

Sweet Love 3881

Chapter 3881: A Perfect Match (73)

Su Ning did not expect to spend a night with her idol. Except, she did not expect Tang Yu, whom she held in high esteem, to be so frivolous.

It was for such a man that she had fallen out with her family without even thinking twice, and turned her back on them. However, perhaps because of their intimate relationship, Su Ning's attitude towards Tang Yu had changed slightly.

After that incident, she continued to follow Tang Yu in the studio city and paid attention to everything about him. But during the fans gathering, she inexplicably felt that she was a level higher than the other fans.

She was special and different! Because she had slept with Tang Yu! She had once been intimate with Tang Yu! The other fans could only admire and look at Tang Yu from a distance. Whereas she had been into Tang Yu's room and spent an eventful night with him...

Gradually, she became ambitious. After leaving Tang Yu's room that day, she did not follow his instructions to buy the morning-after pills. It was deliberate. She didn't know if she could get pregnant, having slept with him only once, but if she could, it would have been a bond God had given her and Tang Yu. She had to cherish this opportunity. This way, she might be able to advance from a fan to Tang Yu's girlfriend!

In the fans group, many fans envied her. This was because she had been in close contact with Tang Yu. Of course, she wouldn't tell the other fans about that day. She only said that she had been in close contact with Tang Yu. The envy of the other fans gave her a sense of accomplishment!

A month after this chance encounter, she found herself pregnant. However, this pregnancy came at a very bad time. At that point, she was already at the end of her rope. She couldn't even afford to pay her rent anymore. Hence, she took the pregnancy test result and mustered her courage to go to the hotel where Tang Yu was staying. She wanted to see him.

After finding out that Tang Yu was not at the hotel, she called him and told him about the pregnancy.

Tang Yu's first reaction was that she was lying to him! "Speak up! Tell me, what is your ulterior motive!?"

Tang Yu was obviously furious when he found out. "Was that night a set up?!" He obviously thought that Su Ning had deliberately set him up that night. "Didn't I tell you to take the pill?! Why? Didn't you take it?"

Su Ning stammered and said that she had forgotten.

Tang Yu scoffed. "Forgot!? I think you did it on purpose! Let's not talk about anything else for now. First of all, I have to wonder if you're really pregnant! We've only done it once. How could it have been so coincidental!? Besides, even if you're really pregnant, how can I be sure that the child is mine?!"

Tang Yu clearly didn't believe that she had gotten pregnant so coincidentally, after only one night together?

Su Ning could not defend herself. She only said that she had really panicked and forgotten about it.

Each of them had their own agenda. One wanted to use the child to bind Tang Yu. The other was trying to shirk all responsibilities.

Tang Yu refused to acknowledge this matter. In fact, he warned her repeatedly, "If you dare mess with me, I swear I'll teach you a lesson!"

His words completely pushed Su Ning into the abyss of despair.

Chapter 3882: A Perfect Match (74)

Now, the little life growing in her belly represented her growing hope.

Su Ning knew in her heart that she had deliberately not taken the contraceptive pill back then because she was thinking that if she was lucky enough to get pregnant, she could at least use this child to ask Tang Yu to take responsibility. However, she had clearly miscalculated.

In her mind, Tang Yu was supposedly a very responsible male idol, just like he usually was in front of his fans. He was gentle, responsible, and knew how to take care of people. He even made it clear that he loved children, and if he had the chance in the future, he would want to have three children, preferably girls, for he loved little princesses.

He was merely selling his persona. All the male stars said similar things. A dashing man who loved children and doted on his wife and children was undoubtedly the target of many women's fantasies. But Su Ning had clearly confused fantasy with reality.

Now that Tang Yu had taken on this new film, he was counting on it to gain visibility and increase his popularity. When the drama aired, the team even thought of doing a tie-up with Hua Jin and the production team to create more publicity.

With Tang Yu's looks and the recent bit of fame that he had found, he could definitely become a popular celebrity even if he'd never be as huge as Hua Jin. Was he really going to give up this great future for a fan who was only a one-night stand and a yet-to-be-fully-developed child? Was it possible?

It was a downright joke.

Responsibility, being responsible?

That was just a fan's own wishful thinking!

