Dont Go

Harry slept peacefully for the first time in the last few days, soothed by the rising and falling of Draco's chest, the sweet sounds of his breathing and the warmth of his body. He'd been terrified of what had happened last night, as if he would accept the events. Harry was in shock of losing the one he truly cared for, only a day in. Or in the Potion was complete.

Harry woke up very early the next morning, facing Draco's back. There was only a few inches between them caused by obvious tossing and turning. He looked at the clock face him, immediately sighing in frustration.

"You shouldn't have taken me..." Draco finally mentioned, staring at the wall. "You have no idea what I might happen now."

Harry wrapped both hands around Draco's free hand behind. "All that matters is that you're safe...I'm so glad I have you with me."

Draco whimpered nervously as Harry's fingers teased his nipple. "What are you doing?" he blushed deeply, shuddering as the other hand joined in.

"Saving good morning." Harry kissed Draco's ear, bringing his to hand down to his stomach. "Did you sleep well?"

Draco slowly nodded as he watched Harry's hands. "What's happens now?"

"Well." Harry began to say, rubbing in circles. "I still don't remember anything...but we have the whole weekend to do nothing." His fingers slowly dipped into Draco's boxers.

Draco inhaled sharply. "Potter!" he groaned, Harry's hand lightly covered his groin. "Ha!" he whined.

Harry started rubbing gently, grazing his fingers around Draco's cock as he began to harden. "Do you like that?" he whispered in his ear and into the slightest moan, he released his tits.

Draco arched his back against Harry, feeling himself harden slowly against his mastering fingers. "Why...why, oh?" he moaned deeply, closing his eyes as he felt his eyes his shoulders.

"Mm? Are you sorry?" he kissed down, shuddering as the other hand joined in.

"Saying good morning." Harry kissed Draco's ear, bringing to his