Chapter 1161

“Grandma, no. You’re overthinking.”

Willow sighed and poured a cup of coffee for Old Madam Quinn.

“Willow, you have no idea the darkness of the business circle.

“People are only after profit, and businessmen put profit as their priority.

“Sean is still useful, so Reach For Will Group will try to meet his requirements.

“Once Reach For Will Group takes over River City, Sean will no longer be useful, and everything you have now will be gone.

“They’ll probably take back the villa you’re living in too.”

Old Madam Quinn was silent for two seconds before continuing to persuade Willow.

“Grandma, that’s enough!”

Willow suddenly got up and yelled as she looked at Old Madam Quinn.

She had never expected Old Madam Quinn to be so unreasonable.

Sean had done so much, and she had learned the truth.

However, Old Madam Quinn still refused to believe that Sean was competent and was unwilling to accept Sean.

It was pushing Willow’s patience to the limit.

She had also lost interest in talking to Old Madam Quinn.

“I’m not pulling your leg.”

Old Madam Quinn curled her lip, still feeling upset.

"Okay, Leah. You and Candy should go to bed."

Willow replied and entered Sean's room.

In the room, Sean was talking to someone on the phone.

Willow sensibly walked lightly and sat aside.

She sat next to Sean when he put down his phone.

“Are they gone?”

Sean asked with a smile as he put down his phone.

“Sean, I thought they would have a different attitude this time.

Willow was apologetic.

One was the man she loved, and the other was her family.

She wanted to smooth things over between Sean and the Quinn family.

However, it was a difficult thing to do, and she did not like being caught in the middle. 1

However, Willow knew that Sean was not to blame.

Sean was never after the Quinn family’s fortunes.

He even helped the Quinn family for Willow.

However, the Quinn family not only did not know how to appreciate it but was also stubborn.

Feeling helpless, Willow had no choice but to feel sorry for Sean.

“It’s because I didn’t handle this well enough.

“But they’ll soon come to terms with reality.”

Even quite a few people outside River City found out about it.

Those large corporations were discerning.

Many companies realized that the land downtown held huge business opportunities.

Therefore, many companies outside River City sent their representatives over for a field visit.

Some of the company's bosses even came to River City to discuss cooperation with Reach For Will Group.

River City was a small city.

However, it occupied a unique geographical location.

Dragon Kingdom's economy was developing fast, and it would not be long before it became a new economic hub.

River City would become an important economic hub in time.

The land here would also increase in price.

Whoever could get more River City resources before then would rise to the top at that time.

There was no doubt that Sean's foresight enabled him to control the whole of River City firmly before it took off.

Otherwise, he would not have spent so much time taking over River City.

Jason's mother—Old Madam Yeast's residence.

Sean had promised Jason he would come over to give Old Madam Yeast another checkup.

He would not go back on his word, of course.

He came here ahead of tomorrow's groundbreaking ceremony for the land downtown.

"It's not a big issue. Take some medicine and rest well."

Sean said quietly to Old Madam Yeast after taking her pulse.

"Whew!"

Jason and his sister Talia exhaled a sigh of relief.

They worshipped Sean for his medical skills.

After all, the hospital had told them that the illness was critical, practically declaring Old Madam Yeast's death imminent.

“Filial piety is important, and you are right to do so.

“You’re wrong about being selfish. How can you protect your family and country if you can’t even protect those around you?”

Sean nodded. Jason’s answer was what he wanted to hear.

If a person did not even care about their parents, they were not worth knowing.

If a person could casually abandon their biological parents who gave birth to them and raised them, how could they be trusted?

“Now that you have decided, I’ll also tell you the worst that could happen.

“If you ever do anything against me, you’ll bear the consequences.”

Sean tapped on the table as he spoke seriously.

After Jason made his choice, Sean would have more trust in him and involve him with more things.

If Jason wanted to betray him, Sean would have to pay a huge price.

Therefore, Sean had to make it clear to him.

“Don’t worry, Mr. Lennon.

“If I ever betray you, I’ll die a terrifying death in battle!”

Jason raised his hand and swore his loyalty on the spot.

Sean nodded and said no more.

Jason's assurance proved that Jason would help Sean if Sean ever confronted Blaze.

Jason's decision gave him another piece of leverage.

However, it was far from enough.

After parting with Jason, Sean planned to head to Reach For Will Group.

"Sean, over here!"

Willow was about to answer when she saw Sean walk through the door. She stood up and shouted softly.

Sean smiled at the sight of Willow and walked over.

"Sean, I'd like you to meet Jane Lidell, my childhood friend.

