Chapter 1201

Especially when Sean made eye contact with him.

Sean even had the feeling that the monk wanted to tell him something.

“Jeff, are you saying anyone should be honored to have him tell their fortune?”

Zander asked with a frown.

“Well... Not really. I never asked him to tell me my fortune.

“Some people believe this, while others don’t.”

Jeffrey smiled awkwardly before explaining quietly.

Soldiers like them had seen death many times. Most of them did not believe in the paranormal.

Jeffrey was one of them.

Sean looked at his watch and wanted to check it out.

He had never had his fortune told.

For some reason, he had the whim to do so today.

However, as Sean took two steps toward the monk, he saw Woody and his men walking outside.

Woody slowed down at the sight of Sean and his men.

Sean looked at Woody, hesitated for two seconds, and turned around to get into his car.

He did not want too much interaction with Woody and the rest.

It was not that he was scared, but I did not want to waste too much time on these people.

“Come on.

Sean called out, and Zander and Jeffrey immediately got in the car and drove off.

Only after Sean and the rest left did Woody get into his car.

Now they put ample investment, the place was buzzing.

Excavators, forklifts, and other large machinery were operating at the construction site.

Lennon Group focused on economics and trade.

Its branches included many fields—covering cosmetics, food and beverage, entertainment centers, and so on.

Reach For Will and Lennon Group complemented each other, doing a great job with River City's development.

Damian was also satisfied. Souza River even praised him.

After all, these two conglomerates solved many of the unemployment issues.

Besides that, Souza River was satisfied with River City's rapid development and rapid growth in GDP.

It was no exaggeration to say that today's River City not only developed rapidly but would also gain great support from the higher-ups.

That was when River City grew rapidly.

River City would probably be promoted to a first-rate city at the time, and its land value would increase many times.

Sean had gained control of River City before that happened.

It was a highly profitable business.

Meanwhile, Jason had personally gone to River City Airport. He picked up the two men and one woman to take them to the garrison station.

The trio were from the Northwest Army and were personally sent by the eight-star commander.

They were here to investigate Sean.

Jeffrey turned around to look, and his expression changed instantly.

This girl's name was Vicky Jameson. She was considered Tanya's best friend, so she knew Jeffrey.

Vicky disliked Jeffrey.

She was also the one who set up Tyson and Tanya.

Jeffrey blushed slightly, and his expression seemed more unnatural.

“Why are you panicking?”

Sean only glanced at Vicky before withdrawing his gaze.

“Commander, I...”

Jeffrey took a moment before it dawned on him.

He was no longer alone. He had Sean with him.

Jeffrey became more confident at the thought, and he stood straighter.

“Is it really you?”

Vicky immediately walked over after seeing him.

“Vicky, are they your friends?”

“I’m sorry, I didn’t know. You can serve them.”

The sales consultant, who had been serving Sean and the rest, immediately gave way.

After all, their commission was linked to their performance, and their company had a rule that they could not steal other people’s clients.

“No, no, no. Don’t. I wouldn’t dare serve him.”

However, Vicky waved her hand repeatedly and refused.

“Why?”

Several sales consultants present who heard that were confused.

Vicky had always liked stealing other people’s clients.

Why did she reject the client today?

"Yes... Just a moment!"

The sales consultant was about to process the transaction as her hands holding the bank card started trembling slightly.

"Wait!

"Riverside Villa is a single villa.

"It costs more than eighty million dollars. Are you sure there's that much money in the card?"

Vicky stepped forward and stopped the sales consultant.

Other sales consultants widened their eyes at the scene.

They dared not show any disrespect for Sean at this point.

Sean glanced at Vicky, not even interested in talking.

He was not interested in proving anything to Vicky.

He bought it because he needed it.

"Do it.

"You can show us the place when you're done."

Sean looked at the sales consultant and said indifferently.

"Yes! Yes!"

The sales consultant nodded again.

They continued talking, ignoring Vicky.

It made Vicky aggrieved.

“What?”

Sean asked indifferently after glancing at Vicky.

“Hmph! Was I talking to you?”

Vicky curled her lip before immediately smiling again and looking at Jeffrey.

“Jeffrey, Tanya asked me to hang out at your house tonight. Are you going to be home?”

Vicky’s attitude changed completely.

She believed Jeffrey must have deliberately hidden his identity like those on TV when he was actually wealthy!

She wanted to suck up to someone like that, of course.

“I’ve separated from her.

Jeffrey said solemnly, shaking his head slightly.

“What? You’ve separated?”

“Well... That’s great! Are you free tonight, Brother Jeffrey?”

“Why don’t we have dinner together?”

Unexpectedly, Tanya’s best friend since childhood, Vicky, was elated to hear that Tanya and Jeffrey had separated.

She was happy because she thought she had a chance now that Jeffrey had separated from Tanya.

Then a name slowly came to his mind.

Patrick Jenkins.