Su Ning couldn't take the blow, so she jumped off the building. This was also unexpected to Tang Yu.

/

But, the thing was...

Was Su Ning really pregnant with his child?

Of course, Tang Yu did not feel sorry for the child. However, if the final autopsy report were to be released with the child's genetic identification pointing to him, then there would be no way to clear his name!

Evidence never lies!

Tang Yu's head hurt. He had been counting on making Hua Jin the scapegoat. But he had obviously missed one thing.

Where the child was concerned, he had always suspected that Su Ning was lying to him and had other motives.

However...

"Brother Ting, what should we do?" Tang Yu fidgeted anxiously. "Do you think the pathologist will be able to find out who the child's biological father is through the autopsy?"

"Generally, DNA samples taken from a cadaver's uterus would be sent to a database for testing and comparison. If it's really your child, it'll show up."

Tang Yu turned pale with fear.

"So, I have to ask you, is this child really yours!?"

Tang Yu shook his head in confusion. "I don't know. I really don't know... I thought she was lying to me. Back then, we only had one night together. How could we have ended up with a child so easily? Could it have been another man's?"

"Well, we won't know that!" Things suddenly got tricky. "I had originally wanted to divert attention from the matter, but I didn't expect that bitch to really be pregnant..."

"Hua Jin is still being investigated at the police station. Public opinion on the Internet has begun to reverse. Many marketing account owners have been frightened by the legal notice from Qin Zhou's lawyer and they have stopped publicizing this matter. However, public opinion is still under control for the time being and has not pointed to you. If this woman is indeed pregnant with your child, I'll see if I can use some means to suppress the rumors."

Chapter 3883: A Perfect Match (75)

"Now, this is all we can do. Whatever it is, let's suppress this commotion first!"

Tang Yu paused and sighed. "I didn't expect this to happen! I never expected Su Ning to jump off a building."

The manager said angrily, "In the future, you should be more careful! After all, you're a public figure, and your reputation is slowly rising! In the future, there will be more and more bloodsuckers crouching in wait for you. You'd better clear up your private life and make sure you don't get involved with these shady characters!" He continued, "Remember, you're a commodity now. Don't always think about what you used to be! If you lose your resources because of such a thing, just be aware that the higher-ups can crush your career!”

Tang Yu said somewhat guiltily, “Understood...”

At the police station.

Hua Jin and Liang Yin had given their statements and walked out of the police station. Qin Zhou was waiting outside.

When the actor saw the manager, he came over to him with a gloomy expression and cursed angrily. “These policemen are so annoying! They ask a question over and over again. A dozen times! I almost went crazy answering them! Are they treating me like a suspect?”

Qin Zhou consoled him and said, “Alright, since the interrogation is over, let’s leave quickly! It’s not that they’re treating you as a suspect. You’re witnesses, the last two people who saw Su Ning alive. Therefore, they must focus on collecting your testimony. For the sake of the validity of the testimony, they’ll have to ask the questions repeatedly and check it.”

The actor was on the verge of throwing up. Liang Yin also looked very tired. She suddenly understood why Hua Jin had looked so wary when she had tried to engage with the girl. She now understood he was worried about her getting into trouble.

/

Hua Jin asked, “What’s the word going around now?”

“Many of the marketing accounts are still hyping it up and claiming that the girl was your lover.”

“Are they still writing about me sleeping with my fans?” The actor was furious. “This is outrageous! Who’s behind this?!”

Liang Yin was stunned to hear this. The moment the situation happened, she had been taken to the police station immediately, so she had no idea what had transpired. When Hua Jin mention this, she was shocked that someone actually suspected him of sleeping with his fans?!

How did such a crazy suggestion come about?

Liang Yin said anxiously, “What’s going on? What do you mean sleeping with fans? What exactly happened?”

The manager glanced at Hua Jin and shook his head. “It’s not convenient to talk here,” he said to Liang Yin, “Let’s get in the car and head back to the hotel!”

The actor and Liang Yin exchanged glances. Feeling ill at ease, she didn’t comment, but got into the car with him.

In the car, the agent said to Hua Jin, “Right now, many of the marketing accounts on the Internet are speculating that you and the girl were in a secret relationship. But don’t worry, I’ve got all the material evidence, right now we don’t have to rush into clarifying anything.”

