Chapter 1241

“Mr. Lennon asked me to buy these.”

Zander handed the list to Sean.

“Aunt May, I didn’t buy too much, or it would expire if you have too much.

“I’ll have more delivered if you run out.”

Sean nodded gently and smiled as he replied in acknowledgment.

“Hsss!”

Everyone gasped sharply when they got Sean’s affirmation.

Several of the orphanage’s staff, who rushed over after getting word of the supplies, were also full of shock.

Albert and his group even dropped their jaws.

All these supplies and water purifiers were probably worth at least six figures.

Six figures—hundreds of thousands of dollars was probably only the cost of a meal for so many people.

However, it was a huge sum for the orphanage, which had no source of income.

These supplies could be a great help to the orphanage.

The world of children was always simple, kind, and clear.

They were happy and satisfied as long as they had food and fun.

Sean's gaze slowly moved across the children's faces.

He remembered people coming to the orphanage to donate supplies.

Sean was one of the children once. He looked at the charitable people with admiration as he held the item they donated.

Sean's role was now reversed.

May would grow old, and the orphanage could not close down.

Sean and the rest should take over the responsibility now that they had grown up.

Then the orphanage would not have raised them for nothing.

"Here. Say cheese!"

Holding her phone, Caitlyn stood next to Sean and took a group photo with the children behind her.

Sean's eyes lingered on Caitlyn's phone.

It was an old smartphone. Besides that, it was shabby, and the edges of the screen were cracked.

Every girl of Caitlyn's age had an Apple iPhone.

Caitlyn was so busy with the orphanage that she did not even have a chance to get a job.

However, Sean was not interested in his life.

“I don’t want to waste my time talking to you.

“See if I’ll slap you if I see you speak to Aunt May in that manner again.”

Sean glared coldly at Albert.

Swoosh!

Albert had no idea that Sean’s gaze would frighten him so hard that he took two steps back in shock.

“Hmph! Whatever.”

Albert said harshly and turned away with his group.

“Brother Sean, they didn’t leave to find jobs after growing up. They refused to leave.

“Then they got worse after mingling with some thugs.”

Caitlyn shook her head slightly and explained to Sean.

"Yes!"

Zander stopped asking questions and pushed the handbrake down.

Turning on the hazard lights and stepping on the gas pedal, they sped for Patrick's old home.

None of them spoke, but both were furious.

Dragon Kingdom's citizens took the deceased's peace seriously.

Patrick died in the service of his country. After he was killed in battle, his body was finally returned home to lie to rest.

However, someone destroyed his grave.

Who could accept that?

A brave soul had died on the battlefield to protect the country.

However, the people he protected would not even leave his grave alone after he died.

Anyone would be angry about that.

At work, Sean was Patrick's commander and was supposed to keep him safe.

Now that Patrick was dead, Sean had a responsibility to take care of the aftermath of his death.

Sean and Patrick were comrades, who fought side by side.

He would not allow Patrick to not have peace after his death.

On the other side.

The back of the hill where Patrick’s grave was at.

More than a dozen excavators were roaring away as they operated.

There were lots of workers around, working out.

The place where Patrick's grave once stood had been flattened.

Jeffrey was also there but was sitting on the floor. His face was swollen, and his clothes were tattered.

He came as soon as he got the news and did not tell Sally and her family.

However, he alone could not stop them. Instead, he was beaten up.

"You will all pay for this!

"No matter who you are and how rich your boss is, you are going to pay for this!"

With bloodshot eyes, Jeffrey gritted his teeth and stared angrily at the crowd.

"We didn't beat you hard enough, did we?

"Shut up!"

A young man stepped forward and kicked Jeffrey.

“Brother Teddy, he doesn’t seem easy to mess with...”

A young man stepped forward and approached the middle-aged man.

The middle-aged man was named Teddy Hill and looked stout.

Besides Tyga, he had the most power and lackeys within 100 kilometers.

Tyga had always overpowered him, so he could only take minor jobs that Tyga rejected.

Tyga had suddenly disappeared these two days, and even Tyga’s lackeys went their separate ways.

Teddy would not let go of such a good opportunity and immediately offered himself and his lackeys.

Then they got the job from the developer.

Teddy touched his chin and looked at Sean with a frown.

People who spent a lot of time on the street were always more perceptive than the average person.

There was something about Sean’s aura that alerted Teddy.

“Did Tyga disband his men because of him?”

A man behind Teddy also said with a frown.

“No way.”

Teddy waved his hand, and a dozen young men rushed over immediately.
These people had the same idea as Teddy, thinking Sean would not dare fight back.
“Commander, you don’t have to kill these nobodies with your sword! Let me do it!”
Zander frowned slightly and stepped forward.
“Let me do it today.”
Sean said quietly, sword in hand.
“Yes!”
Not daring to defy Sean, Zander immediately stopped.
Thud! Thud!

With hundreds of people watching, Sean strode forward with his sword.

Zander and Jeffrey's hearts raced as their heads buzzed.

They thought of the battle two years earlier.

That day, Sean led a million soldiers across the border.

He was already merciful not to sever the young man’s head.

“Bro. Brother Teddy, he did it! He really did it!”

The lackeys around Teddy widened their eyes.

They thought Sean was putting on a show and dared not strike.

However, Sean had shown them whether he would do it.

Sean's gaze grew colder.
With that said, Sean stepped forward and picked up speed.
"Get him! Kill him!"

The 70 or 80 young men yelled and rushed toward Sean.

Swoosh!

At least a dozen steel batons were swung at Sean at the same time.

However, Sean did not avoid them but met them head-on instead. His sword swept across the air.

Clang! Plonk!

The steel batons collided with the Guardian Sword.

The sound of steel striking each other kept ringing, accompanied by sparks from the impact.

Ding! Ding dong!

Sean wielded his sword and knocked back the young men in front of him.

The young men widened their eyes as the space between their forefingers and thumbs tingled. They could hardly hold their steel batons steadily.

Sean continued walking forward as if nothing were wrong.

“F*ck! What the h*ll?”

Everyone was stunned.

Sean’s strength surprised them.

There was a deathly silence.

Everything happened in the blink of an eye.

The people around did not even get a good look at Sean's movements.

Before they knew it, Teddy was kneeling at Patrick's grave.

The young men who tried to stop Sean had no idea how he ran past them.

"Tell me who am I now?"

Sean stood by Teddy's side with his sword.

The icy statement made everyone shudder.

Teddy was on his knees as blood flowed freely, staining his tattered clothes scarlet.

Everyone around was terrified.

He was alone with one sword, yet 70 or 80 men could not stop him.

He attacked alone and brought Teddy off the excavator. Then he forced him to kneel using a sword.

Was he human?

The sun shone down on Sean from the sky.

He was shining brightly as if his body had been coated with golden voile.

The Guardian Sword in his hand was stained with blood. Red blood flowed slowly along the blade as if it were a red sword.

Having slaughtered millions of soldiers in the Northwest, his sword was lethal.

Sean was so domineering and powerful that he intimidated everyone.

The crowd was terrified, not daring to speak.
