Chapter 1281

"It's good that the prescription is alright."

Being insightful, Leonard said indifferently, waving his hand.

"There's no problem with the prescription.

"But it's inappropriate to use it here."

Sean shook his head slightly and said casually.

The remark made the entire room fall silent again.

Everyone thought the whole thing would be over.

However, no one expected Sean to open his mouth again.

"Kid! Are you really that foolish?"

Anderson banged on the table and yelled at Sean.

"Anderson! Mr. Lennon is my guest. Watch your attitude!"

Andrew snorted coldly and yelled as he glared at Anderson.

"A guest? How dare he question Dr. Wester? What kind of guest is he?"

"Or do you think he's a better doctor than Dr. Wester?"

"Old Master Parker, can! feel your pulse?"

Sean turned his head slightly and looked directly at Old Master Parker.

He had just observed Old Master Parker's state of mind. He needed to feel his pulse if he wanted a 100% accurate diagnosis.

"Yes. Please feel free to do so, Mr. Lennon."

Old Master Parker smiled and nodded slightly.

Of course, he did not take Sean seriously. However, he did not refuse as he was polite.

With everyone watching, Sean grabbed Old Master Parker's wrist and felt the pulse change.

The men behind him looked disdainful, except for Andrew.

They were waiting for Sean to make a fool of himself.

"I'd like to see what he can diagnose."

Anderson curled his lip and sat in a chair, waiting.

“I would rather Old Master Parker have myasthenia gravis.

“But it’s obviously not that.”

Leonard shook his head slightly, still confident in his diagnosis.

All was well if Old Master Parker had myasthenia gravis.

It was because there was no precedent for curing amyotrophic lateral sclerosis. However, as long as you received the right treatment for myasthenia gravis, you had a good chance of recovery.

As long as you controlled it well, you would be like a normal person.

However, Leonard had confirmed repeatedly that Old Master Parker’s symptoms were not myasthenia gravis.

The others nodded in agreement with Leonard.

After all, Leonard and a dozen major hospitals had diagnosed the disease together.

Could they be no match for Sean?

However, Leonard was still resentful of having his diagnosis overturned.

“What you said can happen with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis.

“So we can’t be sure that Old Master Parker’s disease is myasthenia gravis.”

Leonard said indifferently, frowning as he looked at Sean.

“You’re wrong.

“Old Master Parker’s disease is myasthenia gravis.

“It’s just that there’s some variation in the original symptoms.

“So it’s normal that you can’t detect it.”

Sean’s condescending attitude upset Leonard.

“No wonder we didn’t get much relief by treating it as amyotrophic lateral sclerosis.

“The doctors were also puzzled at that time but didn’t know why. It turns out that we gave the wrong treatment!”

Andrew suddenly murmured with a sudden sigh.

Both Anderson and Old Master Parker nodded silently.

What Andrew said was true.

“I believe my grandfather no matter what.”

Leonard’s granddaughter said and expressed her attitude.

“Yes! We still believe in Dr. Wester’s diagnosis.

He diagnosed something Leonard could not.

For a moment, the crowd was so stunned that they were speechless.

“Impressive!”

Andrew was even more delighted as he clapped his hands.

“You’re not too dumb after all.”

Sean said indifferently after glancing at Leonard.

“Ahem. Yes..”

However Leonard, who was originally superior, changed his attitude drastically this time. He was even humble in front of Sean.

An outsider would think Sean was the senior in the medical industry.

Leonard was silent for two seconds before nodding anyway.

“Then I will give you a prescription for myasthenia gravis, Old Master Parker.

“After resting for a few days, go to the hospital for a thymectomy.”

Once Leonard finished speaking, the doctors also nodded.

Thymectomy was one of the most effective treatments for patients with myasthenia gravis.

Besides, you would return back to normal if the postoperative recovery went well.

Therefore, Leonard’s treatment plan was reasonable.

However, Sean shook his head and prepared to sit back down.

“Kid, what other suggestions do you have?”

Old Master Parker immediately stopped Sean and asked him sincerely.

Leonard slowly turned to look at Sean. He did not think Sean could point out anything else that was wrong.

"What a joke!

"I've heard of special needle treatment, but it's only about needles inserting for acupoints.

"How can special needle treatment be useful for conditions that have to be treated with surgery?" Anderson sneered, dismissive of Sean's remark.

"You think the special needle treatment doesn't work because the special needle treatment you know isn't that effective."

Anderson blushed as soon as Sean spoke.

Andrew shook his head and smiled, feeling relieved

The meaning of this sentence was like someone saying that knowledge was useless, but it was his knowledge that was useless.

You think money could not buy happiness because the little money you have could not buy happiness.

How could someone like Anderson understand Sean's special needle treatment?

"Are you talking about stopping the thymoma from growing with special needle treatment, or even eliminating it?"

Leonard finally reacted and looked at Sean with surprise.

"That's right."

Sean nodded gently.

"But... But..."

Leonard, who was usually calm, stammered.

Sean's approach was good.

It not only avoided the risk of surgery but also avoided the side effects of using too much modern medicine.

However, the point was how was it possible to eliminate a thymoma that needed to be surgically removed with special needle treatment alone?

“How hard can it be?”

Sean stepped forward, and Andrew immediately had someone send over disinfectant cotton balls.

Sean disinfected the needle in front of everyone. He was going to treat Old Master Parker with the needles.

“Stop! Do you have a medical license? How dare you act randomly?”

"Grandpa, Sean seems to have something up his sleeve!"

Leonard's granddaughter also noticed how unusual Sean was at this point.

"Shut up!

"Sean is your senior from now on. How can you call him by his first name?"

Leonard's statement made the girl blush.

She stole a sidelong glance at Sean, thinking, 'We're the same age. Why is he my senior?' However, for some reason, the girl could not help but blush.

It was because the way Sean applied the special needle treatment was amazing.

It was so smooth. His focus in applying the needles was also uniquely mesmerizing.

Any girl would probably be charmed if they saw him.

Swoosh! Swoosh! Swoosh!

Sean inserted needle after needle with no more pauses in between.

It seemed random, but every needle was inserted into the right acupoint.

Leonard knew that only with 200% control of the body's acupoints could one administer a needle this smoothly..

Sean reached for it and put it aside.

Everyone was silent, waiting for the special needle treatment to be completed.

The doctors, Leonard, and his granddaughter peeped at Sean from time to time.

However, their eyes were filled with curiosity and awe, instead of the previous scorn and ridicule.

The living room was quiet. They wanted to say something to Sean but were scared, so they could only stay silent.

As soon as the time was up, Sean skillfully and quickly withdrew the silver needles.

"How do you feel, Old Master?"

Anderson quickly went up and asked Old Master Parker.

"Well... I don't seem to feel anything."

Old Master Parker felt it carefully and said truthfully.

"Hmph! I told you he's only fooling us!"

Anderson immediately turned his head and yelled at Sean again.

"Mr. Parker!"

Andrew said and followed Sean.

"Old Master Parker, I'm leaving too.

"I'll visit you in two days."