Liang Yin was rather worked up when she heard this, and said anxiously, "Why?! By the way, aren't these marketing accounts too much?! Why shouldn't we clarify this as soon as possible?"

Qin Zhou smiled and winked mysteriously at Hua Jin and Liang Yin. "Be patient and enjoy the show!"

When Liang Yin heard this, she still did not understand what was going on.

However, the actor began to see his manager's intentions. He was planning to fight back. Except, there was something else he couldn't quite understand.

Chapter 3884: A Perfect Match (76)

"What's going on with these marketing accounts? It's impossible for so many of them to publish such a significant but negative piece of news in such a coordinated manner. Someone must be behind it."

"What do you think?" Qin Zhou spoke slowly and deliberately. "Whose child is the girl carrying? If this were to come to light, who would bear the brunt of it?"

The actor frowned suspiciously. "Could it be... Tang Yu?"

At the mention of this name, Liang Yin was stunned.

"Impossible!" She knitted her brow tightly. "Tang Yu couldn't have done something so outrageous, could he?"

Hua Jin kept silent. He could understand that. Liang Yin was Tang Yu's fan. No matter how things changed, she would still have some feelings for him.

Qin Zhou responded expressionlessly, "Huh. Do you think what you're seeing is real? Liang Yin, you're still too green. As long as it's something you see on TV, even if it's a reality show or an interview, there's always a script for all the created persona."

Liang Yin was stunned. She hesitated for a moment before she quickly explained, "I'm not protecting Tang Yu or anything. Don't misunderstand. It's just... Tang Yu wouldn't do such a vicious thing, right?!"

Qin Zhou replied flatly, "People will do anything for their own benefit. That's the norm in showbiz."

Hua Jin continued keeping silent. In fact, he had already guessed who the mastermind was. Although he had his suspicion, he had never dared to confirm it. But now if his manager had said so, then it must be true.

Qin Zhou said to Hua Jin, "I'll postpone your activities for the next two days. Media interviews will be suspended as well. The crew will stay out of the scenes for the time being. Stay in the hotel. When the time comes, let's see how they respond!"

After a pause, he said slowly, "I'm rather curious to see how they'd respond if we just sit back and bide our time."

Liang Yin and Hua Jin did not say anything after this. After arriving at the hotel, the two of them returned to their own rooms.

However, upon returning to her room, Liang Yin pondered the details of this matter. She felt that if she had listened to Hua Jin and not meddled in other people's business, perhaps she would not have caused such trouble!

Tang Yu.

Was it really Tang Yu?

She'd never have imagined that the Prince Charming of her dreams would have such a dirty side to him.

Did Tang Yu really hire trollers to incite public opinion to discredit Hua Jin? How could he do that? It was too much. If that was really the case, Liang Yin could not forgive himself.

She was restless, so she got up and went to Hua Jin's room. She stood at the door and knocked softly.

After a while, the actor opened the door. He was surprised to see her.

"What's the matter?"

"Hua Jin... can I come in and talk? Is it convenient?"

He grunted and stepped aside.

Liang Yin stepped inside and shut the room door.

Hua Jin walked over to the sofa calmly, sat down, and looked at her. "Yes, what is it?"

Liang Yin asked cautiously, "This time round... am I in big trouble?"

"I should have listened to you... The time I saw the girl crouching in the corner. I shouldn't have gone forward..."

At first, he didn't understand what she was driving at, but when he finally understood it was because of this, he smiled. "So it's because of this matter?"

"Well... it seems that because of this, I've caused you quite a bit of trouble!"

Chapter 3885: A Perfect Match (77)

Although Qin Zhou was definitely capable of settling it, she still felt very guilty about this matter.

Hua Jin said, "Maybe this matter isn't necessarily a bad thing! Since Tang Yu is ambitious to the extent that he dares to do such a thing, he must be prepared to accept the consequences. He's committing career suicide, causing trouble for Huanyu like this."

He paused, then started again, "But you can't blame him. Artistes don't have much autonomy at all. Besides, they are just commodities, from the company's perspective."

"Commodities?"

“That’s right, there’s no dignity to speak of.” Perhaps feeling somewhat emotional, he let out a long sigh and picked up his beer from the coffee table. “Want some?” he asked.

