

Chapter 29 : The real mission

Y/n's POV

So here we go for the mission. It's a pretty simple mission really, we enter a building, we infiltrate to the control room, we hack the system and we recover all the data we find. It's a pretty simple mission.

I then approach him and come to sit on the seat next to his and I can't help but tap my knee.

"You look stressed to me, do you want us to go over the procedure and everything that's going to happen so that we have it straight in our heads and we're tuned?"

"Yes we can do that."

"All right, so it's pretty simple. Once we get to the location we'll be able to go to our hotel room which is right across the street and we can start our observation rounds. We observe the entrances, the exits and we observe all the floors well. All that during one week. However, on Friday night, when we go out."

"I go in person and that's when the mission begins."

"Exactly, if all goes well, you're in on Friday night and we leave on Sunday."

"Perfect, I think I'm ready."

"Don't stress too much Y/n/n, I know it's scary that it's just the two of us, but we'll get there. We've been practicing a lot. You can do it, then I'll be with you the whole way to guide you. Everything is going to be fine, don't stress." he tells me with a kind smile that makes me want to vomit.

"You're right, sorry." I replied, if only he knew that wasn't why I was stressing but for something else. I can't tell him obviously.

"Don't apologize Y/n, it's totally normal to worry."

"Thanks Alex."

"You're welcome sweetheart."

"I'm going to check our weaponry and all our equipment."

"Okay, I'll let you know when we get there."

So I walked away from him and headed to our stu to really check that our weaponry and equipment is operational. I then check my swords and costume. No need to put it on now. We still have plenty of time ahead of us. So after checking the equipment, I'm going to rest a little bit, I'm going to do some meditation and a little yoga to relax and be all in for the mission. The mission will still last a little over a week. After a while, Alexis tells me that we are coming. I gather all our stuff. He puts the jet on a private ground where a car awaits us. We take our things and we go towards the big black car. A shield agent is leaning against the car body.

"Hello, you must be agent Peyton, and you agent Ivanov" he says with a strong Greek accent. Oh I didn't tell you but we are in Mykonos. "I'm Agent Moretti." he showed us his badge. "I will be your correspondent here. In particular, I will take you to your hotel and I will be the one to take you to your jet on the way back. The director has instructed me to help you as best I can so here's my number-" he said as he handed us his card "call me if you need anything." He seems pretty nice.

"That's nice, thank you. Right now we're just going to head to our hotel and get some rest. The flight was long and exhausting," replied Alexis without taking the card Moretti was holding out.

"I understand, if you'd like to get into the car," replied the agent, mentioning the car with his hand. I approached him, took the card from his hands, said thank you and got into the car in turn.

The trip to the hotel was done in complete silence. Once arrived, Alexis went to the reception to get our room key and we left in direction of this one. We took all our equipment there, installed it in the room and then the agent Moretti left. Fortunately for us, the room is big and there are two beds and not only one. There is a suite, so we have the living room where we set up all our surveillance equipment and then 3 rooms: 2 bedrooms and 1 bathroom.

"Okay, I'm going to shower. Can you order some food while you wait please? Whatever you want." said Alexis to me before leaving for the bathroom to wash up.

I then ordered a meal for two at the hotel reception and they brought it to us 20 minutes later. We ate while discussing tomorrow's day, I showered then we went to sleep.

~~

Day 1: Monday

The target arrives at 6:30 am at the parking lot, leaves the parking lot at 6:37 am, takes a coffee at the stand in front of the box and enters the building at 6:47 am. They say hello to the receptionist, scan their badge and take the elevator. They arrive at their office at 6:55am, their office is on the 7th floor.

They have a meeting at 8am on the 9th floor. This meeting lasts 1 hour. They are back at their office at 9:15am. They work until 10:30 am when they take a 10 minute coffee break. At 12:00 they turn on their computer and go downstairs, they leave the building and go eat alone at the restaurant around the corner. They come back at 1:30pm to resume work.

They take a break at 2:50pm for 10 minutes, then have a meeting at 4:00pm. This meeting lasts 1 hour as well. They scan their exit badge at 6:30 in the evening, then leave the parking lot at 6:45pm to go home.

End of the day for us.

~~

Day 2: Tuesday

Arrive at the parking lot at 6:34am, exit the lot at 6:41am. Ordered coffee, then entered the building at 6:51am, they were ready to work at 7am. 45 minute meeting at 8am. Break at 10am, lunch break at noon. They go to lunch with co-workers. They return to work at 2:00pm, take a break at 3:20pm and again have a meeting at 4:00pm. They leave at 6:30pm and get out of the parking lot at 6:45pm. Same day as yesterday.

~~

Day 3: Wednesday

Arrival at 6:31 am. Still the same schedule as yesterday concerning the morning. However, they spend the afternoon in another colleague's office working on a project. No evening meeting and departure at 6:30.

~~

Day 4: Thursday

Arrive at 6:20am at the parking lot. Start with a meeting with a client at 7am. This meeting lasts 3 hours, then the target takes a break and goes back to work in his office. Make a few phone calls and take a lunch break at 12:00. They take their lunch out of their bag and eat in their office. Start working again at 12:50. Make a few more calls, then get the same client as in the morning. At 5pm they have a meeting on the 12th floor, their client is present. The meeting lasts until 6:45, once the meeting is over they go back to their office, and leave it at 7:00 in the evening.

