Chapter 1391

“No way, you...”

“Commander Lennon wouldn’t be so young...”

Old Madam Zackman looked at Sean carefully before shaking her head and saying.

It was hard for her to believe that Commander Lennon, who defended the borders, was a young man in his 20s.

After all, Old Master Zackman was always full of awe when he mentioned Commander Lennon.

Many people would assume that Commander Lennon must be old when a man in his 60s looked up to him like that.

Therefore, Old Madam Zackman could not believe it, no matter what.

“I heard Old Master Zackman say he often played chess with you.

“Why don’t we play a game?”

Sean looked at Old Madam Zackman and suddenly requested.

“What?”

Old Madam Zackman froze again.

However, she quickly turned her wheelchair, pulled open a drawer, and took out a chess set.

The chess set was made of ivory. It felt smooth and of good quality.

Once the chessboard was set, Old Madam Zackman and Sean played against each other.

“Some people treat patients with medicine, others with medical equipment.

“Are you trying to cure me with chess?”

Before they started the game, Old Madam Zackman slowly looked up at Sean.

“How can I cure you if you’re not sick, Old Madam?”

“I’m playing chess with you because Old Master Zackman taught me to play chess, Old Madam.”

Old Madam Zackman was instantly enlightened as soon as Sean said that.

However, Sean’s tactics were not Casper’s style at all.

“Old Madam, you’re a good chess player.

“After playing with Old Master Zackman for years, I’ve learned his ways. I’m more likely to lose than win if I play his way.”

Sean smiled and explained softly.

“So what are you trying to say?”

Old Madam Zackman looked at Sean and asked indifferently.

“I’d like to play using Old Master Zackman’s way this time.”

Sean said as he began to reset the chessboard.

“Here!”

Old Madam Zackman would not reject him.

“After you.”

Old Madam Zackman said after the chessboard was set up.

Swoosh!

Sean picked up the chess pieces and started to move.

Thud!

Thud!

They struck fast, and the sound of the chess pieces landing was clear.

“Knight, pawn, bishop...”

Old Madam Zackman muttered as she made her move.

The more she went on, the more shocked she became.

Henry quickly walked over to help Old Madam Zackman.

“I’d like to eat some beef stew”

As soon as Old Madam Zackman spoke, Henry’s wife immediately widened her mouth.

The family of three was all the more dumbfounded.

Was Sean that amazing?

What on earth had he done to Old Madam Zackman?

She was originally a patient who would not eat or drink.

Sean did not use medication or give her any injections. He just talked to Old Madam Zackman alone, and now she wanted beef stew

"You must send Mr. Lennon back safely!"

Henry knocked on the car window and spoke sternly to the driver.

"Yes!"

The driver nodded, started the car, and slowly drove away.

Henry stood where he was until the car disappeared before hurrying home.

Old Madam Zackman was sitting on the couch.

Henry's wife and son accompanied him by staying beside him.

The beef stew was simmering in the kitchen, and the fragrance was beginning to waft everywhere.

It was the most regular atmosphere in a family, but it had not appeared in Henry's family for more than a year.

They were always in a bad mood because of Old Madam Zackman's illness.

Old Madam Zackman was in a wheelchair and had to be attended to day and night.

Later, Old Madam Zackman ate less and less until she even lost her appetite these two days.

No one knew how frustrated and helpless Henry had been.

Henry was filled with emotion when he saw this harmonious scene.

He was also more grateful to Sean.

"Old Madam, how did Mr. Lennon treat your illness?"

Henry also came over, curious.

"It's nothing."

Sean whispered back, waving his hands slightly.

"Ahem, Mr. Lennon. I have a relative who's in pretty much the same situation as Old Madam Zackman.

"I wonder if you could..."

The driver coughed gently and was about to speak.

"No."

Without waiting for the driver to finish, Sean quietly refused.

"Uh..."

The driver froze, and his face reddened with embarrassment.

However, Sean only turned his head to look out of the window at the scenery flashing by.

Although he knew medicine, he had no intention of practicing medicine to help people.

If he agreed to help the driver today, more people would be asking him to help them in the future.

They would be looking for him to help with all kinds of illnesses.

There were too many patients in the world. Sean did not have time for all of them.