Liang Yin glanced at it. In the past, she would have refused. She didn’t like to drink, and couldn’t hold alcohol. A few glasses of beer could get her drunk.

She watched as the actor leaned back on the sofa with a tired but cynical look on his face. He picked up his beer can and took one sip after another. For some reason, he gave her a sense of immense loneliness.

For the first time, Liang Yin nodded. “Sure. But I’m not a good drinker.”

“There isn’t much beer around here anyway, even if you wanted more.” He went to the small cooler and pulled out the bottles.

Liang Yin glanced over, and was startled by the spectacle. “That much? Will we be able to finish all that?”

“Just because you can’t hold your liquor doesn’t mean I can’t.”

Liang Yin sat down beside Hua Jin, took a can of beer and sipped. She drank more delicately, one mouthful after another.

The actor, however, had already gulped down his beer. His gaze was empty as he stared aimlessly at the ceiling. “Do you know how I got into the entertainment industry?” he asked coolly.

“It must have been your dream to be an actor?” She continued, “Besides, you’re so delicate-looking. Did the talent scout pick you out from the crowd?”

“I was sold into the entertainment industry by my father.” The actor smiled serenely, his lips curving in what might have been mockery, but was also a reflection of the resentment in his eyes. He sipped his beer and took another swig. His expression clouded over. “My very own father...”

When Liang Yin heard this, she suddenly realized! No wonder he hadn’t reacted in disbelief or consoled her after she’d expressed her hatred for her parents’ heartlessness. “Because irresponsible parents like that do exist,” he had said coldly.

So... was his father also a selfish, irresponsible man? He sold him into the entertainment industry?

“My father used to drink, gamble, and take drugs. He hated me because my mother’s blood ran in my veins. They say when you love someone, you will love everything associated with her. But it’s the same with hating someone. He hated me, so when he was being hunted by loansharks, he sold his own son almost without hesitation.” Somehow the actor suddenly brought up his past.

These were things he hardly ever mentioned to anyone apart from Yun Shishi. In the first place, he shouldn’t have mentioned this to Liang Yin. But for some reason, he told her these things quite naturally.

Instead, he said, "Didn't you say back then that I got to the top through performing sexual favors too? Well, you're not wrong."

Chapter 3886: A Perfect Match (78)

The actor put down his beer can, looked hard at it, and smiled frankly. "Yes, that's right. I got to where I am by performing sexual favors. I was kept a man several times previously. You can think of me as a pretty boy or a canary in a cage. Anyway, I don't have the right to choose my own life!"

At that time, he was doing well in school. He had always hoped that by studying, he would be able to get into the university of his choice. After graduation, he would have a good job. Then, he would have a wife he loved deeply and his own family to go home to. But his hopes were dashed when his mother left home.

The endless gambling debts, the scares, the unease, the turbulent life, left him with no sense of security.

"At the time, I knew my father had sold me. But at that moment, I actually felt grateful that I could finally be free of that man!" Before he knew it, the actor had downed four cans of beer, and his voice sounded distant.

He could hold his liquor very well to begin with. After all, he'd been escorting and drinking for many years. In order to cater to his financial backers, he developed a good tolerance for alcohol. However, perhaps it was because of the soul swap.

Liang Yin's tolerance for alcohol was pathetic. She could not hold a drink at all. Therefore, Hua Jin, who was now occupying her body, inherited her pitiful tolerance for alcohol as well. To the extent that he got drunk after only a few cans of beer.

"I don't even know how I managed for many years after I left my father. But I did believe that if I were to get through it, there would be a light at the end of the tunnel." Hua Jin turned to her suddenly and said, "Do you have any idea how hard I've worked for my freedom and to get where I am today?"

His eyes were bloodshot, and his voice became extremely cold. "I won't allow anyone to ruin all my efforts! No one!"

The actor drained his can of beer again and shook his head, clearly frustrated. "Strange. Why am I telling you all this."

"..."

Liang Yin had not expected him to tell her these things. She actually found it rather heartwarming. Did that mean he considered her a close friend?

"I know that Tang Yu's popularity is on the rise and nothing must go wrong at this point. If word gets out that the girl was pregnant with his child, maybe he'll lose his reputation without good public relations. Hence he wants to make me a scapegoat, use me and crush my reputation in order to move up."