~~

Day 5: Friday

Arrival at 10 am, they look happy. They go directly to the 12th floor for a 45 minutes meeting with their boss. They shake hands and the target goes back to his office and starts working. At 12:00 they take their lunch break and go to eat alone at the local restaurant. They come back at 1:30 and start working again. They take a break at 2:50 in the afternoon, have a meeting at 4 and get ready to leave the office at 6:30. It's up to me.

I get ready, put on my headset and my clothes for that day. We check the connection between the two headsets and then I leave. I leave the hotel, smile to the receptionist.

"The target is waiting for the elevator. Time to impact estimated at 11 minutes" says Alexis.

I continue walking and order a coffee at the stand in front of the company.

"The target is in the elevator, estimated time to impact 9 minutes.

I wait in the queue to get my coffee, there are quite a few people before me.

"Give up the idea of the Y/n coffee, you don't have time", Alexis warns me.

"No, we're sticking to the plan, it's going to work," I then reply.

"Y/n! Listen to me!"

"Alexis, trust me." I say as calmly as I can so I don't get spotted. I hear Alexis grumble in but agree to trust me.

"Target exits the elevator, estimated time to impact 2 minutes," Alexis says in an annoyed voice.

Come on, three, two, one.

"The target has met a group of colleagues who want to talk to them. Time to impact uncertain", says Alexis incredulously.

I smile and order my coffee. Two minutes later I receive it.

"The target moves away from the group, your turn Y/n".

I then walk away and collide with someone which makes me spill my coffee on that person.

"Oh my god I'm sorry!" said I feeling bad, I took the napkin I had and wiped the coffee stain I made on their shirt.

"No worries don't worry! It happens, it's also my fault I wasn't looking where I was going," she answered in English with a slight accent.

"I'm really sorry, it must be burning you..." I was starting to ramble when the person grabbed my wrist gently. Forcing me to stop and look up to meet the eyes of this stranger. As I met her benevolent gaze I opened my eyes wide. My god this person is beautiful and intimidating. I looked away and heard her giggle so loudly. I then looked at her mouth and saw her biting her lower lip while smiling. This gesture made me think of Nat and I felt myself blushing just thinking about it.

"Please, it's nothing. Let me buy you another coffee to make up for ruining yours." Is she asking me out on a date? I then shot my eyes full of confusion and surprise into hers, which was laughing and charming.

"Uh... I... hmmm..." she laughed so loudly.

"No worries I understand, maybe next time then."

"With... With pleasure." I replied, alternating my gaze between her lips and her eyes.

"Perfect, see you then." She said before giving me a kiss on the corner of my lip and leaving. I didn't move for a few seconds.

"The target entered the parking lot" warned Alexis.

I laughed inwardly, smirked and left in the direction of the hotel, the target's pass in hand. So easy.

Arriving at the room, Alexis harassed me with questions.

"STOP!" I shouted. "I didn't know she was going to flirt with me like that, I acted in a way that was bound to make me even more desirable to her. I knew how to act because we watched her enough for a week to know her type. I managed to take her card without her noticing, that's what matters right?" I asked then.

"Did you like it?" he asked me, I then looked at him confused. "That she flirted with you and kissed you?"

"So already she didn't kiss me, she placed a kiss on the corner of my lips. That she flirted with me was fun but the kiss, no I didn't like it. It's part of the job Alexis. What's going on with you?" Honestly I'm not lying when I say I didn't like the kiss. The feelings are not the same when it's someone you love doing it and when it's a total stranger.

"Nothing happens to me, you should get ready for what's next. The mission isn't over."

I did as he said and changed my suit. Then we waited until the whole building was empty. I infiltrated the building without any difficulty and walked through it with Alexis in my ear to guide me. I easily found the room I was looking for, entered, found the main computer and plugged in our external hard drive and proceeded to recover all the data. I erased my passage from the registers. I left as if nothing had happened and left the card at the reception. I returned to the hotel where Alexis was waiting for me with a bottle of champagne, ready to celebrate our mission.

I first put my uniform away and put the data in a safe place, then I joined him to celebrate our mission. We had a party and a good laugh. Of course we went to bed early so we wouldn't be dead tomorrow either. We also decided that we would not return until Sunday, so we could visit the country on Saturday. What we did. It was incredible, beautiful landscapes, incredible people. On Sunday we put away all our things and we joined the agent Moretti who was waiting for us in front of the hotel with his car to take us to the airport. I gave him a copy of the data without Alexis noticing and he told me that he would inform the director of our departure. We smiled at him, got back on the jet and Alexis took off.

"We should be there in 11 hours Y/n, you should get some rest, I'll wake you up when it's your turn." Alexis told me gently.

"Don't you want to go around the mission instead to make sure we're up to speed for the report?"

"No no, there's no need, we can discuss it fully when we get there. We can do a check up just before if you want, just to be sure but it's better if you get a good rest, you've given it your all."

"You're right, be careful and feel free to wake me up."

"Don't worry, go ahead and sleep well." he replied. I followed his advice and went to rest. I can't wait to see Nat again. I fell asleep thinking about her.

A/N

Hi guys, I'm back!

I sincerely apologize for being away... I hope the wait was worth it ^^ I have to inform you that I will be away again for two weeks starting next Monday. I will try to post some chapters before but you never know...
Have a nice day everyone!
I love you all, take care