Jane, this is my fiancé, Sean Lennon."

Willow got up and introduced them to each other.

"Hello."

Sean nodded at Jane to greet her.

Not wanting to say much, Willow changed the topic.

She had initially restrained herself, but she was now open about her disdain for Sean.

“Babe, I’m looking out for you.

“Women have to take good care of themselves.

“You’re an heiress of the Quinn family.

“If getting a boyfriend lowers your living standards, you might as well not get one.”

Jane shook her head before finally adding.

Willow ignored her and continued looking at the menu.

Sean was uninterested in arguing with Jane, so he stayed quiet.

Willow slowly took her phone back.

She loved how Sean took over the conversation.

Jane’s mouth opened but said nothing.

“You! You!”

Jane said “You” a couple of times and suddenly slammed her phone on the desk.

It was loud, especially in this quiet restaurant.

Many diners and waiters turned their heads to look this way.

“What do you mean? What blood? Who are you scaring?”

Jane shouted through gritted teeth, not wanting to admit defeat.

“I only want to tell you that the fancy restaurants you visit and the designer bags you use are worthless to me.”

Sean reached over and tapped on the table with disdain in his eyes.

“Haha. Worthless? It’s the first time I’ve ever seen someone talk about poverty with such confidence.

“You can’t afford what you say is worthless!”

Jane lost her temper and lost her mind as she spoke louder.

“I don’t know the lives of the people are at the bottom of society, of course.

“And I don’t need those experiences because we don’t belong to the same class. So your so–called experience is nothing to me.”

Jane’s words upset some of the customers and waiters in the restaurant.

“Willow, my dad’s company is really successful now. I can talk to my dad if the Quinn family needs help.”

Jane instantly jumped up and grabbed Willow.

Looking at her shameless manner, Sean could not help but frown slightly.

“What are you looking at?

“Don’t you just act out to waiters?

“How does a bumpkin like you know anything about high society?

“My dad’s company is something you can only look up to for the rest of your life.”

Jane glanced at Sean and said with a sneer.

‘Jane’s company is at Joules Town.

“They came here for two days to attend the downtown groundbreaking ceremony for the land.”

Willow looked at Sean and explained pointedly.

“Oh...

“You’d better go home.

“Because you can’t even get through the gate.”

Sean smiled and slowly got up after speaking.

Bang!

Jane banged the table again.

“What do you mean? Who do you think you are? Do you think you have the final say?”

Jane looked at Sean and said through gritted teeth.

“Yes, I have the final say.

Willow looked at Jane's call and gently tapped to hang up.

"I can't believe Jane is such a snob now.

"She wasn't like this before."

Willow shook her head slightly. Had she known Jane was like this, she would never have agreed to a meal with her.

"You better stay away from such friends in the future."

Sean replied casually as he drove.

"Oh, I've lost all my friends since we got together!"

Speechless, Willow curled her lip and said to Sean.

"People ignore you when you're poor, but they'll try to visit you in the mountains when you're wealthy.

"They're mostly pointless socializing anyway. Why waste your time?"

"Having three or two true friends is enough."

Sean glanced at Willow and whispered in reply.

"Got it! Whatever you say."

Willow tilted her head and leaned on Sean's shoulder.

"By the way, are you going to the groundbreaking ceremony tomorrow?"

Sean asked Willow after recalling it.

"I was going to attend it.

"I heard Reach For Will Group made it a big deal. It's not just a groundbreaking ceremony.

"It's also an exchange summit for many rich businessmen. I'm attending it, of course!

"Besides, Lennon Group is also part of the Reach For Will Group. It wouldn't be right for me to skip it."

Willow nodded gently. Speaking of which, they were also Reach For Will Group employees, so they were attending it.

8 a.m.

The groundbreaking ceremony was already packed with people.

Besides the owners of River City companies, plenty of ordinary people came to jump on the bandwagon.

After all, there would be gift exchanges at such a large-scale groundbreaking ceremony.

Some were originally residents of the downtown area.

The first demolition of the old town would take place today.

Therefore, these people had also come to take a last look at their former residence.

The ceremony was crowded, and countless cars gathered from all directions.

It was very busy.

The area was divided into two.

There were no restrictions at the far end, and it was full of spectators.

If you wanted to enter, you must be a company or a party that Reach For Will Group had invited.

Either you were someone influential, or you had an invitation.

There were many security guards on site. Irrelevant people could forget about sneaking in.

The ceremony began at 9 a.m., and many company bosses had reached the venue.

The onlookers outside looked enviously at these successful people.