Therefore, he went with the flow in matters such as curing people.

If there were a chance, he would not hesitate to help.

However, he would never devote all his time to curing people.

The way to save people was not only with medicine.

Sean used to be in the army, killing enemies, ensuring world peace, and thus saving lives.

“Sorry, Mr. Lennon. It was rude of me...”

blushed and apologized profusely.

"Commander, I had no idea we would start a company."

Zander said emotionally as he held the profile in his hand.

"Not only can we get rid of scum but also increase our importance, so why not?"

"If we want to meet powerful people and ask for their help, we must improve ourselves.

"The bigwigs you cling onto aren't called connections when you're incapable.

"Real connections aren't about how many people we know, but how many people want to know us."

Sean picked up his coffee cup and walked slowly to the French window.

"Got it."

Zander took it in carefully before nodding repeatedly.

He knew if Sean's identity in the army was exposed, there would be countless people who would want to be friends with Sean.

However, Sean was no longer in the army and did not have the power he once had.

Even after he was exposed, there might be a lot of unnecessary trouble.

Therefore, he could not use his identity at will.

The only way to increase their leverage was through their finesse in business.

They could only establish their status and weight through the business circle.

Sean slowly turned around, walked to the table, picked up his phone, and looked at it.

“What if they don’t go?”

Zander thought for a moment before asking softly.

After all, it was always right for them to be prepared in advance.

“I will even go after Billion Trees. They’re nothing.

“If they prefer to take the hard way. I’ll strike them down together.”

As soon as Sean spoke, Zander immediately nodded without any more doubts.

5.55 p.m.

A private room on the fifth floor of Milan Hotel.

Milan Hotel was located in the bustling business district of Joules Town.

Just across the street was Billion Trees Real Estate’s headquarters.

There were many company buildings around. It was a busy area.

It was not dark yet, but the lights in the office buildings and on the streets were already on.

It was as bright as day outside.

In a private room near the window on the fifth floor of Milan Hotel, you could see a large view downstairs, including the entrance of Billion Trees Real Estate’s headquarters.

"Mr. Lennon, the two of them have an emergency.

"They couldn't make it, so..."

A middle-aged man explained softly.

Sean nodded his head gently.

None of these people was a fool. Each was smarter than the last.

At this point, they must know why Sean invited them.

What Sean wanted to know was their attitude.

Their attendance was indicative of this attitude.

"Tell Jeffrey to proceed."

Sean slowly turned his head to Zander and said.

"Yes!"

Zander immediately answered and walked out with his phone in hand.

He said nothing in the whole process, nor did he say what to do.

However, these seven successful people were shocked when they heard that.

Sometimes, the more you did not know what the other person was going to do, the less confident you were.

Sean invited them over for dinner today.

They rushed here after struggling with themselves.

However, they were prepared not to easily say what they had in mind.

However, Sean just asked Zander to do something. What was he going to do?

Were they going after those who did not show up?

With that in mind, they got more uncertain.

Some people wanted to meet with Sean and find a reason to leave early.

However, looking at each other, no one dared to mention it.

Eventually, they could only give up the idea.

Sean learned from the profile that Gunther also had the shortest temper.
He was the first to lose his composure.

"Don't you know why I've asked you here?"

Sean put down his spoon and fork, picked up a paper towel, and wiped his hands.

"We don't."

The crowd shook their heads.

Even if they did, they would say otherwise.

In a conversation, the first to say what was on their mind would inevitably lose an advantage.

Therefore, they would not confess easily.

"Okay, let me make it clear to you.

"I want you to take a stand.

"I wonder what you think."

Sean slowly looked up, his eyes scanning the seven people's faces.

"What stand?"

They glanced at each other and asked the obvious question.

"Lennon Real Estate and Billion Trees Real Estate.

"Choose one."

Sean's tone was still calm.

Hearing this, the seven people's expressions changed slightly.

They figured out that Sean had probably called them over for this.

After all, the news about the battle between Lennon Real Estate and Billion Trees Real Estate had gone viral in Joules Town's business circle in the past two days.

Many people were watching to see who would have the last laugh.

Sean had approached them at this point. How could they not figure out something?

However, they still did not expect Sean to speak so bluntly.

In a word, Sean wanted them to take sides and decide.