“He...”

“Don’t trust the superficial impressions of a celebrity.” The actor laughed at himself. “Just like how I’m supposed to be the number one period drama actor... I always have to pay attention to my dressing and how I present myself to my fans. I have to be polite, like a delicate, beautiful man.”

He had had enough of this role-playing. It was no different from following a script every day. Even when asleep, he must not forget his persona.

“When I’ve made enough money, or, when I meet someone I like, I’ll opt for retirement. Quit show business, get married, have kids, whatever I do in the future. I’ll never be an actor.” As he said this, Hua Jin inhaled deeply. “How much effort did I put in, to be where I am today?! That’s why I won’t let Tang Yu get away with it! He wants to destroy me. Heh, we’ll see!”

Chapter 3887: A Perfect Match (79)

Liang Yin had always been easily intoxicated. However, for some reason, even after two cans of beer, she wasn’t drunk at all. It was Hua Jin, on the contrary, who had had too much to drink and started babbling.

Perhaps it was because she was drunk that she spoke incoherently and said random things. Liang Yin listened attentively. Just like that, he rambled on about all his highs and lows in life, from his childhood until he entered the entertainment industry. Then gradually, as he spoke, his eyelids grew heavy. Finally, he fell asleep leaning against Liang Yin.

Liang Yin leaned back on the sofa with Hua Jin’s head resting on her shoulder, its weight making her feel strangely at peace. She didn’t dare move, afraid that if she did, the actor would wake up. So she kept her position and stayed that way. Feeling tired, her eyes fell shut as well.

Early morning, daybreak.

Hua Jin woke up from the cold. Despite the heating in the room, by dawn the air was thick with chill and dew, and the temperature had cooled further. He was wearing thin clothes, and he was sober. He opened his eyes at once and looked out of the window. The sky was beginning to lighten.

He felt himself leaning against someone’s shoulder. When he looked up, he saw that Liang Yin’s eyes were closed. She was sitting on the sofa, allowing him to rest against her shoulder. She maintained the position and did not move.

Beer cans were scattered across the coffee table.

The actor felt awkward. He was a grown man yet he felt like a little bird leaning on her shoulder like this!

He nudged her awake gently.

“Hey!”

Liang Yin woke up immediately. She was a light sleeper to begin with, so with a light push, she was awake. However, at this point, her shoulder was so sore that it was about to fall apart.

“Oooh...” She clutched her shoulder, wincing as if she’d dislocated it.

When Hua Jin saw her pained expression, he realized, having fallen asleep against her shoulder, she would have been sore from taking the weight.

The actor was highly amused. “Did you just stay in this position and not move?”

Liang Yin replied sullenly, “How else? You were drunk last night. I was afraid that if I moved, you’d wake up and start a scene. That’s why I kept still.”

Hua Jin said with unease, “Who says I’m drunk? I’m not drunk. Besides, I don’t start a scene when I’m drunk.”

He paused, then said with disgust, “Is it because you can’t hold your alcohol? I used to drink. This little beer won’t make me dizzy.”

“I... I can’t hold my liquor very well.” Liang Yin rolled her shoulders and stood up. “I... I’m going to my room to rest!” she muttered.

Looking at her solitary silhouette, Hua Jin recalled that his tone just then was rather unpleasant. In addition, he had slept on her shoulder for a long time. She did not complain, as if she was afraid of waking him up. She just stood there motionless, looking most adorable.

Hua Jin suddenly asked her, “Have you ever watched the sunrise?”

Liang Yin turned around, puzzled, and shook her head.

The actor winked conspiratorially. “I know a place where you can catch a beautiful sunrise.”

Liang Yin’s eyes flashed with anticipation. “Really?”

On the rooftop of the hotel.

The actor unlocked the door and exchanged a mischievous look with Liang Yin. She crept after the actor, pushed open the door, and stepped out onto the roof.

Chapter 3888: A Perfect Match (80)

The wind was strong and cold on the rooftop of the hotel, so both of them had put on large cotton jackets.

This hotel was the most luxurious hotel in the studio city. The rooftop was on the 25th floor. This was the best time to watch the sunrise.

