

The Pride

Chapter 19: Josephines Nervousness

Meanwhile, in the parking lot, a woman in a black formal dress washes a van. This woman repeatedly stood on tiptoes, and moved uncomfortably because the soles of her feet had touched the dirty court. Since it is absolutely impossible to wash a car with heels 9cm high.

Behind her, a woman with a skinny body like a sportsman was pointing his cellphone camera at her with a smile of victory. The woman is Olivia White, the head of the HR department who is the enemy of the woman who washes cars, Ura Dean.

Ura tried to hold herself back so that her tears didn't fall. She didn't want to make Olivia even more happy. Even though there was still some punishment to be worked out after this.

***

This blonde haired woman sat uncomfortably. Her heart was beating fast like a deafening sound of hard rock music.

It had been more than fifteen minutes she sat in that position, because the man she had just met had never returned. This makes her anxious about impending failure.

‘Looks like what I’m doing will be in vain. Should I leave now?’ she talked on her mind.

However, again she recalled her husband’s handsome face with a square jaw. His hazel eyes always gave a comfortable impression when looking at her ‘Ah why I don’t try sending a message to Nicko, I can kill the boredom with this,’ She thought, then grabbed the smart phone from her handbag.

‘Did you Succeed, Honey?’

It looks that the husband had sent her a message earlier. But it seems she was talking to Mr. Evans at that time.

She is sitting with her legs crossed, then type a message for her husband. Tells all the worries that is being faced at this time.

‘It’s been a long time that Mr.Evans leaving. Is it possible that he is not interested in what I am offering,’ she wrote.

‘Wait in a while. Maybe Mr Evans was in need. Didn’t you say that he was going to discuss it with his superiors?’ Nicko replied.

‘Or maybe his boss wasn’t interested in me? He didn’t come to see me.’

‘He is a director, and will be very busy, honey. That’s why he is asking someone to represent him.’

‘You’re right. But at least Mr. Evans could tell me if what I said isn’t interesting.’

‘Believe me, Mr. Evans is not that kind of person,’ Nicko wrote and almost unwittingly unmasked him.

Josephine looked at the screen of the fit object and widened her eyes.

Questioning whether her husband really knows the figure of Raymond Evans.

‘Do you know Mr. Evans?’

It was long enough for Josephine to receive a reply from her husband.

‘I heard from the rumors around.’

Maybe what Nicko said was true. Only selected people able to work for the Richmond company. It was certain that the man she had met had a high level of dedication and a professional attitude.

***

The Director room, Fifteen minutes ago.

The young director leaned his butt against his desk. His arms are crossed, and he looked at the two people who were crumpled in front of him. They are Josh and Noah.

The two men arrived with their superior, Richard, who also looked disheveled. Of course it could be a question for the new director.

‘Richard, what happened to you. Why do you look so shabby like these two losers?’ the young man asked, observing the two men who looked shabby and helpless.

‘I just did a hundred push-ups as a punishment for my failure to educate them,’ he replied firmly.

The only son of Lloyd was in awe of Richard Nelson’s attitude. In his opinion, this is the attitude of a true leader.

‘Hmm I told you, you don’t have to blame yourself for this. They are just arrogant people,’ Nicko replied.

‘Yes, Young Master,’ Richard answered.

This well-built man gave the dismissal decree and gave it to Nicko to sign, then.

‘Young Master, this is the termination letter, you are requested for,’ Richard said.

‘Thanks Richard.’

Nicko read the letter carefully before signing it. The information on their bad predicament for their job was written in this letter.

er. Of course it would make some difficulties to find another job.

‘Hmm good,’ Nicmo muttered and signed the dismissal papers.

‘If a company asks about them, tell them we don’t recommend them to work anywhere!’ Nicko ordered Richard.

The two officers who had looked arrogant were nervous, by hearing Nicko’s statement. They all knew that the Richmond company had a very strong influence. Of course Richmond’s recommendations will be heard by all companies.

If the title is received well, then it will easily to have a career in another place, may be it could have any promotion also.

While if the title is bad, of course it will complicate their lives, it is still good if there are companies that accept them with the lowest job level.

‘Young Master, please don’t do this to us,’ Josh asked.

Noah also pleading and trying to defend himself, but apparently he was not heard.

‘Huh, you thought I would care about? I said already that you would regret it later, but neither of you listened to me. Now get out of my sight!’ Nicko kick them out, stomping his feet and make Noah fall, because the man knelt and held his feet.

The sound of knocking on the door saves Nicko from the embarrassment caused by the two arrogant security guards. This young man also invited the person knocking inside the door to come in.

‘Excuse me sir, am I interrupting?’ The man behind the door asked.

It was Raymond Evans who came with Josephine’s proposal. Nicko asked Richard and the two bullies to get out.

‘Thanks Richard, you can get back with your work. Don’t forget to get rid of the trash from the Richmond area,’ Nicko said and emphasizing the word trash and gncing at Josh and Noah