awkwardly cute.

Her fanatical worship and yearning for the superstar had clearly seeped out of her voice, yet the woman still refused to admit it.

"Oh, then why are you so agitated? Besides, how do you know if it's merely a hype? What if we're really a couple?" she teased.

Surprisingly, the woman turned out to be far more naïve than what she had imagined. She got all ruffled up from her few provocative words. "What?! Are you both actually dating?"

Yun Shishi deliberately kept her in suspense. "That's none of your concern."

"What none of my concern?! Say, what's your relationship with Xingze?" Flushed with nervousness, Andy looked as if she were on the verge of tears.

Acting all mysterious, she blinked her eyes smilingly. "It's a secret!"

Chapter 1408 Burying the Hatchet 4

"It's a secret!"

With that, she stood up and left to change her clothes.

A sullen Andy was left behind, rooted in place with her fists balled up in anger.

The editor-in-chief soon arrived at the studio with the camera crew and did a picture-taking session with the artist first.

Dressed in a pink, floral dress from Chanel's new spring collection with a floral crown, Yun Shishi looked sweet in her curly hair and red heels.

Her screen presence was often overwhelmed during Huanyu's previous training.

Now, she could comfortably stand before the camera and present the ideal image that the photographer wanted sans further guidance.

Sometimes, she would hold the frame and lazily fiddle with her hair, acting deep in thought with pursed lips.

She would, then, be cute and lovely with a lollipop in hand, her beautiful and expressive eyes widening in surprise.

At other times, she would lazily lean against the wall with her curly hair cascading on her smooth shoulders and her eyes narrowed from smiling.

During break, with his camera in hand, the photographer browsed through the sets of photos he had taken in a row earlier and unwillingly deleted a few.

Her expressions were great.

Just then, a term popped in his mind for the blessed beauty.

God's favored one!

God loved her so much that she was given such perfect looks.

Standing at the sidelines, Andy was currently in a blank state; her thoughts were still stuck on the artist's earlier ambiguous words.

'What if we're really a couple?'

What did that mean?

What's her relationship with Gu Xingze?

Are they really a couple?

Surely not!

Being relatively standoffish, the superstar was known for giving women a wide berth. Not one of the fairer sexes had ever appeared by his side.

Other than some rumored partners, the rest were created by those female artists.

He was such a rare and excellent idol that many in the industry were skeptical about his sexual orientation. Despite being in showbiz for over a decade, nearly every actress who costarred with him in a film merely had platonic ties to him.

It was an impressive feat in the industry.

However, on second thought, the stylist was completely stumped!

The superstar had a handful of rumored partners previously, but they were all created by those actresses, and his studio eventually stepped forward to clarify things.

This time, however, there was no news from his studio. On the contrary, they actually worked with Yun Shishi's team to increase the speculations regarding this love affair.

This would have been impossible in the past.

Just from his ambiguity, she could not help thinking that something was truly going on between the two!

Was it truly as Yun Shishi said? Was she dating Gu Xingze?!

She stared keenly at the artist, who was constantly posing according to the photographer's request in the studio. From her sweet and tender smile, she looked like a woman passionately in love.

Are they really...

Her heart stifled in restlessness.

Truth be told, her excessive concern about this matter was because she had been fantasizing about the superstar for a long time!

She had fallen head over heels for that cold and handsome Greek god ever since the first time she laid her eyes on him.

From his debut to his superstar status, the stylist had been silently supporting him.

Chapter 1409 Burying the Hatchet 5

From his debut to his superstar status, the stylist had been silently supporting him.

Unfortunately, now, her dream guy was rumored to be in love with a woman...

She naturally felt upset about it!

Bazaar Fashion's editor-in-chief: "Was it a coincidence or something else that you landed this lead role in 'The Green Apple' before?"

Yun Shishi: "During its nation-wide audition for the female lead, by chance, I was picked by Director Lin; hence, I got the role."

Editor-in-chief: "Which character do you like best from the movie's script?"

"It's Yin Xiachun."

"Why? What attracts you to this character?"

"That character is a pure and stubborn person. When she loves someone, she gives her all to that person and doesn't hesitate to turn her back against the world for her love! I'm touched by her persistence and devotion."

"Did you read the original novel before accepting this role?"

"Yes, I did. The novel is very well written; I stayed up all night just to finish it."

“Then, while reading it, has it ever crossed your mind that you would, one day, be acting your favorite character?”

“...Nope.”

“How does it feel to actually be acting as one of the novel’s characters as opposed to just reading about it?”