The studio city was surrounded by mountains that were also being developed by the consortiums to film special scenes. Many period dramas and anti-war films were filmed against this backdrop. And because the location was surrounded by mountains, there was no obstruction on all sides. The horizon was immediately visible.

The endless mountain range, the distant horizon... red, orange, and yellow in a graduated transition from the horizon to the arc of the skies above. It was unbelievably beautiful.

Holding Liang Yin's hand, the actor walked to the edge of the roof and sat down. At first, Liang Yin was a little nervous and hesitant about sitting on the edge of the rooftop, with her feet dangling in the air so far up from the ground. If she accidentally fell off, she'd fall all the way down and be pulverized on impact.

Hua Jin, on the other hand, sat down as if it was nothing. Liang Yin stood to the side, nervously refusing to sit.

He looked up at her, puzzled.

"Aren't you going to sit?"

Liang Yin shivered. "Must we sit in this horrible place and watch the sunrise? If we fall, we're finished."

"You won't. Just don't move around. What's the difference between sitting here and sitting on the sofa? If you think it's scary, it's just psychological!"

For some reason, his words seemed to strike a chord in her!

It was true. What difference was there between sitting on the rooftop edge and sitting on the sofa? However, under the sofa was flat ground, and under the roof was an endless stretch of space.

It was like rehearsing with the actor in the room. She didn't feel nervous at all. But when they were on the set, when the director and the other actors were there, she couldn't help but start to feel nervous.

It was just a psychological perception!

Deliberately not looking into the thin air beneath her feet, Liang Yin carefully sat down beside Hua Jin. Even though she told herself repeatedly that there was nothing to be afraid of, as long as she sat still, she wouldn't fall, she was nervous nevertheless.

Hua Jin pointed to the distant horizon. "See there?"

She was quickly distracted. "Yes... I see it!"

"This is the best place to sit and watch the sunrise." He took a deep breath of the fresh morning air, it was damp with the chill of the frost.

He said calmly, "You know, I remember back in the days when I was a teenager, I did my first shoot as an actor on the set. I was badly bullied. At the time, I was young and living in the cracks every day. I felt so depressed. I thought, since living is so tiring, I might as well end my life."

Liang Yin was slightly surprised to hear this. He didn't look the type to get depressed. How could he... have such a dark past?

He arched an eyebrow, as if he could read her thoughts. "Do you find it incredible?"

"Mmmm?"

"You never thought I'd be so vulnerable."

“Uh huh...” Liang Yin muttered, “I think you’re simply favored by the heavens. You’re so good-looking and have so many fans who like you. Even if you weren’t famous at that time, with your capability, you would have inevitably become famous. Why did you take things so hard?”

Chapter 3889: A Perfect Match (81)

Confused, the actor shook his head. “I don’t know. I just didn’t think there was much joy in life. At the time, I was either filming or lying down in a hotel room. And I ate little. I kept contemplating where people came from and where they were heading. What was the point of living, of being in this world?”

His question stumped Liang Yin.

Indeed, what is the purpose of life?

She couldn’t figure it out either.

“At that time, I came up here, and I felt an urge to jump off the roof. But I was sitting at the edge of the roof when the sun rose. I didn’t know why, but I just watched it quietly. Strangely, while it was a cold day... as cold as it is today, as I watched the sun rising bit by bit, the bright morning light seemed to sweep away all the gloom in my heart.” Hua Jin smiled as he continued, “It was amazing. At the time, I actually thought about how great it was to be alive, to be able to see such a beautiful sight. I wouldn’t have been able to see it if I were dead! As long as we live, miracles will happen. If we died, perhaps we will be missing all these.”

...

Very stealthily, on the horizon, a fiery disc slowly rose.

The horizon grew brighter. At that moment, the clouds in the sky seemed to have caught fire. It was breathtakingly beautiful!

Liang Yin was deeply stunned by the scene before her!

It was gorgeous, incredibly and unbelievably so. It was no wonder that when Hua Jin first saw such a beautiful sight, life seemed wonderful all at once.

There was so much beauty in the world, just like this fascinating landscape.

