

Sir, You Don't Know Your Wife Chapter 1093

With that, the audience suddenly burst into applause.

After taking a deep breath, Janet tried to suppress the nervousness inside her. With a gentle smile on her face, she murmured, "I'm lucky to have met you. Thank you for marrying me too."

Instantly, the applause grew louder.

Under everyone's gazes, the two of them exchanged rings.

At the moment, Mason's hand, which had the ring on it, was trembling slightly.

My girl is now personally putting the ring on me. These rings are the symbol of love and responsibility.

As J'Adore held his hand tightly, the faint joy in her eyes was extremely touching.

Mason could see from her phoenix-like eyes that she was excited and moved. Her delicate face was a little flushed, but he didn't know whether it was because she was shy or excited.

No matter what it was, it made him extremely happy.

Without waiting for Lee to speak again, Mason grabbed her face and fiercely planted a kiss on her lips.

On the other hand, J'Adore didn't hold back her emotions either as she wrapped her arms around the man's waist and kissed his lips passionately.

As the two of them held tightly onto the other, they became entangled in their kiss while feeling each other's presence and heartbeat, all the while ignoring the guests below the stage. At the moment, they only wanted to merge with the person in front of them as one.

The image froze at this scene.

The audience, who was watching this live show, was envious of the couple. Besides, they were stunned by this magnificent engagement ceremony.

“Mason and J’Adore are so sweet together!”

“Exactly! According to what Young Master Mason said just now, does that mean he fell in love with J’Adore at first sight?”

“Goodness! Love at first sight? This kind of thing can only be seen on television shows, right?”

“Ah—this is so exciting! They really are a match made in heaven.”

“‘Thank you for marrying me’—what a sweet confession!”

“‘Thank you for marrying me too’. J’Adore really knows how to be romantic as well.”

“Congratulations to both of them!”

After the simple ceremony was over, everyone started to celebrate with toasts and gifts.

On such an occasion, there would definitely be a gift-giving session.

Every leader, chief and director all over the world used all the resources they could to please Mason and J’Adore.

The gifts they gave were precious treasures from each country or contracts that would make anyone jealous.

Every gift was a symbol of each country.

For example, the leader of Bransford gave them the gold mask of Tutankhamun.

The mask was discovered thousands of years ago in the tomb of the Egyptian pharaoh, Tutankhamun.

It was made out of pure gold, and it was embedded with diamonds and colorful glass.

This kind of mask symbolized power and it was a gift by Egypt to the Bransford leader. Now, he was giving it to Mason and J'Adore, which proved how much respect and admiration he had for the two of them.

Not only that, the leader of Yobril also gave them a royal crown and scepter.

The crown and scepter symbolized power, and the jewels embedded on them drew everyone's attention.

The Star of Africa and the Mountain of Light were some of the most expensive diamonds in the world, and they were used as decorations for the crown and scepter.

These gifts not only stunned the guests at the scene, it even shocked the audience all around the world who was watching this live.

Everyone couldn't help but be amazed.

"Gosh; the leader of Barnsford actually gave them the golden mask! This shows how much respect he has toward Mason and J'Adore."

"Tsk! I can't believe the leader of Yobril gave them the scepter that symbolizes their power. Some might even mistake this as an engagement ceremony of one of the royalties of Yobril."

"Oh my! This is simply an untouchable engagement ceremony for us mere mortals."

"You're right. We can only watch it live on our television."

"J'Adore must be so happy right now. I really do envy her."

"It's all because J'Adore is a brilliant person; otherwise, why would this many people respect her so much?"

"It's no surprise. After all, she is a God in Markovia."

With the engagement ceremony ongoing, the fans of the 'Madore' couple were growing by leaps and bounds and at one point, it even exceeded the popular celebrity couples.

Overall, the 'Madore' couple was now the top ten trending topics on Twitter.

This kind of attention was simply unmatched even with a celebrity.