“They’re two entirely different concepts. When I was reading the novel, I got pulled into its world, got influenced by the love-and-hate entanglement in it, and felt the emotions according to the plot. Acting, on the other hand, must be carefully taken into consideration; I’d have to put myself in the character’s shoes to feel her every emotion and bring them across to the viewers.”

“Did you do some preparations before the filming?”

“What preparations?”

“Preparations for your role.”

“I usually read the script several times first as preparation.”

“Is it challenging to play her character?”

“How do you know what emotions the character should be feeling?”

“By striving hard to immerse myself in the character’s inner world.”

“What are your expectations for this movie?”

...

The interview proceeded gradually.

Facing the camera with a mic in hand, Yun Shishi patiently answered every friendly and critical question that the editor-in-chief hurled her way. Some answers required regurgitation from the memorized script, while others required to be thought up on the spot.

She never memorized those ready-made replies, though, and just came up with all the answers there and then.

As such, it left the editor-in-chief feeling a little disgruntled.

Her answers were so tepid and random that they did not spark any interest in them from others.

She was clearly given a script for the interview. Why did she not follow it?

Such an interview was truly drab.

The editor-in-chief, therefore, posed a sensitive question. “You and Xingze played a couple on screen; how is your relationship like off screen?”

She frowned at this question.

Standing aside, the quietly listening stylist tensed a bit and immediately shifted her gaze onto the artist.

After pondering for a second, the actress calmly replied, "We get along pretty well."

The editor-in-chief broke into a cold sweat. "Pretty well in what way?"

The editor-in-chief thought, This actress isn't cooperative at all. How can she be clueless on how to create hype at all?

Chapter 1410 Burying the Hatchet 6

Yun Shishi smilingly replied, "Gu Xingze is a senior who looks out for his juniors. He gives me a lot of tips. Whenever I faced issues during filming, he would go out of his way to help me."

The editor-in-chief was unhappy with her ambiguous answer and relentlessly threw out one heavy-weight question after another in an attempt to create a buzz. "Is he your ideal type?"

This question caught the interviewee by surprise.

She looked at the host, whose eyes were burning with curiosity and... ambition.

Suddenly, she realized her motive.

This editor-in-chief had apparently prepared so many tricky questions in order to get a blast from her replies.

This question was quite a tough one.

If she answered 'yes', then the other would naturally follow up with even tougher questions... or disdainful topics.

However, answering 'no' would be offensive.

Besides, the production team and her agency were trying to stir up speculations between them for publicity's sake. Although she did not agree with their approach, this was Qin Zhou's idea and an official strategy put in place by her agency. If she were to mess this up, her manager would definitely give her an earful.

She gave an impeccable reply after mulling it. "I believe he's the ideal type for many girls!"

This was a cunning reply and one that even the editor-in-chief could not find fault with. There was no way the latter could continue bombarding her.

Andy, at one side, was flabbergasted.

She thought that the actress would take advantage of it by fanning the gossip around her and the superstar!

Unexpectedly, the woman had neatly avoided it altogether.

She cast Yun Shishi a dubious look, finding the woman too strange to comprehend. Why is she giving up such a good chance to create news for herself?

Maybe, she's trying to loosen the reins now to grasp the audience better?

The editor-in-chief was greatly provoked by this and kept dropping difficult questions one after another—

“Then, do you think Xingze is the type that you like?”

“Of course! Yin Xiachun, the character that I depicted in the movie, worked so hard to pursue him!”

“Do you find him a perfect idol?”

“This is indubitable. He's a perfect idol and a senior worthy of respect.”

“...”

The editor-in-chief was again rendered speechless by her answers.

“Do you think that you are his ideal type?”

“For this... you must ask the senior himself!”

“In the movie, the character that Yang Mi portrayed shared many scenes with Xingze's character. Between you and her, who do you think is closer to the ideal type he has in his mind?”

“Me, I guess.”

The editor-in-chief's eyes lit up; the actress had finally given an audacious reply.

As a junior, she unabashedly ripped off Yang Mi's face with this ostentatious answer!

Hence, she followed the lead without delay. “Why?”

The interviewee smiled cheekily in dismay. “That's because we are the couple in the show! Don't try to break us up, alright?”

The editor-in-chief was thoroughly fumbled by now. Though annoyed and speechless, she found it hard to get upset with the actress when she saw her mischievous and forlorn look.

Among all the artists she had interviewed so far, this one was probably the one that made her feel the most helpless.

Qin Zhou had specifically reminded her to create news and buzz surrounding this thespian rumor.