The actor said, “I hope the day will come when I no longer have to film, or be an actor. I’ll have a family and a woman I love. Then, together, we’ll go to Wineglass Bay in Tasmania, Australia. We’ll visit the sinister Chitradurga Castle, the Blue Caves on the Greek island of Zakynthos, and the ice canyon in Greenland... but before that, I must work hard and save a lot of money.”

Liang Yin sighed. “What a beautiful dream.”

“Isn’t it!” The actor glanced at her, his charming eyes seeming to sparkle with stars. When he looked at her, she actually tensed. Her heart was pounding, and she didn’t know where to place her hands.

Apparently oblivious to her nervous expression, Hua Jin continued, "Better than guarding this empty skyscraper. Living in the city is depressing every day. Actually, there are many beautiful places in the world. We just can't imagine them."

Liang Yin looked at Hua Jin's breathtakingly beautiful profile and suddenly felt envious. It wasn't Hua Jin that she envied. Instead, it was the girl who would be by his side in the future, to see the beauty of the world with him. How lucky!

"I want to travel the world too." Liang Yin said, "If I had the money, I'd love to go to the beach. The oceans would be beautiful, but I've never seen the real ocean!"

"I'll take you after we wrap up the filming."

When Liang Yin heard this, her mood inexplicably soared! "Really? It's a promise. Don't go back on your word."

"Yes, of course. Anyway, I was planning to take a vacation to Bali after the shoot."

"Bali! Wow..."

Bali was a beautiful spot that she'd never even dared to dream of going to.

Chapter 3890: A Perfect Match (82)

Liang Yin sighed. However a thought suddenly struck her. She probed, "But if we can't get back into our own bodies for the rest of our lives, what... what's going to happen to your dream?"

The actor's face fell. "Can you not say such discouraging things?"

Liang Yin fell silent. She suppressed a smile and pretended to be serious. "When the time comes, I'll oblige and play the role of that girl accompanying you. I'll travel the world with you. How does that sound?"

"You don't stand to lose out anyway!" Liang Yin nudged his arm gently and negotiated, "If we can't get our own bodies back, I'll act for you and make money for you. Then, we'll travel the world together. How about that?"

He shot her a look of disdain. "There's no way we can't swap back"

Liang Yin asked indignantly, "But what if?"

The actor closed his eyes in agony. "I choose to kill myself."

"Why!?" Liang Yin was terrified. She did not know if he was being serious.

He asked her solemnly, "What do you think will happen to us if we can't swap back?"

"What will happen?"

"I'm obviously a man, but trapped in a woman's body. What will I do if I meet a girl I like in the future?"

“Indeed.”

“Am I supposed to bend her so that she likes girls and not men?”

Liang Yin burst out laughing. “What if you successfully bend her, and at this point we swap back? Hahaha!”

The actor’s expression darkened. ?I can’t believe she finds that funny.

Liang Yin tried to suppress her laughter and suggested solemnly, “Since you’re a girl now, you might as well reverse your sexual orientation. You can try to like men. Maybe you’re a closet bisexual.”

“...”

Like men!? How was that possible! This was simply... as disastrous as the end of the world.

Oddly, Gong Jie’s face suddenly popped into Hua Jin’s mind.

Just the thought of that man made him shudder. The thought of him naked and in bed with Gong Jie beneath him, filled him with revulsion!

“No way!” The actor said sullenly, “It’s such a disgrace to be pinned under a man!”

“Actually, it’s good to be a girl! You’re just not used to the idea.”

The actor shot back, “So, are you willing to fall for a girl?”

Liang Yin nodded matter-of-factly. “Of course. Of course I would be willing.”

“Oh?” The actor suddenly leaned towards her and said wickedly, “Well, if you say so,” he breathed meaningfully, “tomorrow, I’ll go try out a man and see if I’m a closet bisexual. Let’s see if I have a thing for men...”

Liang Yin immediately reacted! She quickly protested, ‘No!’

“Why not?”

The actor put on a solemn expression, “Didn’t you say I should try? Maybe I might really like dating men!”

“You...” Liang Yin immediately changed her tune and said, “We don’t know if we can swap back! What if we can?”

“Then, I’ll break up with that man.” The actor said casually, “Maybe, like you said, I might actually like men. And you might fall for a girl, too.”

Liang Yin immediately realized that Hua Jin was only teasing her!