He was the deputy leader of the personal guards who were loyal to Sean.

He was Sean’s right-hand man, just like Zander.

He was brave and a good fighter, making great accomplishments at a young age.

Patrick would have had a bright future in the army if nothing went wrong.

However, he died in vain a year ago under Blaze’s wrong command.

“Commander...”

Zander took a deep breath and turned to look at Sean.

“Patrick’s gone?”

Sean asked solemnly after two seconds of silence.

“Patrick has been trying to get justice for you since you left.

“Blaze hates him because of it.

“He ordered Patrick to take the lead for any dangerous task.”

With that said, Zander clenched his fist, his heart filled with anger.

Patrick’s loyalty to Sean was no less than Zander’s.

Because of this, many people wanted justice for Sean after what happened to him, and Patrick was the most outspoken among them.

Zander tried to dissuade Patrick, but Patrick rebuffed him..

Zander could not tell him the truth, and he could only bear the shame and pretend to comply with Blaze. Blaze was not going to let the discontent Patrick do whatever her wanted.

Therefore, Zander suspected Blaze was involved in Patrick’s death.

Of course, Blaze was related to the deaths of so many comrades since Sean left.

Sean said nothing but made another mental note to hold Blaze accountable for another death he had done.

By the time he returned to the Northwest, he would list down everything and make Blaze pay double.

Besides the main road, the other paths in villages were dirt roads.
The car sped over, kicking up dust.

They had no time to pay attention to anything else.

The leader shouted angrily, and the gang rushed forward.

“What... What are you doing?”

A woman like Sally felt timid in the face of these strong young men.

However, no matter how timid she was, she refused to see her husband’s grave demolished!

“Does... Does the law exist in your eyes?”

Connie let out a long sigh as tears streamed down her face.

They had no men at home. The three of them consisted of an orphan and two widowed mothers. They were desperate in the face of such injustice.

“F*ck off!”

A young man reached out and shoved Sally and Connie away. He was about to start digging with the shovel.

The little girl wailed with fright.

Bang!

One of the young men raised his shovel and stuck it hard into the grave.

"A friend..."

Sally nodded gently.

However, she did not expect Patrick's friend to help them much.

"I'm sorry I'm a little late."

Sean looked at the photo like he was talking to Patrick but also Sally.

Patrick was his former right-hand man. How could he not know him?

In the Northwest Army, Sean was the commander, while they were his subordinates.

On the battlefield, they were brothers-in-arms!

Sean saved Patrick's life before.

People like Patrick and Zander had also defended against many attacks for Sean.

The bond between them was forged through countless battles and narrow escapes.

The depth of their relationship was beyond words.

Only they understood how priceless this relationship was!

Sean thought he could defeat their enemies and let all his brothers go home and live the rest of their lives in peace.

However, accidents might happen at any time. Sean did not expect someone to suddenly frame him, leaving him struggling to survive for two years.

Countless things had happened in the past two years.

The next time he met Patrick, he was already dead.

Sean knew how brutal the battlefield could be.

He had watched too many comrades die.

Therefore, he promised every soldier they would be honored as heroes and protect their families forever if they died in battle.

However, no one dared ignore his presence, even if he said nothing.

He seemed to have a powerful aura that gave people no choice but to submit to him.

“On your knees.”

Sean said indifferently as he stared straight ahead.

“You... you...”

The leader’s Adam’s apple rolled twice as his eyes were full of tension.

He did not know whether to run or fight.

“Do you know whose people we are?

“If you lay a hand on us, you’re doomed! You won’t survive Joules Town!”

The leader gritted his teeth as he continued talking tough.

“Kneel before talking to me.”

Sean looked at the leader, his tone still calm.

“On your knees!”

Zander stepped forward and ruthlessly kicked the young man in the face.

Bang!

The impact knocked down the young man.

The young men, who were knocked over earlier, obediently got up and knelt on the floor.

The scene left Sally and her family dumbstruck..

However, these fierce thugs were brought to kneel in front of Sean.

Patrick must have mentioned Sean when he visited his family.
Therefore, they knew a powerful person like Sean existed even if they had never met him.
“How can you be so cruel?”
Everyone was instantly stunned as soon as Sally spoke.
Jeffrey thought he could save the introduction since they knew Sean.
However, Jeffrey was dumbfounded by Sally and Connie’s attitude.
Zander and Jeffrey looked confused.
Sean was the only one unfazed, with no intention of retorting.
He could somewhat figure out what was on Sally and Connie’s minds.
“I gave you my son, and you...
“You gave me back his corpse, didn’t you?”
Connie glared at Sean with red eyes and said through gritted teeth.

Zander and Jeffrey instantly understood.

They wanted to calm her down but did not know how.

“Give me back my son! Give me back my son!”

Connie grew more agitated as she spoke. She grabbed Sean by the clothes and started yelling.

Zander and Jeffrey frowned and tried to stop her.
